FIGHT ON BEER LEVY FORCED IN TAX BILL WORK

Move Follows Two More Defeats for Higher Income Charge.

EFFORT TO SETTLE SALES ISSUE FAILS

Tydings Sponsors Plan for Getting Relief Revenue by Liquor Route.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

Strong in their victory over those who sought to rewrite the income tax sections of the billion dollar tax bill, Senate leaders yesterday vainly sought to settle, too, the general sales tax fight, but were plunged, instead into the first voting beer battle the Senate floor has seen since the sun of prohibition rose above it.

By votes of 46 to 31 and 49 to 24, Republican and Democratic leaders sponsoring the committee bill administered the second and third licking to the advocates of higher income tax schedules than approved by the committee and then breezed through consideration of section after section of the bill almost as fast as the bill could be read and formalities complied with. There wasn't even a record vote in the course of the approval of the 72 committee amendments.

When the excise tax section was reached Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, proposed that the advocates of the general manufacturers sales tax should agree to a test of strength and settle the fight then and there. His strategy was obvious. He wanted a vote before the bipartisan strength behind the bill was weakened by desertion in the course of consideration of the various excise taxes.

Opposed by Sales Tax Friends.

The strategy was just as obvious to the sales tax proponents, however, and Senator Moses (Republican), of New Hampshire, said the sales tax advocates were not going to let the senator from Mississippi dictate their strategy, and Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, floor leader of the general sales tax group, confirmed the statement of his brother solon from New England, and thus the stage was set for the entry of Senator Millard Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland.

Senator Tydings proposed a Federal emergency public construction fund of $1,500,000,000, which would be got out of a bond issue which would be retired out of the revenue to be derived from a tax of 24 cents a gallon on beer.

The first item in the excise tax list was a tax on lubricating oils. Senator Connally wanted the committee provisions changed, but accepted them after a brief colloquy with the idea of achieving his object when a later oil provision was reached in the list.

When the next paragraph, providing for a tax of 15 cents a gallon on brewer's wort and 3 cents a pound on malt syrups, had been read, the Tydings amendment was presented, to the obvious distress of the serious Senator Reed Smoot (Republican), of Utah, who as chairman of the finance committee is in charge of the tax bill.

Senator Smoot waved his hand in a resigned sort of fashion and suggested that of course if the senator from Maryland wanted to make a beer speech he probably couldn't be stopped. Senator Tydings said he

Japanese Accuse Li Tu of Massacre

Irregular Chinese Burns Ilan, Manchuria, as Nakamura Advances.

Harbin, Manchuria, Wednesday, May 18 (A.P.).—The Rengo (Japanese) News Agency today reported that the forces of the Chinese irregular general, Li Tu, had massacred 35 Japanese and fired the town of Ilan (Sanhsing) yesterday in the face of an advance by Japanese troops. The Chinese retreated down the Sungari River toward Fuchin, which is 100 miles from the Soviet border point of Habarovsk.

The massacred Japanese had been held prisoners more than a month by the Chinese, who had been making Ilan their headquarters in their guerilla activity against advancing Japanese forces in eastern Kirin Province.

The troops of Gen. Nakamura's brigade discovered the bodies of the Japanese when they entered and occupied Ilap, which is one of the most important towns of northeastern Manchuria. The Japanese military considered the capture an important victory in their campaign to suppress the enemies of the new Manchurian state, Manchoukuo.

Pope to Attack Reds And Radicals for Ills

Vatican Encyclical Today Will Blame Extremist Political Parties as Factors in World Troubles; Day of Prayer Set.

Rome, May 17 (U.P.).—Extremist political parties, particularly Communists, are one of the chief causes of the troubles of modern mankind, Pope Pius XI will say tomorrow in an encyclical suggesting remedies for the world's difficulties.

Atheism, Communism, excessive corruption and exaggerated nationalism are blamed by the Pope for the present world crisis.

The Pope will suggest a day of world-wide prayer on May 26 to aid the world in overcoming its present difficulties, and will urge the faithful to make atonement by abstaining from recreations of all sort for eight successive days.

It was understood the encyclical would point out that extremist political parties in various nations are attempting to avail themselves of the present crisis to subvert the existing social order and to spread what he termed deadly doctrines. The encyclical will particularly attack Communists for their atheist propaganda, which it will say is finding an ever-increasing number of followers.

The atheists are finding good allies among secret associations and sects, the encyclical will say, and therefore the Pope's duty is to raise his voice against such iniquity.

It was understood the Pope would lament that private relations of men are lacking control of conscience, and therefore it is questionable as to how they expect international treaties to rest safely on a working basis.

The Pope will affirm that mankind does not pray to God sufficiently, but turns attention exclusively to improvement of material and mechanical civilization. Men think too much of increasing speed.

M'LEAN OUSTER SUIT TESTIMONY IS BEGUN

(Associated Press.)

Through a bank president and newspaper executives, an attempt was made yesterday to prove that a court should remove Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher, as cotrustee of the vast estate left by his father, the late John R. McLean.

The suit was filed in the District of Columbia Supreme Court for Mr. McLean's three minor children by their mother, Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean, daughter of the late Thomas Walsh, Western mining magnate, who himself left millions.

Corcoran Thom, president of the American Security & Trust Co., whose institution is also cotrustee of the McLean estate, said his relations with the publisher had been "difficult" during the past several months.

He added that he had been unable to get hold of Mr. McLean to talk over business matters and that this had been detrimental to the trust.

The bank president said he had protested strongly after learning that money due The Washington Post had been used to pay Mr. McLean's personal debts and that he told the publisher he would have to resign as cotrustee if that continued.

Most of the day's testimony centered about The Post. Arthur D. Marks, its business manager, and Ernest S. Johnston, advertising manager, said they felt the paper had lost circulation and advertising through "unfavorable publicity" given Mr. McLean within the last two years.

They mentioned divorce suits that Mr. McLean filed against Mrs. McLean and other actions growing out of his marital and business difficulties.

In his opening statement, Nelson T. Hartson, attorney for the children, said he expected to prove that Mr. McLean had been guilty of offenses against "common decency."

He tried to introduce testimony to show that the publisher was tardy

Watson Sees Summer Session as Inevitable

(Associated Press.)

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, said yesterday a summer session of Congress appears "inevitable," but that Senate leadership was ready to work until the night of June 11 in a "desperate effort" to finish before the national conventions.

COAST GUARD CHIEF F. C. BILLARD DIES

Rear Admiral, 58, Victim of Pneumonia; Held Post Since 1924.

Rear Admiral Frederick C. Billard, commandant of the United States Coast Guard, died yesterday at his home, 2301 Connecticut avenue northwest, following a brief illness. He was 58 years old.

Admiral Billard was stricken with pneumonia a week ago. He was thought to be on the road to recovery until yesterday when he suffered a relapse. His wife, Mrs. Clara P. Billard was at the bedside when death came.

Born in Washington, September 22, 1873, Admiral Billard spent his boyhood in Prince Georges County, Md. Following his graduation from the Baltimore City College in 1893, he became an instructor in Latin and Greek in Oakdale Academy, Oakdale, Pa.

Admiral Billard had been chief of the Coast Guard service since January 11, 1924. He received his training in the old Revenue Cutter Service, which preceded the Coast Guard. He entered as a cadet from Maryland and served the greater portion of his training period aboard the old practice ship Chase.

Graduating second in his class, Admiral Billard was commissioned an ensign in 1896. He was appointed head of the Coast Guard exactly 30 years after entering the service as a cadet, and remained its chief longer than any other head of the service.

Admiral Billard saw service on all the coasts of the United States as well as in Alaskan, Hawaiian and West Indian waters. Aboard the U. S. S. Corwin during the Spanish-American War, he later served as navigator and instructor on his former training ship, the Chase. From 1906 to 1911 he acted as aid to Capt. Worth G. Ross, then chief of the Revenue Cutter Service.

Admiral Billard was appointed superintendent of the Coast Guard

District Democrats Today Elect 6 Roosevelt Delegates

But Slate Represents Compromise, and New York Governor Is Not Likely to Keep Votes if He Fails of Majority at Convention.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Democrats of voteless Washington, D. C., will go to the polls today and will instruct six delegate votes for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York.

These six are part of the 100 delegates that the Roosevelt forces expect to gather in this week in their drive toward a majority in the Democratic national convention.

Washington, shorn of the ballot though it is, does have some voice in the national conventions of the two big parties. Specifically, it occupies the same position in this respect as Alaska, Porto Rico, Hawaii, and the Philippines, all of which are entitled to six delegates in the Democratic national convention.

Today's primary here is being held simply to conform to party rules. Actually there is only one slate of delegates and alternates in the field, and this is a Roosevelt slate.

Behind the selection of this slate, however, is a story of strife and compromise. Against a national background where appear 1,154 delegates, this story involving only six delegates may seem unimportant. However, if it reflects a similar situation in many other communities, it may be highly significant.

About six months ago John F. Cos-

IRISH FUSILIERS FIRE ON MOSLEM LOOTERS

Troops Trying to Restore Confidence; Congregating Forbidden by Order.

Bombay, India, May 17 (A.P.).—Hindu and Moslem mobs were quieted tonight by the rifle fire of British troops after four days of communal rioting that took a toll of 88 lives and wounded at least 850 persons.

Twenty-four were killed today and 200 injured before the soldiers, who had been rushed here from Poona, restored order.

But the strife between the two hostile races meanwhile had spread to Calcutta, where police were forced to fire on a mob. Several constables and about twenty civilians were injured.

Fire on Moslems.

The Royal Irish Fusiliers fired tonight on a mob of Moslems in Bombay who were looting and burning shops in the Bhendy Bazaar, the center of the worst of the riots. All was quiet afterward for the first time since Saturday, when a Moslem group first attacked some Hindu youths, although the rioting had forced the closing of mills, throwing 40,000 men and women out of work.

The troops late tonight moved quietly and efficiently through the disturbed areas, restoring confidence.

Groups Are Prohibited.

During the day a fierce-looking pathan, armed with a gun, attempted to force his way into a flat in the Bhendy Bazaar occupied by the young wife of a British police sergeant. He was shot and captured by police.

For the most part during the day the populace shuddered indoors as the blood continued to flow in the ruins of several Bombay districts. British tanks, also rushed from Poona, patrolled the streets. Garbage and refuse, unattended for days, rotted in the streets, causing an abominable stench.

Groups of more than five persons were prohibited by a curfew order from congregating in any spot.

Two New Jersey Members Picked

Hartley and Lehlbach Defeat Opponents in Primary Election.

Trenton, N. J., (Wednesday) May 18 (A.P.).—Two of New Jersey's congressional delegation seeking renomination coasted to victory in yesterday's primaries and, with nine other incumbents, who were unopposed, will seek reelection.

United States Senator W. Warren Barbour, of Rumson, serving by appointment, was unopposed. His opponent will be Percy H. Stewart, of Plainfield.

Fred A. Hartley, of Kearney, and Frederick R. Lehlback, Republicans, both contested, swamped their opponents in the Tenth and Twelfth Districts, respectively.

Maj. Stanley Washburn, of Lakewood, was well ahead of Donald D. Bowie, of Long Branch.

D. Lane Powers, Fourth District, former Trenton assemblyman, led a field of five Republicans. Monell Sayre, Princeton, had a large lead over William T. Lowe, Mount Holly, in the Democratic contest.

In the Fifth District Joseph W. Marini, backed by the organization, had a plurality of 2 to 1 over the next highest of five candidates for the Republican nomination. Harry R. Coulomb was far ahead for the Second District Democratic nomination.

New Mexico Democrats Indorse Gov. Roosevelt

Clovis, N. Mex., May 17 (A.P.).—New Mexico Democrats today indorsed Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York for the presidential nomination, and instructed twelve half-vote delegates to ballot for him as long as his name was before the national convention in Chicago. The vote of the State convention was nearly unanimous.

The selection of Gov. Arthur Seligman as national committeeman virtually was assured when the convention seated the regular delegates from Bernalillo County. The delegation was opposed by another supporting Judge R. H. Hanna, present committeeman.

DISTRICT HEADS BACK HOOVER'S FURLOUGH PLAN

NEW REVENUE NEED STRESSED AS VITAL

Prospect of Deficit Cited in Plea for $9,500,000 U. S. Lump Sum.

District officials went on record in favor of the President's enforced furlough plan of reducing District personnel costs at hearings yesterday before a Senate appropriations subcommittee on the $39,913,810 District supply bill.

Cross-questioned by senators, Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, said the great mass of District government employes prefer a payless furlough to a pay cut, because it would maintain salary levels and forestall widespread loss of jobs.

Testifying at a special night session of the committee, Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou stated the furlough system could hardly be applied to school teachers, who now are on only a ten-month basis.

Would Cut Teachers' Pay.

Chairman Hiram Bingham said this presented no difficulty. He said that an 8½ per cent pr[illegible]t could be applied instead, equivalent to one-twelfth the annual pay. A similar plan was worked out by the House for the legislative department.

Dr. Ballou, Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, and Fire Chief George S. Watson, voiced opposition to provisions of the bill prohibiting longevity pay increases within their departments.

"The teachers and school officials look upon the salary schedule and its provisions as a part of the legal and moral contract between the Board of Education as an employer and the officer and teacher as the employes," Dr. Ballou said in a statement filed with the committee.

"To set aside this contractual obligation, as has been done by withholding automatic increases in salary, will undoubtedly be discouraging and more or less demoralizing to the teaching profession in the District."

Glassford's Statement.

The Glassford statement declared: "Suppression of longevity or automatic increases undoubtedly will affect adversely the morale of the 700

Ruins of Mayan Lost City Found

C. L. Lundell Reports Discovery of Pyramids 190 Feet High.

New Orleans, May 17 (U.P.).—An amateur archeologist, of Dallas, Tex., who arrived here last night from Guatemala, announced tonight he had discovered a lost city of huge pyramids and stone buildings dating back to the Mayan Empire, the first civilization on the American continent.

He is C. L. Lundell, graduate of Southern Methodist University, of Dallas, and of Columbia University. He said he found the once-great city in southern Campeche, bordering Yucatan, and that it contained more than 65 huge monuments, pyramids 190 feet high, with at least 100 hieroglyphics, and large stone buildings.

Dr. Franz Blom, director of middle American research for Tulane University, conferred with Lundell today and after viewing photographs and relics, declared the discovery a very important one. He said it formed the long-sought link between Mayan ruins in Guatemala and others in Chichen-Itza, which had previously been unearthed by explorers. It also extends the known boundaries of the once-great Mayan Empire 120 miles.

Posse Locates Murder Suspect After 2 Weeks

Parchman, Miss., May 17 (A.P.).—A posse's long search through swamp and forest for the slayer of Mrs. Minnie Barbee ended today with the arrest and confession of a Negro that he and a companion assaulted and killed the wealthy widow in her home at Grenada two weeks ago. Constable C. E. Aldredge disclosed the confession of the prisoner, Dudley Lewis, but he did not reveal the name of his companion.

Lewis was driven out of his hiding place in the swamps by hunger and after his imprisonment he ate for the first time in a week. Constable Aldredge quoted him as saying he and his companion beat Mrs. Barbee to death with a brick and robbed her purse of $5.

CURTIS ADMITS HOAX IN LINDBERGH CASE; MAY BE PROSECUTED

Underwood & Underwood.

JOHN HUGHES CURTIS.

Signs Confession That "Negotiations" Were Tissue of Lies.

NEW JERSEY POLICE BREAK DOWN STORY

Bankrupt Boat-Builder Says He Was Lured by Cash Offered by Paper.

(Copyright, 1932, by the United Press.)

Hopewell, N. J., May 17.—John Hughes Curtis, bankrupt Norfolk boat builder, today confessed that he conceived and executed a vicious hoax in which the return of the Lindbergh baby, alive, was promised the child's despairing parents.

Spurred by the hope of heavy financial returns from newsreels and newspapers, Curtis drew on a vivid imagination to enact the spectacular melodrama involving a mystery ship and a gang of brilliant desperadoes, with himself as the central figure—and hero.

His colossal web of lies broke today beneath the hard hammering of the New Jersey officials, and tonight he stood revealed as the most stupendous faker since Dr. Frederick Cook, of unsavory North Pole fame.

Curtis can be prosecuted for his deception, New Jersey authorities determined after a conference tonight at Trenton. They decided Curtis could be tried on a misdemeanor charge, which carries with it, on conviction, a maximum sentence of three years imprisonment and a fine of $1,000.

Arrest Order Delayed.

The order for his arrest was held up pending the arrival of Attorney General William A. Stevens, who was summoned to a hurried conference at the State capitol.

The statute under which Curtis can be tried, the prosecutors found, is Section 13B of the New Jersey crimes act, which says:

"Any person who shall knowingly or wilfully aid or assist any person who shall commit the crime of murder or any crime denominated by any law of this State, or who being within the State of New Jersey shall, for the purpose of preventing or hindering the apprehension of any such person whether within this State or not, knowingly or wilfully gives false or untrue reports, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, for which the maximum sentence shall be three years' imprisonment, $1,000 fine, or both."

In his 9 o'clock bulletin tonight Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf said he had requested the Rev. H. Dobson Peacock to visit him at the Lindbergh home in Hopewell at his earliest convenience. No indication of the purpose of the visit was made. Schwarzkopf said Col. Lindbergh had made no recommendation regarding police action against Curtis.

From beginning to end the creatures of whom Curtis told so glibly, the gangsters with whom he conferred in "dangerous dives," the seagoing "criminals" who signaled him by radio, the phantom ship that was supposed to have the Lindbergh child aboard—all were figments of his brain.

Exposed by Discrepancies.

Yet, so convincingly had he painted the atmosphere around these characters, that reputable citizens of Norfolk, a minister of the Episcopal Church, a retired rear admiral, and scores of responsible business men had been convinced he was telling the truth.

And toward the end of the "search" he staged deliberately over the coastal waters along the North Atlantic shores, even the once-skeptical Col. Lindbergh and his advisers had come to accept his story as containing the elements of truth.

Today his pretenses collapsed. Tangled by discrepancies in his story,

SALESMAN KILLED; BARBER ARRESTED

Suspect Said to Admit Fatal Slashing; Claims Victim Tried Robbery.

A salesman for a barber supply company died in Emergency Hospital last night a quarter of an hour after he had staggered from a yard at 320 C street southwest, his throat badly gashed with a razor. Within five minutes after an incomplete lookout had been broadcast for his alleged slayer, a barber was picked up by a Traffic Bureau patrolman and charged with murder in connection with the crime. He is said by police to have confessed. A woman is also being questioned in connection with the case.

The razor victim was identified as James Havener early this morning by John F. Wynkoop, president of the Union Beauty & Barber Supply Co., with whom Havener lived at 2017 Klingle road. The slain man was a salesman for the barber supply firm.

The identification was made possible by a Post reporter, after there had been some doubt about the name of the slain man for several hours.

Girl, 19, Admits Hoax; Denies Being Kidnaped

Philadelphia, May 17 (A.P.).—Miss Dora Gershon, 19, who, police said, confessed that her story of being kidnaped and held from Saturday to Monday for ransom was untrue, was sent to morals court today after the authorities announced she had admitted spending the week-end in a South Broad street apartment.

It was first reported that Miss Gershon had been kidnaped by four Negroes Saturday afternoon and released Monday morning upon the payment of $300 ransom by her father, Nathan Gershon, a laundry owner.

NORFOLK'S CITIZENS SAY "I TOLD YOU SO"

Few Days Ago Residents Were Certain of Child's Early Recovery.

(Copyright, 1932, by the United Press.)

Norfolk, Va., May 17.—Citizens of Norfolk, who little more than a week ago believed their town had been selected by fate as the setting for the rescue of the world-famous Lindbergh baby, shouted in hysterical excitement tonight:

"I told you so!"

Most of them knew, apparently, that John Hughes Curtis' story of his "negotiations" with the Lindbergh kidnapers was a myth. His confession of the hoax today did not startle them. A fortnight ago tonight they were betting real money that the baby would be landed at the naval base in the yacht Marcon before 8 o'clock next night. But they didn't remember that.

Curtis, president for four years of Norfolk's senior German club, whose royal commands to attend its dances told whether a girl was a debutante or just another entry in the marriage market, was revealed as always having been suspected by some in connection with his activities in the famous baby case.

Commonwealth Attorney Capt. John M. Arnold said tonight that he and police were conducting a thorough investigation to see whether prosecution of Curtis was warranted.

Director of Public Safety Charles B. Borland disclosed a startling phase of his own investigation.

"Col. Schwarzkopf, of the New Jersey police, telephoned me late Thursday night," he said, "and asked me to check Curtis' story.

"Curtis was with Schwarzkopf. He asked the colonel to let him talk to me.

"'Charlie,' said Curtis when he got to the telephone, 'the whole key to

300 Lives Are Feared Lost In Blaze on French Vessel

254 Survivors Arrive at Port in Arabia and Tell of 100 Passengers Being Trapped in Burning Cabins; 420 Refugees on Second Ship.

Aden, Arabia, May 17 (A.P.).—Shipping agencies feared that more than 300 persons may have perished aboard the blazing French motorship Georges Philippar off Cape Guardafui, Italian Somaliland, as 254 haggard, smoke-grimed survivors arrived here today.

The British steamers Contractor and Mahsud brought the first refugees, who reported that up to 100 passengers were trapped in their burning cabins yesterday. Another 420 survivors were understood to be on the French liner Andre Lebon, which took them off the Soviet tanker Sovietskaia Neft.

Shipping experts said they believed at least 1,000 persons were aboard the lost vessel and that unless they were picked up by ships which have not yet reported by wireless or have reached the African coast in boats, they must have met a horrible death.

Racked with anxiety for the safety of relatives and friends, the survivors who arrived today told of harrowing scenes that ended the ship's maiden voyage in tragedy.

The refugees told of the ship's dreadful last hours, as the passengers surged around the lifeboats amid swirling clouds of smoke that rose soon after the fire was discovered. The ship was off Cape Guardafui.

NEW YORK MAN SAYS HE AIDED KIDNAPING

Suspect, Afraid He Will "Go Nuts," Asserts Baby Was Killed by Fall.

New York, May 17 (U.P.).—A man who said he was afraid he would "go nuts" unless he confessed told police today that Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., was killed when he fell from the arms of one of the kidnapers who was abducting him from the Lindbergh home on the night of March 1.

The man, Frank Parzych, who was arrested last night on a charge of abandoning his wife and two children, said he had a part in the kidnaping, but denied he was involved in the infant's death.

Police said they were uncertain as to whether Parzych was telling the truth, but he was questioned by authorities in Brooklyn, where he was arrested, and later brought to Manhattan.

District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan declined to express an opinion on the value of the story, but said it would be thoroughly checked.

Says He's One of Kidnapers.

"I've got something on my mind and unless I get it off I'm afraid I'll go nuts," Parzych told police shortly after he had been arrested at midnight on request of his wife. "I'm one of the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby."

He said he had been approached by several persons in Great Neck, Long Island, a few days before the kidnaping on March 1, and that they offered him "several thousand dollars" to join them "on a job." He said it was the Lindbergh kidnaping and that the baby was being carried down the ladder from its nursery when it was dropped. When a man on the ground picked the infant up it was dead, Parzych said.

The child was then carried into the woods and droped under a bush and the conspirators separated, he said. He has not seen any of them since.

Unable to Shake Story.

Police in Manhattan continued to avoid giving any indication that they believed he was telling the truth.

However, repeated attempts to catch him in a contradiction failed, and Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney, who participated in the questioning, said the man's story "appeared to have a ring of truth."

Parzych contended seven men, including himself—all rumrunners—did the kidnaping. He "believed," however, that they were merely working for some one else. In several things, including his statement that the ladder used by the kidnapers was in two sections, his story differed from the known facts.

Hours of questioning did not change Parzych's story, police said. They declined to make public all details of his story.

Meanwhile, the Bronx grand jury began an investigation of the payment of $50,000 ransom by Dr. John F. Condon, the famous "Jafsie," on April 2.

Five witnesses were called, but Dr. Condon, who has been praised by Col. Lindbergh for his efforts, was not among them. Dr. Condon was told to return Friday morning.

The men heard were Col. Henry Breckinridge, attorney, and close associate of Col. Lindbergh; Max Rosenhaim, restaurant owner in the Bronx; Milton Gaglio, a business man and friend of Dr. Condon; Al Reich, Dr. Condon's chauffeur, and Joseph Perone, a taxicab driver who carried a ransom note to Dr. Condon.

Dr. Condon refused to talk to reporters. About 1,000 persons gathered outside. Most of them cheered when Dr. Condon appeared.

'Bootleg' Broadcast Of 'Suicide' Sought

(Associated Press.)

W. D. Terrell, chief of the radio division of the Commerce Department, yesterday ordered radio inspectors in New York and Baltimore to attempt to locate a "bootleg" radio station which broadcast erroneous reports that Betty Gow, a nurse in the home of Charles A. Lindbergh, had "committed suicide."

Mr. Terrell said he had ordered the investigation after reports had been received by his division that Monday and early yesterday afternoon an unlicensed station, believed to be located in some Eastern city, had gone on the air with the faked news bulletin.

Radio-equipped monitor automobiles will be placed on the trail of the station, Mr. Terrell said. During the last several months the radio division has detected twelve so-called "bootleg" stations in all sections of the country. Amateur radio stations

Bill Would Give U. S. Unclaimed Bank Funds

(Associated Press.)

The Government may be helped to balance the budget with unclaimed money deposited in national banks. The Senate banking committee yesterday approved a bill by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, to turn over to the Government funds which have laid dormant and unclaimed in Federal banks for twenty years or more.

There is no current estimate of the total of such funds, but in 1921 they were $29,000,000. Heirs and claimants would have five years in which to establish their right to the funds after they were turned into the Federal Treasury.

HOAX ADMITTED BY CURTIS

discrepancies hitherto brushed away as merely "a part of the puzzle," he sat down at a typewriter and himself gave the authorities the truth—the truth they had suspected, but had been unable to prove.

Why did he perpetrate this hoax—the second one to subject the Lindberghs to exquisite hope and unutterable pain?

Did Not Forsee Results.

When Curtis informed police, on March 9, eight days after the kidnaping, that he had had a conference with men he believed to be the kidnapers of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., he had not expected his connection would expand into its sensational importance.

Then, when a host of newspapermen, cameramen, magazine writers, film company representatives and others of the world of publicity descended upon him, and when his fellow townspeople turned to him as a public hero, his ego, his vanity, and his hope for material gain persuaded him to build the monstrous tissue of untruths in which he was finally trapped.

The explosion of his pretenses came this afternoon. The denouement was as dramatic as anything the faking dramatist had conceived himself. Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, in the deliberate words that are characteristic of his official bulletins, told of the confession.

"At 4 a. m. this morning," Schwarzkopf said, "John H. Curtis sat down to a typewriter and himself wrote a complete confession concerning his activities in this case.

"He stated that the boat and all the people to whom he had been referring were creations of his own mind and did not exist in fact.

"Shortly after the kidnaping, Mr. Curtis told a story about having a conference with the kidnapers. A newspaper representative, according to Mr. Curtis' statement, made a very lucrative offer for his story to be given exclusively to that paper.

"Also, according to the Curtis statement, a very lucrative offer was made by another newspaper and film company for pictures concerning his activity.

"This stirred Mr. Curtis on to greater activities. Mr. Curtis also said that Dean Peacock (the Very Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, of Christ Church, Norfolk) could have prevented his unfortunate part in this enormous deception.

"Admiral Burrage merely presented to Col. Lindbergh the story as he had heard it, making no recommendations but permitting it to stand of its merits.

Vouched for by Citizens.

"Reputable citizens and officials frequently vouched to Col. Lindbergh for the integrity of Mr. Curtis, stating that his word could be relied upon. This made the deception so much easier. He has been a Norfolk shipbuilder, prominent in a community. Recently his business was reported not so profitable.

"The story of Mr. Curtis resulted in the very widespread activity of the Coast Guard and other Federal agencies in seeking the fictitious boat he has described.

"It has further resulted in many official airplane trips and auto trips as well as keeping Col. Lindbergh away from his home and activities during the most important phases of this case, in pursuit of fictitious clews.

"Four days ago, when Mr. Curtis came to police headquarters, the police authorities at this point started questioning him and checking his story. The result of this check on his story and the questioning of Mr. Curtis was terminated at 4 o'clock this morning with his complete confession that all the information he had given was the result of his imagination and deception as well as his desire to make a good newspaper story, that would bring lucrative returns, and that there was no fact or foundation on which the story was built."

Curtis Not Under Arrest.

Schwarzkopf announced, at the time he issued his bulletin, that Curtis had not been placed under arrest.

The words, "as well as keeping Col. Lindbergh away from his home * * * during the most important phases" were full of tragic import. It was a pitiable, anger-compelling circumstance that this father should have been on the high seas, in a futile quest for his baby, when the child's wasted body was found on the desolate hillside 4 miles from the Lindbergh home.

And through the night of tragedy, when Anne Morrow Lindbergh, trying bravely to bear up under the fearful news, needed Col. Lindbergh most and was endeavoring fruitlessly to get in touch with him, Col. Lindbergh was pacing the deck of a yacht, far at sea, peering through the darkness in search of a phantom ship—a ship that existed only in Curtis' imagination.

The beginning of Curtis' wild melodrama was simple. He told officials that he had made a contact with certain characters—believed at that time to be associated with the rum fleet that hovers off the Atlantic Coast—and that these men had attempted to enter into negotiations with him. They wanted $50,000, he said.

Built Respectable "Front."

Something about Curtis' story failed to ring true. But his record was that of a fairly substantial citizen of Norfolk, despite the fact that his financial affairs had not flourished in recent years. And then he enlisted, as a "front" for his hoax, the dean of Christ Episcopal Church and a retired naval officer of unimpeachable integrity and character, to further his claims.

Day by day the circumstances of his "plot" grew until they reached such proportions that imagination ran out of bounds, and the affair took on the appearance of a melodrama, so astounding as to be unbelievable.

Meanwhile the proceedings of "Jafsie," Dr. John F. Condon, of the Bronx, which resulted in payment of $50,000 by Col. Lindbergh for the return of his child—probably already lying dead on Mount Rose Hill—were revealed.

Weaves "Jafsie" Story In.

Disclosure of this hoax did not deter John Hughes Curtis. He wove the circumstances into his own story, molding them to conform to his own weird tale.

"They showed me part of the ransom money they had obtained from Jafsie," he told the police. "They said they were afraid to use it because the serial numbers of the bills were known. That is why they want real money that can't be traced."

The Jafsie phase fitted into his purposes perfectly.

Then came the finding of the body. Again this did not result in a break in the threads of the tangled skein. Curtis insisted that the case must have become one of extortion—that there was a baby on board his mystery ship when he first "made a contact with it," and that on his second visit to the ship the baby was not there. So, for a few days, he remained untripped in his fantastic story.

Given Use of Yacht.

But his activities had resulted in a tremendous drive by State and Federal authorities, in the hurried flight to mysterious spots, of planes hastily procured from the Navy Department, of a scurrying over the North Atlantic waters by a host of naval and Coast Guard vessels.

Meanwhile, his friend, Col. Charles Consolvo, millionaire hotel owner of Baltimore and Norfolk, had become so impressed with Curtis' straightforward appearance that he freely turned over to him the yacht Marcon and—at a cost of $1,100 a day—ordered it into the search that Curtis knew in advance would be futile.

By this time, willing to take any chance, however remote, that would result in the restoration of his child, Col. Lindbergh had given Curtis authority to proceed with his "negotiations," and the sum of $50,000 was held in escrow to be used when the baby was returned.

Seven times the Marcon put to sea, under command of Capt. Frank H. Lackmann, its skipper, who was convinced as were all the rest, that Curtis was on the track either of the kidnapers or of a band of criminals associated with the case.

But the phantom ship was always out of reach, always lost in the fog, or "frightened away by vessels of the United States Navy." Disappointment and excuses, followed by still another voyage to nowhere.

How Curtis Caved In.

Curtis made his confession in a mad burst of emotionalism, pounding at the typewriter, and upon its completion, putting his head down on the table and sobbing violently.

The dramatic scene was revealed by Col. Schwarzkopf, who elaborated on his first bulletin in order to furnish further details of the hoax and its denouement.

After telling of the four-day grilling Curtis calmly underwent, Schwarzkopf said:

"Curtis was brought to Hopewell Thursday night, the night the body was found. He was questioned all night and on Friday he was sent to Cape May for the purpose of checking up on his story. He was brought back to Hopewell again on Saturday and questioned again. A detailed statement was taken from him.

"On Sunday we intentionally left him entirely alone all afternoon and evening.

Breaking-Down Process.

"He picked this man from a number of inmates, stating that while he looked like one of the kidnapers he was several inches too short.

"While Curtis was in Newark with investigators he was taken over several miles of Newark streets in an effort to locate the house at which he said he had met the kidnapers and which he claimed he could identify.

"He returned in the afternoon to Hopewell with the investigators and was again left entirely alone until after midnight. This was a part of the plan which resulted in his eventual confession. Some time after midnight Inspector Walsh, in the presence of Lieut. Keaton, made several advances to Mr. Curtis and started a game of checkers with him. Mr. Curtis' mind evidently was not on the game, and on the suggestion of Inspector Walsh they took a walk.

"The conversation was continued with him, and the suggestion constantly advanced by Inspector Walsh that he tell the truth.

"At about 1:15 a. m. Tuesday Curtis said that he was ready to tell the truth.

Urged to Tell Whole Truth.

"A statement was taken from him at that time in which he denied he had ever seen or checked the bills of the ransom money (paid the alleged kidnapers through Dr. John F. Condon, 'Jafsie'). His contention up to this time had been that he had seen and checked against a newspaper list a number of the bills used in payment of the ransom. However, he insisted the rest of the facts concerning his contacts were true and made a three-page written statement.

"He was taken back to the room where the questioning had started and was further questioned by Inspector Walsh and Lieut. Keaton, who continued to admonish him to tell the whole truth.

"At approximately 4 a. m. today Curtis jumped suddenly from his chair, asked for a typewriter and paper and, in the presence of Inspector Walsh and Lieut. Keaton, he himself wrote out the confession."

Col. Schwarzkopf explained that the statement prepared by Curtis was made to Walsh after Curtis had told them, orally, that Dean Dobson-Peacock "could have prevented the deception."

"Dean Dobson-Peacock could have prevented this for me," he told the two investigators, "when I went to him at first—but, instead, he encouraged me."

Curtis failed to explain how Dr. Dobson-Peacock could have prevented the hoax, but investigators were under the impression that Curtis had not told the clergyman the complete story.

Curtis "Prisoner" In Lindbergh Home

Not Under Arrest, but He Will Be Prevented From Leaving Estate.

Hopewell, N. J., May 17 (U.P.).—John Hughes Curtis, the man whose cruel hoax fanned the hopes of the world that the Lindbergh baby would be recovered alive, sat in an easy chair tonight in the library of the Lindbergh home on Sourland Mountain.

In a way he was a guest in the home of the man who had suffered most from the Norfolk boatbuilder's faked "negotiations." He was receiving the comforts of home that the Lindberghs have attempted to provide for the staff of State officers making headquarters on the estate. In another way Curtis was a prisoner within the house.

"What if he should decide to leave the estate?" a reporter asked Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, in charge of the police staff.

"We would tell him politely but firmly," the Colonel replied, "that we desired to ask him some more questions."

U. S. May Accuse Curtis of Felony

Official Outlines Charge of "Defrauding Government of Its Functions."

Trenton, N. J., May 17 (A.P.).—On the basis of John Hughes Curtis' confession in the Lindbergh case, a Federal official said tonight it would be possible to charge the Virginia shipbuilder with "defrauding the Government of its functions." Conviction would carry a maximum fine of $10,000 and a maximum prison sentence of two years.

The specific charge, if this procedure were followed, would be violation of section 37 of the Criminal Code of the United States, a felony.

The accusation would be that he had conspired to violate a Federal statute, the conspiracy being that while he had not defrauded the Government of any money he had conspired to deprive it of its "functions."

The deprivation would be explained by showing the Government had lost the services of Coast Guard boats and other Federal craft while they were searching for the vessel of the purported kidnapers described by Curtis. also will be appealed to in an effort to trace the new offender of the Government radio regulations.

'I TOLD YOU SO' IS CHORUS OF NORFOLK AT CURTIS HOAX

this is in that green Hudson sedan I told you about. Get that, and you'll get the story. It has 1927 or 1928 license plates, and you will find it either at Hampton or at Prentis Place' (a suburb).

"I put my whole available force on the check of Curtis' story. We found the sedan. It had 1926 license plates. It was hidden at Curtis' boatyard, and it was registered in Curtis' name.

"We have found that Curtis received no long-distance telephone calls, visited no boats, made no trips.

"I have talked at length to Edwin B. Bruce and Lieut. George L. Richard, who accompanied Curtis on his cruises to sea. They said Curtis never gave them any evidence. All he used to do was to tell them daily what the current 'clew' was.

"'We'll work this clew today,' he would say."

His nervous breakdown a year or two ago, after his boat business failed, was recalled at once.

Mrs. Curtis has been ill for weeks from a combination of influenza and worry. She has advised Curtis many times to drop his negotiations.

Dean Harold Dobson-Peacock, of Christ Church, one of those brought into the "negotiations" by Curtis, received reporters tonight while he was dressing for dinner and his belief in the shipbuilder was plainly shaken by full reports of the elaborate hoax.

"I don't know what to make of it all. I relied upon Mr. Curtis absolutely," he said. "I know that Mr. Curtis has been under a terrible strain for the past two months. He also has suffered severe financial reverses."

How Others Were Involved.

Referring to Curtis' statement as relayed by Col. Norman H. Schwarzkopf that the Norfolk boatbuilder could have been stayed from the bizarre performance by him, the dean added:

"I don't know what he means unless it is that he would not have gone into the negotiations without Admiral Burrage's cooperation and mine.

"He insisted at the start that he would not go into the negotiations unless Admiral Burrage and I joined him with our full cooperation.

"We freely gave this and did all in our power and acted in good faith to assist him to do what we thought was right in attempting to restore the Lindbergh baby to his parents."

Capt. Kennet Whiting, commandant of the Naval Air Station here said: "All the Navy did was at the request of Admiral Burrage and Dean Dobson-Peacock."

Lieut. Richard, the naval aviator who piloted the Norfolk trio on their flying trips to sea, would only comment, "All I can say now is that I carried out my orders to aid the Norfolk negotiators and Col. Lindbergh."

Admiral Burrage Silent.

Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, U. S. N., retired, could not be reached. He has consistently refused to discuss the case since the baby's body was found.

With Norfolk's eagerness to disbelieve now that disbelief was easy, it may be said that there were a few people who always warned against the story, even when it was known that the United States Navy was cooperating with Curtis to the extent of making the submarine base his secret rendezvous and furnishing him with seaplane escorts when he went out to sea ostensibly in search of a "kidnap ship" that he is now said to have imagined.

The "Norfolk negotiations" always have been amazing. During the first week Curtis and his associates were hammered with demands for proof that they were dealing with real kidnapers. They evaded and hinted at startling developments, and let it be believed that they had concrete evidence. It has been previously revealed that Curtis never told his fellow "negotiators" much, and there were times when they seemed doubtful.

Lindbergh Thought Convinced.

It is interesting to recall now that after the baby's skeleton was found last week, and Dean Dobson-Peacock was asked what convinced him that Curtis was dealing with the kidnapers, he said:

"My faith in John Hughes Curtis." Then, as an afterthought: "Also the fact that Col. Lindbergh himself was convinced."

But there were days when doubt seemed impertinent, with Lindbergh and the Navy convinced and the baby's return apparently a matter of hours.

It is true also that there was always a germ of corroborative evidence in Curtis' work. There were apparently mysterious telephone calls to him, and strangely Curtis did make one or two mysterious visits to his boathouse, late at night, around March 9, when he asserted he was approached by the emissaries of the kidnapers.

EFFORTS OF CURTIS TO FOOL PRESS VAIN

Publishers Refused Articles for Various Reasons; Issue Statements.

New York, May 17 (U.P.).—John Hughes Curtis appears to have predicated his hoax on the theory that the American press was gullible enough to buy his story of the Lindbergh "negotiations" without proof that he was dealing with the actual kidnapers. In this assumption the Norfolk boat builder deluded himself alone.

Newspapers considered the safety of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., of far greater importance than a "scoop," according to statements of those who were approached by Curtis, or persons claiming to represent him.

Contract Is Denied.

In his confession today Curtis mentioned executives of the New York Herald Tribune and the New York Daily News. In this connection Grafton Wilcox, of the Herald Tribune, made this statement:

"The New York Herald Tribune made no contract or agreement of any kind with John Hughes Curtis. Curtis did make a proposal that this newspaper publish the story of his activities. The Herald Tribune stipulated that it would make no arrangement with him until the child had been returned to Col. Lindbergh and the latter had vouched for the authenticity of the narrative. It was further provided that this newspaper should be the judge of the availability of the material for publication in its columns.

"The Herald Tribune investigated Curits' report as a matter of routine news in which Col. Lindbergh was taking an active interest."

Daily News Statement.

The New York Daily News said:

"The offers referred to by Curtis came from the News, the Herald Tribune and the Fox Film Co. Richard Lee represented the News in these negotiations, but no tender was made to Curtis until after his activities were well advanced; he was then enjoying the use of the Norfolk Navy Yard as a base for his operations, and he had declared himself in personal contact with the abductors."

The United Press was approached by Norfolk men who claimed to be on the "inside" with Curtis, and who said they could supply the exclusive story of the delivery of the baby. The United Press insisted that it would be interested in no such arrangement unless it could be represented at the scene of the delivery by one of its own staff correspondents with Lindbergh himself present to identify the baby as his own. A counter proposal was made, but this was unacceptable to the United Press and was rejected.

LindberghDoubted Curtis, Jafsie Says

Educator, Who Paid Ransom, Avers Story Failed to "Take In" Colonel.

New York, May 17 (A.P.).—The "Jafsie" of the Lindbergh kidnaping case said tonight neither he nor Col. Charles A. Lindbergh had been "taken in" by John Hughes Curtis and his story of contacts with the abductors.

"I knew it all the time and so did the colonel," said the aged educator, who, on April 2, tossed a package containing $50,000 ransom to a man on the other side of a New York cemetery wall. "The colonel knew that I was the only one who had the real contact, which was proven through the symbols, the suit and the pins."

Dr. Condon apparently referred to the three tokens by which he said he was sure he was dealing with the actual kidnapers—the cabalistic signature of the original ransom note, the sleeping suit the baby had worn when stolen, and pins with which the child's undergarments were fastened.

Missouri Court Voids Insurance Receivership

Jefferson City, May 17 (A.P.).—The Missouri Supreme Court today voided the action of Circuit Judge Robert W. Hall, of St. Louis, who placed the Missouri State Life Insurance Co. in temporary receivership recently.

Judge Hall, acting on a petition filed by Jerome Duggan, St. Louis attorney and small stockholder of the Missouri State Life, placed the company in temporary receivership March 29, but a provisional rule of prohibition by the supreme court prevented the receivers from taking charge. The Missouri State is the largest insurance company west of the Mississippi River. Today the supreme court handed down an order which merely said "the provisional rule of prohibition against Judge Hall is made absolute. Written order to be filed later."

Complete Text of Official Confession Made by Curtis

Hopewell, N. J., May 17 (A.P.).—The official text of the confession of John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk "intermediary" in the Lindbergh case, follows:

Made of my own hand and own free will. Referring to the two statements made previously by me in regard to Lindbergh case. At the present time I am sane, but I honestly believe that for the last seven or eight months I have not been myself due to financial troubles.

I was apparently brought back to my senses by my telephone conversation with my wife this afternoon when she told me of the troubles she was having and how the children missed me, also my conversation with Inspector Harry Walsh.

I desire to state that my remarks about the newspapers are true and can be verified. This is in reference to my story about Mr. Haskell and Mr. Wilcox, of the Herald-Tribune.

Mr. Lee, of the News, and Mr. Twin and Fox offered me money for my knowledge of the Lindbergh case or pictures of the baby.

The matter was brought to my attention during a conversation and due to what I now believe was a distorted mind by brooding over it, I became insane on the subject for the time being, which caused me to create the story in its entirety which was untrue in every respect.

I never knew such people that I named to Col. Lindbergh. They were creatures of a distorted mind, with the exception of Marie Truesdale, who had no connection with the crime.

I exceedingly regret that I caused Col. Lindbergh and others any inconvenience and wish it were in my power to correct my wrong.

In justice to my wife and two children I trust that it is in the power of Col. Lindbergh to forgive the inconvenience, worry and injustice I did him in his time of grief.

This statement has been brought about by the realization of the wrong I have done.

Submitted:

JOHN HUGHES CURTIS.

Witnesses:

Lieut. A. T. Heaton and Inspector Harry Walsh. Made at 4:35 a. m., May 17.

(United Press.)

The statements to which Curtis refers in his confession concerned two long, rambling and circumstantial accounts of the Norfolk boat builder's meeting with a "man named Sam," who, he said, induced him to open the negotiations for the return of the child. In these statements, Curtis related his efforts to interest Dean H. Dobson-Peacock and Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage in the case, and his various attempts to get in touch with Col. Lindbergh by telephone.

CAPITAL IS ANGERED BY HOAX OF CURTIS

Coast Guard Said to Have Doubted Tale, but Gave Aid Nevertheless.

(Associated Press.)

The hoax perpetrated on the suffering Lindberghs by John Hughes Curtis aroused indignation in Washington yesterday from President Hoover down.

It developed that from the first Coast Guard authorities had doubted the fantastic tale told by the Norfolk shipbuilder, but nevertheless spent thousands of dollars sending Government craft out of the normal cruising territory on the slim chance of turning up something.

When the most thorough combing of the waters and search by air from Massachusetts to southern Virginia failed to produce a lead to such a craft, these officials became convinced of deception. But they went on, just the same.

Boat Description Sent Out.

Only yesterday morning Coast Guard headquarters made public a detailed description of the fictitious vessel, as pieced together from Curtis' false word, that was broadcast.

Other developments yesterday were:

Attorney General Mitchell emphasized Federal authorities were only cooperating with New Jersey police under President Hoover's order that the Lindbergh case be made a never-to-be-forgotten one until the criminals are caught.

The Treasury distributed 23,000 circulars urging the closest scrutiny of $20, $10 and $5 bills in an effort to get a trace of the ransom money paid by the flier.

Federal Agent's Inquiry.

Disclosure that a Federal agent had been investigating Curtis and his story about negotiating with the kidnapers was made by Representative Cochran (Democrat), Missouri, sponsor of legislation to prevent the use of the mails by kidnapers and blackmailers.

"I know positively that a Federal agent has been investigating Mr. Curtis' story for some time," Cochran said. "I favor a thorough investigation into Mr. Curtis' participation in the affair. The fact that he deceived Col. Lindbergh and others searching for the child causes the question to arise as to whether Mr. Curtis had anything to do with the kidnaping."

Capt. L. C. Covell, acting commandant of the Coast Guard, late yesterday sent instructions to craft along the Atlantic Coast to drop the search for the boat described by Curtis.

Capital Woman Named Bliss' Sole Beneficiary

New York, May 17 (A.P.).—Mrs. Annie L. Warren, of Washington, D. C., was named sole beneficiary in the will filed for probate today of William H. Bliss, who died May 8, in California.

Mr. Bliss said in the will he had made no provision for his son, Robert Woods Bliss, of the American Embassy at Buenos Aires, because "he has adequate means of his own." No mention was made of the widow, Anna B. Bliss, of New York. The value of the estate was given as the usual "over $10,000."

Curtis Pilot Calls Hoax Despicable

Capt. Leonard McLain Says Lindbergh on Boat Gave Him Confidence.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 17 (A.P.). The Curtis hoax was described today by Capt. Leonard T. McLain, who piloted the Norfolk shipbuilder on his apparent effort to contact the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, as a "cruel, despicable piece of work."

"We had no inkling that our trip was a fake. If we had, we wouldn't have gone out to sea in the storm," he said. "I had every confidence when we left Atlantic City that we really were going to meet the kidnapers. That confidence was caused by the fact that Col. Lindbergh himself was aboard.

"It was Col. Lindbergh who stood atop the pilot house in a vain effort to attract the vessel we went out to meet by flashing signals. It was a cruel piece of work to make him believe that the voyage would mean the return of his son. The hoax was a cruel, despicable piece of work."

Attack on Girl, 4, Charged.

Henderson, Tex., May 17 (A.P.).—H. S. (Red) Lee, 45, oil field roustabout, was charged today with criminally attacking a 4-year-old girl he allegedly lured into an automobile. The oil worker was spirited away from the Overton Jail under heavy guard last night after a mob gathered.

BEER LEVY BATTLE IS FORCED IN WORK ON REVENUE MEASURE

never in his life was more sincere about anything than about proposing to legalize and get revenue from beer, but he agreed to withhold his amendment from the wort and malt paragraph.

Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, opposed to the committee wort and malt sirup tax, sought to have that passed over because he was not prepared to discuss it as he wished. But Senator Smoot was adamant, and Senator Copeland began a wearied discussion which lasted for some time until Senator Smoot gave up and agreed it should go over, and the Tydings beer amendment should be considered.

That didn't suit Senator Tydings, who said he didn't want to talk to empty seats. An agreement was sought to recess until 11 o'clock this morning and vote on the Tydings amendment not later than 2 o'clock this afternoon. That was agreeable to Senator Morris Sheppard (Democrat), Texas, who is still unreconstructed on the prohibition question, and other drys, but others objected.

Plans to Repeat Today.

Senator Tydings thereupon launched on his argument, but warned that he intended to go over much the same ground when the Senate met today and there were more senators sitting in their seats to hear him.

Hunger and distress caused by the business depression, Senator Tydings said, would make a dole imperative next winter unless some definite unemployment relief program were launched at the earliest possible moment. His proposal to tax beer would provide the funds for such a program, he said.

He decried consideration of his amendment as either a wet or a dry proposal, but asked it be looked on as a relief measure. He said that beer of not more than 2.75 per cent alcoholic content would not be intoxicating and therefore in violation of the eighteenth amendment.

Would Forestall Dole.

"If we do not act now," he warned, "when the snows of next winter fall it may be too late to act. Just as sure as the sun rises and sets, a personal dole will be introduced, and I will be surprised if it is not enacted. This is not a wet proposal. I am absolutely opposed to prohibition, but 2.75 per cent beer is a percentage that every dry member of this Senate can vote for as nonintoxicating."

"Then why is the senator asking for it?" queried the ultradry Senator Smith W. Brookhart (Republican), of Iowa.

Senator Tydings said he didn't want the debate to get down to a rough and tumble affair, and referred to the fact that between 7,000,000 and 10,000,000 erstwhile wage earners were out of work.

However much his proposal may have looked like a relief proposition to him, there was no indication that to the dyed-in-the-wool drys it was a measure and not a wet measure.

It was 9:35 o'clock when recess was taken until 11 o'clock this morning, when the previously sought agreement to vote not later than 2 o'clock today, was reached. When a vote is had the number cast in favor of the amendment may be comparatively impressive, but there is no indication the Senate is yet ready to accept such wet heresy.

Long Figures in Fight.

Senator Huey Long (Democrat), of Louisiana, who frequently shocks the very important Senate by illustrating some point with the remark that down in Louisiana we do so and so, took an active part in the session again yesterday. He jumped into the fight over the Tydings amendment and into that of Senator Copeland to stave off a vote on the wort and malt sirup tax.

The committee expected to get $97,000,000 from the wort and malt sirup tax? Well, what was this wort and malt sirup used for? To make beer? To make illegal beer? Well, then, the committee was proposing to get a lot of money by taxing something which couldn't legally exist. What the Senate ought to do, the senator said, was to put a couple of lines into the paragraph legalizing the beer it proposed to tax, and it probably would get more revenue.

Of course that was just the talk of a wild man who hadn't learned about the Senate and nobody—that is, nobody among the elite of the Senate—took the proposal seriously. Senator Smoot said certainly everybody knew that there were millions of gallons of beer-with-a-kick made in this country.

Some was home brew and some was illegally made, the Utah dry said, and he seemed to take satisfaction in his profession of willingness to bring money into the Treasury from this beer made in violation of the sacred Constitution of the Nation.

Well, replied Senator Long, why didn't Senator Smoot agree to make legal the beer he was going to use to help the Federal Treasury so much? But that was just another of those questions which nobody but such a man as Senator Long, who hasn't been very long in the Senate, would ask and an answer in words wasn't necessary, and, of course, wasn't given.

So far as the fate of the tax bill is concerned, the beer fight was a sort of a side show interlude, whatever its widespread interest because of the growing fight against the prohibition law and the eighteenth amendment.

The boiled down essence of the Senate action yesterday was that the advocates of getting needed Government revenues from income taxes, on the one hand, and the advocates of a general sales tax, on the other, were holding their forces for the "big squeeze" against the committee bill.

The "big squeeze," incidentally, will begin when the beer tax sideshow is ended and the Senate gets back to consideration of the various excise taxes. Both the income taxers and the sales taxers are willing to have the excise tax program wrecked. If enough of the items are stricken out the bill will not balance the budget. Each side, of course, hopes the Senate will be forced to turn to its program.

It was this prospect which led Senator Harrison to try to force a vote on the general sales tax proposal yesterday before consideration of the excise taxes was begun.

When they refused to agree to an immediate test of strength the sales tax advocates took occasion to remind Senator Harrison that the income-taxers had reserved themselves the parliamentary right to have each and every income tax amendment reconsidered. Senator Moses, protesting his New England innocence and Puritanism, said the indecent exposures which had been made of what had gone on in the meetings of the finance committee were superfluous. The incoherency and the inconsistency of the bill were proof enough, he said, and hoped there would not be any more exposures of the committee.

Senator Harrison said that in making his plea he wasn't acting, as Senator Moses had said, but the general sales tax couldn't get through the tax. Senator Moses said that in its present properly chastened mood the House wouldn't reject the sales tax. Senator Harrison said he was just trying to save the Senate from the detailed coercion to which the members of the finance committee had been subjected.

The Connally income tax amendment, which was beaten, would have provided a 4 per cent tax on the first $4,000 of income and 8 per cent on the second $4,000 and above. The maximum of surtax would have been raised to 58 per cent.

Amendments Proposed.

The Long amendment would have left the normal taxes as proposed in the committee bill but would have increased the surtaxes to a maximum of 65 per cent on incomes over $1,000,000. The Cousens amendment, beaten the day before, would have gone back to the 1918 rates. Both Senators Connally and Cousens reserved motions to have their amendments reconsidered.

The committee income tax rates approved were 3 per cent on the first $4,000 income, 6 per cent on the next $4,000, and 9 per cent above that. The House bill rate was 2, 4 and 7 per cent. The present law is 1½, 3 and 5 per cent. The committee rates approved yesterday included surtaxes to begin at 1 per cent at $6,000 and run to a maximum of 40 per cent above $100,000.

The committee corporation tax rate approved was 14 per cent. The present law is 12 per cent. The finance committee proposal to cut out the earned income deduction was approved.

Approval also was given to the committee proposal to make the income of the President and Federal judges, received from the Government, subject to the income tax. Another change approved was to tax the incomes of Americans living abroad. Another was to approve the committee recommendation dealing with gains and losses on the stock exchange. In general, having temporarily accepted defeat after three adverse votes, advocates of change in the income tax sections accepted the committee provisions.

U. S. Tax Plan Protested By Automobile Leaders

Protesting that the proposed Federal taxes on motor cars, trucks, repair parts and accessories would prove an enormous burden to the industry, eight of the leading manufacturers in a telegram to The Post last night urged immediate steps be taken to defeat the measure.

"Proposed Federal taxes on motor cars, trucks, repair parts, accessories, rubber tires, inner tubes and lubricating oil as recommended by the Senate finance committee will prove an enormous burden to automobile sales and use," the telegram stated. "As you know, motor car dealers are having a very difficult struggle to stay in business. The automobile user is taxed an average of 17 per cent of the value of his car and surely is paying enough. To assist those in the automotive business we urge that constituents telegraph their senators asking them to vote down the unfair and discriminatory automotive taxes. A further curtailment of the use of motor vehicles will delay the return of prosperity, increase unemployment and reduce the income of States from automobile and gasoline taxes."

HOUSE DEFIES ARMY CUT IN COMMITTEE

$5,794,165 Added to Bill by Republican-Democratic Joint Vote.

(Associated Press.)

The House appropriations committee yesterday went down in defeat before a sustained Republican attack that added $5,794,165 to the War Department appropriations bill.

It was the first time in this Congress the House had voted substantial increases over recommendations of the committee. When the day ended the bill carried $392,588,000 instead of $386,793,861.

Insurgent and Tammany Democrats deserted the committee and voted with regular Republicans, led by Representative Barbour (Republican), California, to increase the War Department's appropriation.

Three Major Changes.

Only three major changes were made. One added $2,109,768 so organized reserves could continue drawing pay for fourteen days' active service. This was approved, 154 to 92.

The second called for an additional expenditure of $1,080,773 next year on reserve officers' training corps camps and was approved, 138 to 129. The third added $2,603,624 by reinstating citizens' military training camps, which the appropriations committee had proposed to suspend for a year.

Republicans stayed in line despite a heated argument between Representative Wood, of Indiana, ranking Republican on the appropriations committee, and Representative Beedy (Republican), Maine, over which of them had correctly quoted the President.

Statement in Dispute.

Mr. Wood had said last week that the President wanted the bill reduced $24,000,000. Mr. Beedy implied that meant the President approved the cuts in that amount made by the committee, including the three rejected yesterday and insisted that was not a correct interpretation of the President's position.

Mr. Wood challenged Mr. Beedy to go to the White House "and face the President and see who is telling the truth."

Mr. Beedy accepted Mr. Wood's challenge, but later said he expected nothing to come of it, because of the intervention by Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican leader.

Speaker Garner observed after the incident that "it proves what I have been saying that the President contradicts himself every few days."

DANGLING SAILOR IS RESCUED

Paramount News-Associated Press Photo.

A moment before 90 minutes of harrowing suspense were ended for Robert "Bud" Cowart, U. S. N. He is shown clinging to a rope dangling from the Aron, 2,400 feet above Camp Kearney, Calif. Two other sailors had already been killed when they lost their grip on the rope. They were taken up when the huge dirigible broke loose in an attempt to land it. This picture was taken just before Cowart was finally hoisted to safety inside the ship.

Judge, Tell LaGuardia What You Did Last Night

By JOHN J. DALY

OYEZ, Oyez, Oyez!

Make way for the court!

The court has been called to task by that public guardian, La Guardia, representative from New York.

And what are the charges?

And is the court guilty or not guilty?

And has the court anything to say for itself, or will it hold its peace forever?

The La Guardia charges are contained in several counts, whereas, and to wit:

1—That the learned members of the Federal judiciary are guilty of joyriding, East Side, West Side, all around the town of New York;

2—That they have been vacationing in the big town, seeing the sights, rolling around the frenzied forties, basking in the bright lights, at public expense;

3—That they have been padding their expense accounts—or, as the traveling salesmen put it, soaking the swindle sheet.

The deed is done by running up extra pay for sitting on benches of the southern district of New York. Some of the judges come from far away as the West Coast to serve only for 24 hours, though most of them try to stretch the term to the proverbial 30 days.

FURTHER than that, deponent sayeth not; but it is sufficient and a-plenty. Or, as the celebrated New York matron is supposed to have whispered to her majesty, the queen, "You said a mouthful."

LaGuardia, the guardian, cites a specific case: "A judge came all the way from California to the City of New York, stayed for a few days, and charged his per diem and travel allowance all the way from California to New York and back."

On top of that, as the public guardian points out, there is amongst the judicial brethren "a standing waiting list for a chance to come to New York for a vacation, to go to the theater and to go to the night clubs."

* * * *

SO that's it! A standing waiting list to sit on the bench by day and, by night, to go to the girly-girl shows and the honky-tonks.

Why, Jedge! Where is you-all keepin' th' dignity o' th' court, suh?

Old Lex Legibus out for a joy-ride, with a chorine on either arm, heaving into a taxi, driving up to the curbstone before a cabaret in the small hours that throttle midnight, as morning becomes electric!

That is the life!

And how he must glow with pride, arriving at the night club, the doorman greeting his honor with that old familiar salutation,

"Good morning, Judge!"

M'ADOO DENIES DRY STAND CHANGED YET

Senate Group Hears Debate on Possibility of Saloon Returning in U. S.

(Associated Press.)

A series of statements by party leaders on prohibition was continued yesterday while an impromptu debate on the subject was heard at a Senate committee hearing.

In New York, William Gibbs McAdoo, a Demgcrat and a dry, replied to reports that he intended to change his stand by telegraphing the New York Times:

"Have arrived at no conclusion about a referendum on prohibition. When I do I shall make it public."

A little while later W. Kingsland Macy, Republican leader in New York State, said he had told President Hoover that in his opinion wet sentiment was growing in New York and many other States.

Debate at Hearing.

The discussion at the committee hearing found Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, a dry, and former Senator Wadsworth, of New York, an antiprohibitionist, discussing whether repeal of the eighteenth amendment might bring return of the saloon. Wadsworth said he did not think so, but Walsh was not convinced.

The McAdoo telegram was in response to a dispatch to the Times which represented him as preparing to announce an alteration in his prohibition views preparatory to getting into the senatorial race in California.

Macy said he had a general discussion of prohibition with Mr. Hoover, but added no conclusions were reached. He represented the President as not particularly concerned with the question, his time being devoted mostly to general problems confronting the country.

In response to a question by Walsh at the committee hearing, Wadsworth replied he was "firmly convinced that if we restore to the people of the United States complete power to regulate and control the liquor traffic within their borders, reestablishment of the saloon as we used to know it would be prevented by an overwhelming public sentiment in each State."

Recalled by Walsh.

Wadsworth, who testified several weeks ago before the Senate judiciary subcommittee considering prohibition repeal and modification proposals, was recalled for questioning at Walsh's request.

Questioning Wadsworth regarding his contention that a resolution to repeal the eighteenth amendment should be submitted to popular convention in each State, Walsh suggested there were prospects that an enormous amount of money would be spent on both sides of that campaign.

"Not an enormous amount," Wadsworth replied. "I think the day of large expenditures of that sort is gone. I think they no longer prove effective."

Debate on Expenditures.

Walsh disagreed with the contention that this danger no longer exists and Wadsworth said that "if necessary" he thought Congress should restrict by legislation the expenditure of money in such a campaign.

"You recognize, do you not, that the malign influence in political life of the brewing and distilling interests was a moving influence in the adoption of the eighteenth amendment?" asked Walsh.

"Yes, sir, one of the important influences," Wadsworth replied.

Walsh contended the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment and the Antisaloon League would spend heavily in a campaign for delegates to conventions as well as "selfish interests" who hoped to reengage in the beer or liquor business.

Says Bootlegger Wants Law.

"Likewise the bootlegger," said Wadsworth. "He'd be interested in maintaining the present law."

Walsh said proponents of repeal are "taking on themselves more trouble than they need" in advocating conventions. He argued that Legislatures would vote on wet-dry lines in deciding whether to call conventions and the result would be the same as though the resolution went to the Legislatures for ratification. Wadsworth differed.

The witness referred to a recent proposal by John M. Morehead, American Minister to Sweden, for a twentieth amendment under which States could retain present prohibition or adopt State control, and said he thought it would be a mistake to write a specific plan into the Constitution.

Swedish Ship Wins Long Sailing Race

Barque Abraham Rydberg Is First in Thames After Three-Month Test.

London, May 17 (U.P.).—The four-masted barque Abraham Rydberg put into the River Thames tonight the winner in a race with a score of veteran windjammers which put out from Australia with cargoes of wheat for England.

The Abraham Rydberg, a Swedish vessel, won the race by overtaking the Finnish barque Winter Hyde in the last few days of the long race, via the Cape of Good Hope. The winner carried 3,900 tons of grain.

The race was between sailing vessels which had long been doomed by the steam and steel of modern shipping, but which were given a brief lease on life by the world economic depression. Low grain prices and low freights gave them the chance to compete with speedier ships, although the long voyage required more than three months.

Gun Brings Down Fish, Hawk's Captive in Tree

Wallace, Idaho, May 17 (A.P.).—Earl Elstone, fishing, shot a 4-pound bass out of a pine tree with a shotgun.

The unorthodox fisherman related today that a hawk caught the fish in its beak and flew to the tree, 50 feet above ground.

Elstone cast aside his rod, grabbed his shotgun and blasted hawk and bass off a limb.

Proof? Well, he has the bass, the hawk, the shotgun and a reputation for veracity.

SALESMAN KILLED; BARBER ARRESTED

who located Mr. Wynkoop and took him to the hospital to view the body.

Police say that Ervin McFadden, 48 years old, colored barber of 1318 Twenty-second street, admitted slashing Havener's throat, but denied knowing him and said he slew the man to defend himself in an attempted robbery.

He told police he was in the yard at the C street address and that the man attempted to take his money away from him. He pulled out the razor and defended himself with it. His story was corroborated by Viola Simms, colored, of the C street place.

On the other hand, police contend the cutting took place inside the house. They assert that the kitchen was freshly scrubbed when they arrived on the scene and that spots of blood missed by the Simms woman's mop were found in the corners of the room. A trail of blood led from the back porch to the yard and outhouse and then out to the sidewalk, according to detectives. A razor was found in McFadden's pocket when he was arrested. Playing cards were strewn about the house, police say.

They have a witness, Lawrence Proctor, of 1337 Half street southwest, who told them McFadden had known Havener for about fifteen years and had bought barber's supplies from him.

Proctor came upon Havener just outside of the yard, he told police. He has known the man for some time. The salesman managed to grasp out that "Mac cut me!" and collapsed on the sidewalk. Proctor summoned a cab and hurried Havener to the hospital.

The brief lookout gotten out by police after the fatal cutting merely asked police to search for a "heavy set colored man, known as Mac."

Traffic Bureau Policeman Joe Comisky at Emergency Hospital with Detective Sergt. Dennis Murphy asked permission to start out on a search for the alleged slayer. He went immediately to a poolroom at Maryland avenue and Four-and-a-Half street southwest where he saw McFadden, whom he knew.

On a hunch, he said, he half jokingly asked the colored man why he had slashed that man on C street.

McFadden is said to have admitted immediately the slaying. Comisky arrested him and took him to the Fourth Precinct Station.

Gorgulov Blames French Tolerance

Doumer's Assassin Also Says He Was Drunk at Time of Act.

Paris, May 17 (A.P.).—Dr. Paul Gorgulov told an examining magistrate today that he assassinated President Paul Doumer because of the tolerant French policy toward Soviet Russia and in a mistaken notion that the president was responsible for the foreign affairs of France.

Shown a green flag found in a suitcase of his, the assassin knelt and kissed the banner as he wept. Then he shouted:

"Long live nationalist Russia! I have given my life for this flag!"

He explained that green was the symbol of the Russian peasantry.

The assassin previously had testified he was in a "kind of hypnotic sleep." after having drunk a bottle of cognac, when he committed the crime. He drank the cognac before going to the war veterans' charity exhibition, where he shot down the president on May 6, he said, and was too drunk to remember anything about the gun he used.

Naming of Boy's Guardian Bares Story of Adventure

Chevy Chase Widow of Syrian Patriot Allowed to Invest Son's Inheritance to Save Home; Father Died in Earthquake.

Behind the routine appointment of Mrs. F. A. Mirhige, 100 Leland street, Chevy Chase, Md., as guardian of her 11-year-old son, Faris Amin Mirhige, jr., lies a story of adventure and mishap that might have intrigued O. Henry. Through the appointment Mrs. Mirhige was enabled to save her home from foreclosure proceedings, but that isn't the real adventure tale.

The story begins back in the time of the Syrian revolution against Turkey. Syria at that time was a province of Turkey, but wasn't anxious to remain so. Faris Amin Mirhige, father of the boy, and his father and a companion had joined the cause of the revolutionists in the fight for Syrian liberty. The three had been captured and were to be sentenced to death for treason before a Turkish magistrate. When they were brought before the tribunal, the judge recognized the grandfather as an old college mate and pardoned him, commuting the sentence of the other two adventurers to having their right arms, which had borne arms against Turkey, severed from their bodies.

The morning on which the sentence was to be executed, the trio escaped and were smuggled aboard a ship bound for South America. Here they started a coffee plantation and held for two years, just placed it where it looked like a successful venture when an earthquake destroyed their work and killed the boy's father.

The father had insured his life and named the son as beneficiary. The mother was named his guardian by the surrogate's court of Plattsburg, N. Y. Later she became secretary to a member of Congress and came to Washington, purchasing the home on Leland street. Mishaps came and it appeared that her investment in the home would be lost.

Then it was that the law firm of Whiteford & Cissel, of Rockville, brought into Orphan's Court at Rockville, Md., the petition of Mrs. Mirhige that she be appointed guardian for the son and given permission to invest a portion of his money in buying the trust on the home, thus saving for him his home. The tale of high emprise was unfolded in court by Capt. Joseph Cissel and James Pugh, of the law firm, to aid in securing the approval of the court.

The judges yesterday made the appointment and gave permission to the mother to invest the boy's money in the home. Judges Henry J. Hunt, 3d, and F. Hicks Ray were on the bench, Judge Joseph C. Higgins having been absent because of an illness which has kept him from court

METHODISTS ASSAIL DRY 'BLUNDER' VIEW

Board of Temperance Disavows Statement by Prof. Cell to Men's Council.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 17 (A.P.).—The Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church today entered before the general conference an opinion on prohibition differing from that adopted by the men's council of the conference.

It disavowed flatly the statement of Prof. George Croft Cell, of Boston University, that Methodists "confess the tragic blunder of temperance thought and strategy since 1917."

D. Stewart Patterson, in an address, asserted the board makes "no such admission of a 'tragic blunder'" and assailed wet propaganda for misrepresenting the youth of America as opposed to prohibition.

Prof. Cell's statement, approved by the men's council on Sunday as its official document, said the dry cause was fighting "with its back to the wall" and in grave peril of defeat. Some conference delegates later termed both the address and its adoption as "unwise."

Youth Bulwark Against Defeat.

Patterson cited the youth of America as a bulwark against defeat of the prohibition cause. "It is an infamous insult," he said, "to say that the young people of today are a drunken, debauched, gin-soaked, hell-raising generation."

The representation of present-day youth in such a light, he charged, was "part of the strategy and well-schemed propaganda of the wets to get adults believing that to save the youth of the Nation prohibition must be repealed."

He scouted reports of increasing drinking at colleges and universities and added, "if there is drinking in our student classes, it is because the bootlegger is coming to the student and not the student going to the bootlegger."

Society Women Criticized.

He criticized "society women" working for prohibition reform for statements that the youth of the country were a drinking class. "When they say such things, they are speaking of and indicating their own children, not the children of sober parents."

Another day of balloting for two new bishops ended with Dr. J. Ralph Magee, of Seattle, Wash., holding a commanding lead, but losing votes on the final ballot. His high point came on the eighth ballot when with 514 votes he was only 30 short of the two-thirds necessary for election.

On the ninth ballot, he lost twelve votes, his first recession in strength since he started to climb on the second ballot. Some believed the loss an indication he had reached the peak of his strength and would not be elected.

Dr. Gray Runs Second.

Dr. Joseph M. M. Gray, of Detroit, finished second, with 362 votes, after consistent gains. The surprise of the voting was supplied, however, by Dr. W. E. Shaw, of Peoria, Ill., who came up from the low tally of 80 to 243, to take third place. He picked up approximately 50 votes on each of the last three ballots.

The much debated move to eliminate two more episcopal areas in lieu of electing new bishops materialized when the ninth ballot failed to bring an election. Dr. J. M. Walker, of Bloomington, Ind., offered a resolution that the conference proceed with such a policy in the event the first ballot tomorrow brought no election.

The proposal was ruled out of order after applause had indicated a strong section of delegates favored it. Another effort to move the resolution is expected if an early election is not made.

The conference also voted down a move to limit the tenure of office of bishop. The resolution was described by one speaker as a "further attempt to heckle the board of bishops."

Regime in Belgium Is Ready to Resign

Language Question Breaks Coalition Rule; Premier Seeks New Blood.

Brussels, Belgium, May 17 (A.P.).—The coalition government headed by Jules Renkin was reported by Reuters (English) News Agency as ready to hand its resignation to King Albert tomorrow in an effort to dodge an impasse over the long-fought language question.

It was indicated that Premier Renkin by resigning hoped to return and remodel his government to bring in new blood and thereby avoid the possibility of defeat by the Flemish Socialists. Such a defeat would dissolve Parliament and bring a new election.

The immediate cause of trouble between the Catholics and Liberals on one side and the Flemish Extremists on the other came out of a promise by M. Renkin to the Liberals that French minority classes in Flemish commune schools would be safeguarded.

The Flemish element disliked the wording on this point and others in the text of the proposed school bill.

Port Darwin, Australia, May 17 (A.P.).—Some anxiety was felt today for Capt. Hans Bertram, a German flier, and his three companions, from whom nothing has been heard since they left Kupang, on Timor Island, two days ago. Flying a seaplane they took off for Port Darwin.

TESTIMONY IN M'LEAN OUSTER SUIT OPENS IN SUPREME COURT

about paying his bills, but Justice Jennings Bailey indicated he wanted no sensational testimony unless it were absolutely necessary.

Among those listed as prospective witnesses was Gaston B. Means, who recently was accused of swindling Mrs. McLean out of $104,000 by telling her he could find the Lindbergh baby.

The bulky Means did not appear, although Mr. McLean's lawyer, Julius Peyser, may call him later.

McLeans Not in Court.

Neither Mr. nor Mrs. McLean was present as a court attendant banged his gavel sharply when Justice Bailey entered.

Maj. Peyser said Mr. McLean was in the American Hospital in Paris.

Witnesses were excused with the beginning of the opening statements by Mr. Hartson. He said he expected to show that Mr. McLean had dissipated trust property, and that his action had particularly injured The Post, part of the trust.

Justice Bailey inquired whether Mr. McLean was domiciled here or abroad, commenting that if abroad that would be enough to remove him as cotrustee of the estate.

Mr. Hartson said to "all intents and purposes" he was domiciled in the District of Columbia. The judge replied that this question should be disposed of before the trial proceeded, but let Mr. Hartson finish his statement.

Peyser Raises Objection.

Maj. Peyser raised a technical objection to the suit, arguing that it should have been disposed of under another of the many actions involving the estate.

Justice Bailey told the attorneys he would not permit "anything regarding the personal character" of Mr. McLean to be testified to now, unless it was directly concerned with his actions as trustees of the estate.

"I may permit it later," he added.

Maj. Peyser moved to dismiss the suit on the ground that any step to remove Mr. McLean as trustee should have been taken under the proceedings which named him trustee, rather than in an independent action.

Mr. Hartson objected, and Justice Bailey reserved his ruling.

Maj. Peyser then sought to show that Mr. McLean's residence was in the District of Columbia.

TYDINGS HITS G.O.P. VIEW ON SMITH PLAN

(Associated Press.)

A claim in Republican quarters that the program advanced by Alfred E. Smith was "clearly akin" to that of President Hoover yesterday drew an immediate Democratic rejoinder that such a statement was "ludicrous."

Senator Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, expressed his view in a formal statement. But scarcely had it been uttered before Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, arose on the Senate floor to assert emphatically that Smith was far from in accord with Mr. Hoover.

The President himself yesterday read Smith's speech with interest. With parts of it he concurred.

In fact, W. Kingsland Macy, Republican leader in New York State, told newspapermen after a luncheon at the White House that he had discussed Smith's address with the Chief Executive and considered it "pretty favorable for the President."

Hoover Remains Silent.

Macy said the 1928 Democratic standard bearer "came out for many of the suggestions clearly a part of Mr. Hoover's program."

The President himself remained publicly silent upon it. From others who discussed it with him during the day, however, it was gathered that he objected particularly to Smith's statement that the plan under which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would "lend money to States will be entirely ineffective."

It was the contention of administration leaders that sufficient provision was made in the President's plan to get this money to the States desiring it for relief, despite some local laws prohibiting direct borrowing from the Federal Government. Smith referred to these laws as a bar.

Senator Moses in his statement referred, not only to Smith, but also to Speaker Garner of the House. Of Garner he said:

"Mr. Garner evidently thinks to make headway with a stalled campaign by continuing a personal assault upon the President of the United States."

As for Smith, Moses said the former New York governor presented with "wider and clear vision" a program for his party, closely akin to the program President Hoover "has been trying to enforce upon Congress for six months or more."

Tydings' Reply.

Tydings said in reply that "any statement that Mr. Smith is in accord with a Hoover program is about as ludicrous a thing as there could be."

He reiterated a demand that Mr. Hoover give his position on wine, beer and the eighteenth amendment, and added that he commended to him "Mr. Smith's candor."

"Sincere Mr. Smith came out for beer, wine, repeal of the eighteenth amendment, a debt moratorium on foreign loans for twenty years, a relief bond issue and against further payments to veterans," he said.

"I don't know but that we are in turn entitled to congratulate Mr. Hoover that he and Mr. Smith have so much in common, as pointed out by the statement issued by the senator from New Hampshire," Tydings said.

Academy just before the World War, and supervised the training of men for the Coast Guard service after the United States entered the conflict. A short time later he returned to Washington and directed coast activities until his death.

From his sick room, the stricken official continued to direct the search in New Jersey waters for the kidnapers of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's infant son. He constantly mentioned the kidnaping and died only a short time before the Treasury Department ordered the search discontinued after it was revealed the mysterious ship bearing the kidnapers was a hoax.

Mrs. Billard is his sole survivor. Funeral ervices will be held Friday at 11 a. m. from St. Margaret's Church. Interment will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Mills Telegraphs Widow.

Secretary of the Treasury Mills last night sent the following telegram to Mrs. Billard:

"Dear Mrs. Billard: I learned with great grief this afternoon of the passing away of Admiral Billard. In the course of the years during which we have been associated in the public service, I formed not only the highest respect for his character and abilities, but a very real affection for him as a man. His going leaves me with a deep sense of personal loss.

"The Government has lost a most devoted, able and trusted public servant. I speak for all of his associates in the Treasury Department, as well as myself, in extending to you our deepest sympathies and in letting you know how thoroughly we share your grief. Sincerely yours,

The encyclical will say that if more time were given to God the question of unemployment, which is troubling so many nations, would be less intense and the fever for excessive production consequently would diminish.

Prayers and atonements are the only two means of alleviating these evils, the encyclical will say.

The encyclical will be published in the Osservatore Romano, semiofficial Vatican organ, and a summary will be broadcast from the Vatican City station, beginning at 3 p. m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow.

SPEECH DISTORTED, GLOVER MAINTAINS

Assistant Postmaster General Denies He Referred to Partisan Politics.

(Associated Press.)

A statement that in addressing Missouri postmasters last Saturday he made no demand that they support President Hoover for reelection but asked them to stand back of the Executive in his relief efforts was made yesterday by W. Irving Glover, Assistant Postmaster General.

Glover said he made no reference to "partisan politics" and that portions of his speech had been "distorted so as to create a grossly misleading impression."

The speech led to demands for Glover's resignation Monday by Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, and Representative Fulbright (Democrat), Missouri.

Fulbright telephoned the postoffice official yesterday and asked exactly what he did say in his speech. Glover's reply was substantially the same as a formal statement he issued later.

Urged Support for President.

"We are all Americans and our country is going through perilous times and, whether we are Republicans, Democrats, Socialists or prohibitionists, all should stand four-square back of our President," he said he told the postmasters.

"It is time for all of us, including the postmasters, to be on the firing line to assist in every way and to support the President's program to bring this Nation out of the serious times through which we are passing.

"If there are any postmasters who do not want to do this, it is up to them to resign, and I will be glad to take their resignations back to Washington with me, where I will be Monday."

Glover added it still was his opinion "that it is the duty of all American citizens, whether they hold official positions or otherwise, to support their President in his effort to restore normal economic conditions."

Associated Press Report.

The Associated Press report of Glover's Springfield speech follows:

"Urging Missouri postmasters to defend and support Herbert Hoover, W. Irving Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster General, told the postmasters' State convention here today, 'As long as you do that you are filling the job of postmaster.'

"'You are a part of this administration,' he said. 'It is best for us to get out on the firing line. I shall be back in Washington Monday, and I will be glad to take the resignations of any of you postmasters who do not want to do it.'

"Answering those who say that America needs a leader, Glover declared: 'We've got a leader. We have had one for years. If we do not stand back of Mr. Hoover, regardless of party, God help this country.'"

Asked yesterday if the Associated Press had quoted him correctly, Glover said that it had.

SMITH RESIGNATION DEMANDED IN HOUSE

Veterans' Bureau Counsel Accused as "Incompetent" in Resolution.

(Associated Press.)

The House military committee yesterday approved a resolution asking that Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, Veterans' Administrator, demand the resignation of William Wolff Smith, general counsel of the Veterans' Administration.

The resolution was approved unanimously. It will not be sent to the House for action, but delivered to Administrator Hines.

Representative James (Republican), Michigan, moved that Smith's resignation be demanded. Representative Hill (Democrat), Alabama, presented a written resolution and it was accepted.

The resolution said it was the sense of the committee "that the administrator of veterans' affairs should discharge from service William Wolff Smith on the ground of incompetency and unfitness."

The resignation of Mr. Smith was demanded in a lengthy resolution by Representative Blanton (Democrat), Texas, which also asked repeal of the disabled emergency officers retirement act under which Smith has been drawing $187.50 a month retirement pay from the Federal Government, as well as his Veterans' Administration salary of $9,000 a year.

Following testimony by Veterans' Administrator Gen. Hines that he did not favor such "double benefits," Mr. Smith made a statement to the committee that so long as he remained in the employ of the Government, he would return his retirement pay to the Federal Treasury.

6 Boys and Girls Are Guests Of First Lady on Circus Trip

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Herbert Hoover took six little boys and girls to a circus yesterday and provided them with every delight of the sawdust kingdom—even live chameleons to take home.

Three to 12 years old, the youngsters squealed and clapped and gaped at the sights while the President's wife and several grown-ups smiled over their heads.

The children were Patsy and Billy Butler, Suzanne Boone, French Strother, jr., Russell Train and John Marshall Newton—small sons and daughters of White House officials. Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, Vice President Curtis' sister, was there, too.

There was some excitement when the party was escorted to a ringside box near the center of the big top, with secret service men and the President's aids and circus people making way; but after that the group faded into the crowd and enjoyed the thrills, unnoticed even by many performers.

The chameleons, crawling in small boxes with transparent tops, were distributed soon after the show started. They vied with some of the acts, but couldn't hold attention when the clowns came around.

Just before it was all over the children had ice cream cones. They consumed them expertly, but were careful to miss none of the show.

MONTANA TO PRESS PLANK FOR REPEAL

Democrats Pledge 8 Votes to Roosevelt; G.O.P. for Referendum.

Helena, Mont., May 17 (A.P.).—Montana Democrats today instructed delegates to their national convention to work for a prohibition repeal plank while Republicans, also in State meeting [illegible] a national referendum on the liquor question.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York was pledged Montana's eight Democratic presidential convention votes.

President Hoover received indorsement of the Republican convention and the pledge of its eleven delegates for his nomination.

Bruce Kremer, national committeeman, told the Democratic convention Gov. Roosevelt "opposes such sumptuary laws as the prohibition amendment to the Constitution."

"Gov. Roosevelt," he said, "represents the liberal leadership necessary to strike off once again the shackles of the American people and allow them the chance to live their own lives and earn their bread."

The Democrats cheered the mention of repeal and the name of Gov. Roosevelt.

The party delegation to Chicago was instructed to use its efforts to "bring about the adoption of a resolution in the national convention calling for a repeal of the prohibition laws of this country."

Meanwhile the Republican State convention, in session here, heard its keynote speaker call prohibition a "failure."

Harold A. Hoover, Great Falls attorney, in striking the keynote at the Republican gathering, also called for support of President Hoover.

"If we again declare for the proper enforcement of the sumptuary legislation," Hoover said, "we must support and finance a thoroughgoing campaign to make this enforcement effective. If we declare for repeal or modification, we must be advocates of that declaration. Prohibition is a failure and the results of an attempted enforcement a travesty."

Woodrum Files for Race To Keep Place in House

(Associated Press.)

Representative Woodrum, of Roanoke, yesterday mailed his notice of candidacy to Lawrence S. Davis, chairman of the Sixth District Democratic congressional committee. The notice was accompanied by the required petition signed by 250 qualified voters.

There are only sixteen days remaining in which candidates for Congress may file, and those unopposed on the final filing date—June 2—will be declared nominees. Even though he is not opposed, Mr. Woodrum said, he plans a tour of a month or six weeks through his district after adjournment of Congress. He expects to spend a considerable time in the three new counties added to the district by the General Assembly.

New Elector Rule System Explained

Page Says States Have One for Each Senator and Representative.

(Associated Press.)

To clear up any misunderstanding as to the number of presidential electors to be named by each State in the November elections, William Tyler Page, House minority clerk, said yesterday the States were bound by law to select one for each representative in Congress allotted by the new apportionment and one for each senator.

Mr. Page, former veteran clerk of the House, and an authority on the Constitution, said confusion over whether the old or new apportionments should guide the election of members of the electoral college arises after each reassignment of House members on the basis of decennial censuses.

"The new apportionment is always used and must be used under the law," he said. Thus, States losing one member under the new apportionment, as for instance in Alabama or Nebraska, will choose one less elector this year. On the same basis, California, which gains 9 House seats under the reapportionment, will name 22 electors instead of 13 as in 1928.

Illinois Election Mix-Up Unscrambled by Court

Springfield, Ill., May 17 (A.P.).—The State Supreme Court today unscrambled the mix-up of two Cook County courts which claimed jurisdiction over special grand juries appointed to investigate alleged attempts of gangsters to steal the recent Illinois primary election.

The action of Circuit Court Judge Michael Feinberg, himself an unsuccessful candidate for Republican nomination for State's attorney, in calling one of the special grand juries was held invalid. The two special grand juries impaneled just before the April primary election in Chicago are still in existence, but neither has done any work, each awaiting the supreme court decision.

Bill on Dam Labor Defended by Oddie

(Associated Press.)

Senator Oddie (Republican), Nevada, testified yesterday to the Senate irrigation committee that the Six Companies, Inc., were "resisting the application of labor and mine safety laws" of Nevada in building the gigantic Hoover Dam.

Oddie's statement came in support of his bill to extend to the project State laws governing safety regulation, taxation and the voting privilege. This is opposed by Secretary Wilbur. Difficulties between the State and the companies, if allowed to continue, "will seriously burden the carrying out of the Government's plan in construction of the "dam," Oddie said.

He looked upon opposition of Secretary Wilbur to the bill as being "obviously solely in the interest of the possible exemption of the Six Companies, Inc., from the payment of State and local taxes." The committee will not act on the bill until after hearing witnesses for the Reclamation Bureau.

CONNECTICUT GIVES 16 VOTES TO SMITH

Cummings Calls Pledge "Good-Will Gesture;" Minority for Roosevelt.

Hartford, Conn., May 17 (A.P.).—A prolonged cheer drowned out scattering shouts of disapproval today as the Democratic State convention pledged Connecticut's sixteen votes to the presidential candidacy of Alfred E. Smith as long as his name is before the national meeting.

A roll call was not taken, the resolution being adopted in a wild chorus of approval.

A minority of the delegates elected to the Chicago convention favor Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, but these members can not vote for him until released by Smith. Roosevelt's name was not mentioned during the session.

Homer S. Cummings, former national Democratic chairman and an adviser in Roosevelt's campaign, termed the Smith resolution a gesture of good will.

"It was a sympathetic recognition of the affection that the Democrats of Connecticut bear toward the former Governor of New York," he said.

Thirty-four delegates will go to Chicago. Ten will represent the congressional districts, with a full vote each, and of these four were regarded as favorable to Roosevelt.

The 24 delegates-at-large will have one-fourth vote each. Thirteen favor Smith, nine Roosevelt, and Gov. Cross and State Chairman David A. Wilson are considered neutral.

GROSS CHILD DECREE IS UPSET ON APPEAL

Appellate Court Again Puts Daughter's Parentage Issue in Doubt.

Chicago, May 17 (A.P.).—As far as the Illinois courts were concerned, Anna, the 4-year-old daughter of the former Mrs. Christian Channing Gross, was still without a legal father.

The appellate bench set aside today a decree, issued by Judge Joseph David, that held Gross, author, soldier and diplomat, as the child's father.

Capt. Gross and his former wife, the daughter of a former governor general of the Philippines, were divorced in 1930. The diplomat won the decree on grounds of desertion. He reopened the decree, seeking an amendment setting out that he was the father of Mrs. Gross' daughter. Anna, of whose existence he said he was not aware at the time of the divorce. Gross sought to establish the child's legitimacy so that she might share in an $850,000 trust fund set up for two other children, Peter and Barbara, whose custody he was awarded.

The appellate judges ruled Judge David had no right to pass upon the child's legitimacy; that it was not within Judge David's province to alter the divorce decree.

In the hearing before Judge David, attorneys for Mrs. Gross sought to introduce into evidence the child's reputed birth certificate that gave the girl's father as Marius de Zayas, Mexican dancer.

Mrs. Gross is the daughter of Francis Burton Harrison, several times representative from New York and governor general of the Philippines under President Wilson. Capt. Gross was formerly attached to the American legations in Geneva and Ottawa.

The appellate court's action probably stopped Capt. Gross from seeking the custody of Mrs. Gross' youngest child. She contended the child was not Capt. Gross' in the hearing before Judge David and has declared her intentions to hold custody.

Convicted Man, Forgotten, Left 8 Months in Death Cell

Raleigh, N. C., May 17 (A.P.).—The strange case of a man placed in State prison's death row nearly eight months ago, under sentence of electrocution and then forgotten, was discovered here today.

The man is Willie Rector, convicted in Burke County of a rape charge and sentenced to die in the electric chair last October 2. Prison officials said the youth, just 19 years old, had lived from day to day in the belief that any hour he might be called out and led to the execution chamber, a few feet from his cell.

The strain of the seven months' uncertainty, they added, has affected the mind of the prisoner.

A confusion of records produced the situation. Inquiry of the Burke County clerk of court today, disclosed that notice of appeal in proper form had been given in Rector's behalf after he was convicted and due notice served upon prison officials. Under the law this notice served as a stay of execution.

But through an oversight the record in the case was not sent to the Supreme Court, although a transcript of the judgment was filed. In the absence of the record the case was not docketed.

A. A. F. Seawell, assistant attorney general, presented the case to the Supreme Court today, advising the members he was doing so as a matter of information, with the hope of getting the case straightened out. He made no motion.

From Burke County came a statement of the clerk of the Superior Court that he would have the record in Rector's case here by tomorrow for filing with the Supreme Court.

Bank Whose Executive Ended Life Is Closed

Fort Wayne, Ind., May 17 (A.P.).—The Citizens Trust Co., whose executive vice president and secretary, Will B. Gutelius, committed suicide yesterday, was closed today and its affairs were taken over by the State banking department. An autopsy on Gutelius disclosed a brain tumor.

Thomas Barr, deputy State banking commissioner, came here to take charge of the bank. Gaylord B. Leslie, president, has stated the bank is solvent. The bank's last report gave its capitalization as $500,000, its surplus as $500,000 and deposits $3,000,000.

CHARITY TO BE AIDED BY HOUSE OF MERCY

Garden Party Will Be Revived on Cathedral Grounds Tomorrow Afternoon.

A novel program of entertainment will be offered tomorrow afternoon when the House of Mercy presents its annual garden party in the grounds of the National Cathedral, Wisconsin and Massachusetts avenues northwest. Proceeds will go to charity.

The event will be the first of its kind sponsored by the organization in three years. For more than twenty years it had been a practice to hold the garden party in the spring, but this was discontinued some time ago and other methods were tried to raise funds for charity.

It was decided by the board of managers of the House of Mercy, however, to revive the custom this year. Elaborate plans have been completed for the enjoyment of young and old.

Among features of the program will be pony rides for children, in charge of Mrs. Charles Wilson, a lucky fish pond arranged by girls at Holton Arms School; grab bags and an ice cream stand presided over by Miss Caroline F. Smith.

Other features will include fortune telling, music and all kinds of games and novelties.

(Associated Press.)

Congress found itself running short of funds for the Congressional Record and for printing committee hearings and similar purposes, but was assured of $500,000 more yesterday when President Hoover signed a resolution appropriating that sum.

About $2,500,000 annually is appropriated for printing and binding by the Government office.

FINISH AND ADJOURN.

Reports from Capitol Hill that a summer session is contemplated are a severe blow to the whole country. Business and industry are counting on an adjournment about June 10. Legislative uncertainty has been a handicap to recovery for several months. It was hoped that that handicap would be removed before the holding of the national conventions, and business interests have been gathering strength for a fresh assault upon the depression as soon as Congress gives them a chance. If prospects of settled conditions during the summer fade out of the picture, a fresh pall of gloom will settle over the entire country.

Congress has more than three weeks in which to dispose of its unfinished business. Speaker Garner gives assurance that the House will be ready to adjourn by June 4, which means that the adjournment is dependent entirely upon the Senate. That body is making good progress with the tax bill. It has shown a disposition to cling to the recommendations of its finance committee. A strong nonpartisan group of Republicans and Democrats are supporting the committee bill. Indications are that they will be able to put the bill through the Senate in substantially its present form. If so, the Senate could finish up its work on the tax bill this week.

Appropriation bills have been given careful consideration by committees of both houses. They should not require extensive debate on the floor of the Senate. The economy bill is being whipped into shape, and since the issues that it will involve are already well understood, it should not be a major source of delay. Non-partisan efforts are being made to shape a relief measure. It would not be impossible to rush this project through before June 10, if politics could be left in the background. Congress can move with remarkable speed when it is so inclined. Even failure of the relief project would be less disturbing than a summer session of Congress.

At present the two major parties are cooperating with a view to balancing the budget. The Senate is disposing of its business with a minimum of political influence. That attitude may be expected to prevail until the adjournment for the political conventions. If the business of Congress has been wound up by that time, the political volcanoes can erupt without disturbing the movement toward economic recovery. But if the budget remains unbalanced and the fate of other legislation remains in doubt, another raid on confidence and further deflation may be expected.

After the conventions non-partisan action would be impossible. Every measure before Congress would be thrown into the seething caldron of politics. Congressmen would use the floors of the House and Senate for political speeches, and legislation would soon reach a stalemate. The country has already witnessed two stampedes in the House. What could be expected when the political campaigns were in full swing? Passage of the bonus-inflation bill by that body would be almost a certainty. Radical measures of all varieties would be pressed forward to cure the depression.

Every sober-minded congressman must dread the prospects of such an orgy, yet not one of them will have power enough to prevent it if Congress returns to Washington for a post-convention session. Every possible effort should be directed toward the completion of all essential measures before June 10. Members of Congress are working long hours and under a terrific strain, but the energy required to bring about an adjournment within the next three weeks is inconsequential in comparison with the energy that would be wasted in futile wrangling during a summer session.

Adjournment before the conventions is the only reasonable course that Congress can take. Let the leaders of the Senate map out a course for the disposition of each essential bill and hold rigidly to that schedule until its business is completed.

PATRIOTISM ABOVE POLITICS.

Alfred E. Smith skipped over the whole range of economic problems confronting the United States in his radio address from New York. Nearly every phase of the crisis arising out of the depression was illuminated by his frank and courageous pronouncements. As a candidate for the Presidency Mr. Smith refreshes the public with his candor. Millions will disagree with his proposals, but few will fail to give him credit for plain speech.

In other respects Mr. Smith's address was admirable. It contained no partisan bitterness. Instead of denouncing President Hoover and every policy that he has enunciated, as Democratic aspirants for the presidential nomination are wont to do, Al Smith agreed in several matters with the man who defeated him in 1928. He urged Congress to give the President "the full responsibility and power which he has asked in the immediate consolidation of government activities and bureaus and in other ways to reduce the cost of government". Likewise he supported the Hoover moratorium and criticized Congress for taking from the President authority to deal with the international debts situation when it again arises at the expiration of the so-called Hoover year.

With striking impartiality Mr. Smith condemned "all blocs, cabals, insurgencies and mugwump tactics, by whatever name they be called, which bedevil legislation, increase the depression, unsettle business and endanger our credit at home and abroad". He pleaded with Congress to act for the good of the country, regardless of what "the boys back home" might think. In this appeal Mr. Smith rose far above politics and addressed himself directly to the national welfare.

Al Smith's reputation is based on his championship of the common people. Yet he will not stoop to the ruse of "soaking the rich" to aid the unemployed, as so many less courageous politicians in Congress have done. "Soak the rich", he says, "and you soak labor. Confiscatory taxation of capital prevents the flow of money into industry. The greater and freer the flow of capital, the quicker industry will revive, and the quicker widespread unemployment will cease. The demagogue won't agree to that, but it's true just the same".

In spite of the fact that his party revolted against the sales tax in the House, Mr. Smith advocates that means of raising revenue as the most practical way of meeting the present emergency. In trying to revive the sales tax his courage exceeds his judgment, but that only illustrates the straight-forward manner in which Al Smith is acquainting the country with his views.

A number of projects in the Smith program of national regeneration are wholly fanciful, including his plan for stimulating exports through gradual cancellation of the war debts and his proposed tax on beer. In view of what he has said about economy and taxation, his program of unemployment relief through public works financed by a huge bond issue is also out of place. The remarkable thing about Mr. Smith's address is not its originality or the power of constructive thought displayed, but its honest candor.

In the hearts of millions of Americans Al Smith is still the Happy Warrior. The widespread popular appeal of his remarks should encourage other Democratic candidates to reveal the secrets cherished in their bosoms for the salvation of America.

BUDDY POPPIES.

During the week of Memorial Day the so-called Buddy Poppies, made by disabled and needy ex-service men in government hospitals and distributed through the branches of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will be on sale in the streets.

These bright red flowers are an institution. They were first introduced in 1922, and year after year have been welcomed by the public as a means of assisting disabled veterans.

The poppies bear an identification tag indicating their authenticity. The profits from their sale go to maintain the National Home for Widows and Orphans of Ex-Service Men, in Michigan, and to relief activities in general.

This year the need is said to be especially acute, and citizens who contribute toward the success of the 1932 appeal will have the satisfaction of knowing that their aid has been given at a moment when it is doubly appreciated and doubly effective.

BRAINS OF CONGRESS.

Dr. Arthur MacDonald, Washington, anthropologist, has enlivened recent issues of the Congressional Record with the results of his study of congressmen's heads. Along with many other anthropologists, Dr. MacDonald believes there is a definite relationship between cranial capacity and intelligence. The application of this theory to congressional skulls, however, raises more doubts than it determines.

There is a distinct and substantial relationship, says Dr. MacDonald, between brain weight and legislative ability. His studies are based on the achievements and the crania of 18 senators and 71 representatives. According to his calculations, senators rank higher in both brain weight and legislative ability. Do events substantiate that view? The average weight of the senatorial brain is estimated at 52 ounces, compared with 50 ounces for representatives.

Lawmakers from the Southwestern States have the heaviest brains as a group. The smallest average heads come from the Pacific coast. Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma seem to have the longest heads. The anthropologist has not yet taken time to show in what section thick-headed congressmen are more numerous.

The largest brain discovered among the 89 members of Congress measured was that of an unnamed Irish-Scotch manufacturer. His mental machine is estimated to weigh 1,801 grams. This compares with a weight of 1,234 grams for the lightest brain in the group, which belongs to a Scotch-English business man. A Scotch-English lawyer has the longest head in the congressional group. An English-Scotch lawyer has the widest head, and a Dutch lawyer has the narrowest.

Unfortunately, Dr. MacDonald has not distinguished between Republicans and Democrats. His complete failure to mention that subject warrants the inference that his findings were so shocking that he dared not reveal them.

The collective findings of Dr. MacDonald's research are amusing, but practical results seem to be nil. Even if constituents were able to apply the so-called Lee formula for estimating the capacity of congressmen's heads, the perplexing question of quality versus quantity would always enter in. Scientists have not been able completely to disprove the old adage that valuable articles are done up in small packages. A skull may be beautifully formed and the measurements may indicate perfection. But who can estimate the thickness of the ivory?

On the whole, Dr. MacDonald has succeeded only in intriguing the imagination. Bewildered constituents must still rely upon the ancient and unscientific methods of judging the intelligence—or lack of it—that is locked within the beetling brows of legislators.

CAMPAIGN FUNDS.

Campaign funds will be considerably smaller this year. Both the Republicans and Democrats are finding that the public hasn't much to spend on politics. Contributions are much smaller and they come in very slowly. The Democratic "Victory Fund" committee is trying hard to be optimistic, but collecting money to pay for the defeat of Al Smith in 1928 is doubtless the hardest job its members have ever come up against.

Both parties spent lavishly in 1928. It is estimated that each national headquarters spent $3,500,000. Other groups spent enough to bring the estimated total cost of the campaigns up to $17,000,000. Politics can not be carried on without considerable expense, but the outlay of $17,000,000 to elect a President and a Congress is grossly extravagant and pernicious.

Candidates for public office who are accustomed to influencing votes through excessive use of money would do well not to advertise their prodigality this year. The electorate is not in a state of mind to be impressed by expensive campaigns. Economy is the watchword of the hour. Politicians are expected to practice it, as well as governments and individuals, if for no other reason than because it is sound public policy. Lavish campaigns while want and distress are abroad in the land would insult the electorate.

In spite of lean contributions, it is to be hoped that both parties will avoid debt. The deficit in the Democratic funds during the last four years has been a source of constant irritation and chagrin to that party. The difficulty which is now experienced in raising money to meet that obligation should be a lesson to campaign managers in the future. A party that gambles on the future places a severe handicap upon itself.

The Horticultural Review says that the season for grafting is over. This may be true throughout the rest of the country, but it does not apply to New York.

A preacher says the millennium is coming. His predecessors of a thousand years ago knew as much, and were just as cautious about saying when.

BANK DEPOSITS GROW

From the Atlanta Constitution.

The increase in bank deposits is pointed out by the Alexander Hamilton Institute as a natural sequel to the success of the relief efforts of the National Credit Corporation and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The Credit Corporation was formed to pool the credit of the banks of the country so that those in temporary difficulties could be tided over in a safe and sound way. The Reconstruction Corporation was evolved as an improvement upon the pool idea, in that it made possible the use of the facilities of the Federal Government to provide loans for solvent banks, insurance companies and other financial institutions.

When the Reconstruction Corporation was created by Congress it was thought that the demands upon it would not exceed $25,000,000 a week. Instead, the demand has now reached $100,000,000 a week.

This cash is going into circulation, through loans to the depositors of the Nation's banks, and in other ways.

Instead of the steady declines in bank deposits registered last fall and winter, these loans have caused deposits to swell. The Alexander Hamilton Institute sees in this expansion a signal of recovery "because easy money stimulates business like nothing else on earth."

The money in circulation in the South has already been increased by many millions, an increase in "ready cash" which is undoubtedly responsible for the growth in retail sales for this territory shown in the last Federal Reserve report.

There is no reason why conditions should not continue to improve under the wholesome influence of these new millions turned loose. The only thing that could stop it would be for hoarding to start up again, and nothing is to be feared from that source, because if there is one thing that the American people have learned during the last two trying years it is that an idle dollar aids neither its owner nor general conditions.

Up to the People.

POST HASTE

Al Smith made a radio speech for the sales tax, nonpartisan congressional action and ample executive power in this emergency. If a bit late, it showed what a good Republican he is getting to be.

Chicago expects 100,000 visitors to attend the two conventions, but the rub is that it will be necessary for them to spend $3.50 each if she is to get her money back.

In the first two months following suspension of the gold standard, and a drop of more than 25 per cent in the value of the pound, British wholesale prices rose 7 points. Since then they have been steadily falling again. Can depreciationists find any comfort in that?

Our old friend Count Uchida takes the optimist prize for his hope of securing American capital to expand the Japanese railway system in Manchuria.

Couldn't the name "Republican" be copyrighted, even at this late day, to prevent it being used by impostors?

Lunaticus Lausanno is the diagnosis for any who think Germany is going to the June conference with any cash, or that France will ever concede armament reduction without guarantees of security.

When the Upper House opposes the extreme demands of Norris, Borah, La Follette, Couzens and Long, all in one day, it sounds like that senatorial sanity we used to read about.

Steam now competes even with Niagara. Gov. Roosevelt's water-power campaign should have muffled this fact until after election.

Definitely, finally, for unarguable reasons Owen Young says: "I can not accept a nomination for the Presidency if made." Some folks think he is trying to say he does not choose to run.

When Senator Lewis criticizes the administration he says it with such flowers of speech that it seems complimentary.

Business is entirely dead, but every day in the United States freight is still loaded that would fill a train as long as from New York to 50 miles beyond Chicago.

A lot of the old boys are equipped with very efficient self-starters, but only the Young type have self-stoppers.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

A MUCH OVERRATED ACHIEVEMENT.

I shot a golf ball up and up,
It fell and landed in the cup.
My caddie said: "You've went an' gone
An' got yourself a hole in one."

Good friends came running from afar,
Shouting: "A lucky dog you are!
You'll get free stuff to drink and smoke,
In recognition of the stroke.

"Right to your door they'll carve a trail
With sarsaparilla, ginger ale,
Golf balls and clubs and sweaters, too,
For holes in one they always do!"

Unto my sorrow now I find
The ad boys are no longer kind:
Instead of goods and silver plate,
They send a nice certificate.

No ginger ale; no cigarettes;
No reading lamps or smoking sets
Are given now for holes in one.
The good old days are dead and gone.

The hole in one you strive to make
Must now be done for virtue's sake
And mention in some book next fall,
But that is absolutely all!

Almost All Things Are Dangerous to an Infant That Doesn't Know Their Use.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A MAN of science has discovered another fragment of truth and now promises a cure for secondary pneumonia.

The diaphragm and the muscles used in the act of breathing are controlled by nerves that lead to a kind of power house in the lower part of the brain. This power house derives its energy or stimulation from a gas called carbon dioxide.

But, you say, carbon dioxide is a poison. Quite true. But poison is merely some useful thing in the wrong place.

The lungs draw in life-giving oxygen and the blood stream carries it to all parts of the body. When the oxygen is consumed, the ash that remains is carbon dioxide. This the blood carries back to the lungs, which breathe it out as refuse.

But the system retains enough to operate the power house. This is the truth discovered by the man of science.

Observe now the nice scheme of nature. Carbon dioxide is a poison which must be expelled by the lungs. Very well; use this poison to operate the power house which controls the act of breathing. What is the result? The more carbon dioxide there is in the system, the more fuel the power house will have to operate the lungs and draw in purifying oxygen.

The value of the discovery is obvious. When the patient breathes an unnatural quantity of carbon dioxide, the respiratory center in his brain is stimulated; his lung cells are ventilated under pressure, and he is cured of the secondary pneumonia that follows drowning, asphyxiation or the inhalation of ether.

Another triumph for science. Yet, as always, nothing more than the finding of an age-old fact.

Has it occurred to you that the infinite intelligence of the Creator has arranged all things well?

Sunlight has always been the source of life, yet ages passed before scientiste discovered the value of the ultra-violet ray.

Nature's colors have always been blue and green, yet this generation was the first to learn that these colors soothe the nerves.

Men have fought weeds since the first plow turned a furrow, and now they discover that no cultivated plant can build and enrich soil as weeds do.

PRO AND CON

Taxpayers Heard From.
Philadelphia Public Ledger.

"We shall have to watch our step," remarked a representative from Pennsylvania to a colleague the other day, according to a Washington correspondent, "for the folk back home are beginning to check up on us." Any newspaper editor, glancing over his morning mail, could testify to the truth of this statement. Not only are the correspondence columns filled with protests against the wasting of the people's money and plans for imposing outrageously burdensome taxes, but all over the land citizens are taking the trouble, for the first time, to write direct to their congressmen on these subjects.

There is no doubt that the carryings-on in Congress have hit the "pocket nerve" of millions of hitherto uncomplaining taxpayers. And they are beginning in consequence to manifest a new and refreshing interest in the conduct of their Government. So long as the Government took most of its revenue out of the pockets of the rich and the big corporations, the average citizen refused to get excited. Now that he may be asked to make a contribution to governmental expenses that will put a large dent in his moderate and dwindling income, no one is more vehement in demanding that those expenses be cut to the limit and that some one devise a system of taxes that will be more easily borne.

The Beer Parade.
New York Sun.

Mayor Walker's beer parade must have delighted him. The crowd rose as froth to the occasion. Just why it was held remains a puzzle. Every legislator in this part of the country is thoroughly wet; none needed to be impressed by the uprising. But, as old Kaspar insisted to little Peterkin, it was a famous victory. Watching the perspiring marchers, viewing with sympathy the plight of persons whose business errands were interfered with by the police arrangements, the question rose: How many citizens of this town would sally forth so enthusiastically to parade in protest against graft, racketeering, waste, extravagance and overtaxation?

Self-Examination.
Boston Transcript.

Well, if our congressmen are really our "representatives," the rest of us ought right away to begin some serious self-searching of heart and head.

Proven Incapacity.
Schenectady Union Star.

The instant and emphatic response of the country to the leadership of President Hoover in his course in calling Congress sharply to account indicates the eagerness with which the country will follow a strong man with positive convictions and a constructive program. Political labels mean little; it's the man who can lead who counts. The echoes of the President's message had scarcely died in the two houses of Congress before the Senate finance committee got down to work on Secretary Mills' new tax bill. In the House, Democrats were bewailing their own incapacity and hastening to do something to retrieve some sort of standing. It has done irreparable damage to Democratic political chances. The public more than ever is convinced of Democratic incapacity to govern.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Gallery Observer Protests Against Filibuster in Senate—Debate Should Be Limited.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Nero fiddled while Rome burned. A mouthy senator filibusters while the Nation verges on economic and social ruin.

Is there much to choose between the two acts? Is not the conduct of a conceited demagogue as reprehensible as that of the Roman tyrant? Is not his example as grave an indictment of American democracy as Nero's was of Roman imperialism? Nero at least was something of an artist, while the senatorial filibuster is a common bore.

The irresistible conclusion is that the Senate takes itself much too seriously in refusing to adopt effective rules for limiting debate, and that in thus standing on its traditional dignity it actually imperils our form of government. It may prove that American democracy will be smothered in talk as empires have been swamped in blood. If the present condition of affairs goes on, the recent petulant remark in the Senate about America's need of a Mussolini may take a place in history among the prophetic utterances.

GALLERY OBSERVER.

Mr. Powell Calls for Hydro-Electric Development of Great Falls.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One means for relieving the depression and giving a permanent asset to this entire region would be to build a hydro-electric plant at Great Falls on the Potomac.

It would conform to President Hoover's specification of an income-producing investment and would also provide a water supply reservoir for this entire metropolitan area.

Of course these improvements should conform to the esthetic requirements of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

This development would be one producing income and lowering the cost of living for generations to come, and should be constructed at such a time as this when prices are low. The costs of labor, materials, and money are about as low as we can expect them to be for years.

With cheap power available, this region could develop clean, quiet industrial enterprises that would give employment to thousands.

Here at the gateway of the south, with its unsurpassed water transportation as well as railroads and highways, and a wonderful climate, could be developed an ideal industrial community.

This hydro-electric development should be constructed by a private corporation with proper safeguards for the rights of the public, but with a government loan, through the new Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

We may expect the opposition of vested power interests.

DILWORTH POWELL.

Admiral Kittelle Indorses Suggestion That Citizens Organize to Help Law Authorities.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The editorial in The Washington Post Sunday, May 15, entitled "Up to the People," is an admirable solution for the crime problem and one adopted by us in the frontier days and in California in 1849.

Why not start immediately with the organization of a vigilance committee in Washington, to be followed by similar ones in other communities throughout the country? Cooperating with the Government, these committees should proceed at once to round up all gunmen, gangsters, racketeers and others of criminal propensities, and, while we may not hang them to the nearest lamppost, we can act with sufficient vigor to quickly and completely break up organized crime in America.

In Isaiah 11:6 are found the words: "And a little child shall lead them." Let us assume that the little Lindbergh boy is that child, and let the American people arise as one man and stamp out organized crime from their midst.

Massachusetts Correspondent Berates Organized Foes of Economy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I see that voters are being urged to "support" their congressmen, to cheer and encourage them in their exhausting and dubious struggle against the foes of economy.

Who are these foes? Who are they who, when economy is a crying national need, venture to combat it? They are the lobbies, organizations whose sole function is to see that on national issues the national needs be disregarded and that individual, sectional and special interests displace them, parasites upon the body of the national eagle, minding not if they kill their host so long as each one gets his share of the blood.

Why is this permitted? Why, in this crisis do we make this pitiful defense against this one single evil work of these lobbies instead of attacking the lobbies themselves? Are we to confess impotence that we can protect neither the interests of our once proud Nation nor the dignity of our representatives against such an abuse?

The Louis XVI antique gold centerpiece was used to decorate the banquet table. Consisting of a center plateau, placques and mirrors, the service formed an effective background for the profusion of flowers which were arranged down the center of the table. Yellow iris, yellow snapdragon, pink roses, pink snapdragon, a spray of white deutzia and maidenhair fern were attractively arranged. The flowers were arranged in low designs, ovals and crescents, and the ferns were scattered all over the table. Palms were banked around the Chinese room, where the dinner was served.

The gold service is only used on state occasions. It was used at a dinner given at the Mayflower recently by the Danish Minister and Mme. Wadsted.

Esta Brook Charity Fete To Open This Afternoon.

One of the most brilliant outdoor festivals of the spring season will open this afternoon, when the Esta Brook charity fete gets under way at the Rock Creek Park estate of Col. and Mrs. Arthur O'Brien. The estate is on Albemarle street.

Beginning at 4 o'clock, the combined sports carnival, circus, tea party and lawn festival is expected to attract hundreds of persons interested in the unusual entertainments and the local charities for which they are given.

The entertainment committee of the fete has been fortunate enough to have Chief Marcellus Hawk, of the Seneca Tribe, donate his services.

Chief Hawk is the inaugural artist, and at the present time is making a statue of the Vice President, Mr. Charles Curtis. Chief Hawk will make sketches from life, and give character readings to the patrons of the fete, which will be unusually interesting, because of the fact that he attributes his attainments as an artist to his adherence to American Indian ethics in their expression of pure nature for spiritual and inspirational influence.

Although special invitations have been issued to a distinguished group of Washingtonians, the committee in charge has pointed out that no invitation is necessary to gain admittance to the fete.

Tennis matches between the highest ranking players of the District, side shows, swimming contests, pony rides for children, refreshment booths and a variety of divertissements are listed on the fete program. Organized under the direction of Mrs. John R. There are really two steps to cleansing
Wiping cleansing cream off with tissues or a cloth does not remove all the cream. It is just like washing your face and not rinsing it thoroughly.
After you have used your cleansing cream, ALWAYS remove every particle of surface oil with cotton dipped in Skin Freshener, so your skin can breathe. That is what Primrose Skin Freshener is for. It is a toning lotion, too. Used with Primrose Rose Leaf Cleansing Cream, it gives your skin a perfect cleansing. Try this new way and see if your complexion does not look cleaner and healthier.

SMITH WILL DEFEND TRIO IN BANK HOLDUP

Former State Legislator Is Retained in Arlington County Robberies.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Charles Henry Smith, of Alexandria, Va., former member of the House of Delegates of Virginia, has been retained as counsel for Sergt. John A. Velke, of the Army Medical Corps, Fort Humphreys, Va., and William Babcock, of 718 Eighteenth street northwest, Washington, indicted in the Arlington County Circuit Court on three charges of assault in connection with robberies at the East Falls Church Bank, the Clarendon terminal of the Washington, Maryland & Virginia Coach Co., and the terminal of the Arlington-Fairfax Railway, and George T. Belew, of 2213 Rhode Island avenue northeast, Washington, indicted on three charges of aiding and abetting an assault.

Attorney Smith stated that he is giving consideration to bond for his clients. It is expected that the cases will come before the court at the June term, he said.

Another robbery in Cherrydale, reported within the past 24 hours, is keeping the Arlington County police on the jump.

This report came from a chain store, which revealed that entrance had been gained by forcing a rear door. The safe was found open, as was the one at the American Drug Store Tuesday morning, but in this case no money was found. A small quantity of cigarettes were reported taken.

The Arlington County board, at an adjourned meeting held last night at the courthouse, adopted a resolution indorsing the bill in the House of Representatives introduced by Representative Howard W. Smith, providing for the Memorial Bridge approach.

It was set forth in the resolution that favorable action on the bill will end much uncertainty as to when the Federal Government is going to construct the roadway from the bridge to the point where it will connect with the Lee boulevard, thereby aiding the county in securing the needed rights of way to have the State complete the Lee boulevard in the direction of the bridge.

The county manager was instructed to send copies of the resolution to Senator Carter Glass and Representative Smith.

In an effort to bring about a special election on the question of whether or not Arlington County shall remain under the provisions of the Byrd road act as passed by the last session of the General Assembly, 100 petitions have been placed in circulation by the special committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation, according to an announcement last night by the chairman, William C. Hull.

The petitions are being circulated through the various sections of the county by the civic associations located in each, and the committee hopes to have the required number of signatures by the end of this month.

Under the provisions of the act, an election can only be held upon the presentation to the judge of the circuit court of a petition bearing the names of 25 per cent of the qualified voters, based upon the total number of votes in the last county election. The act further provides that the election must be called by July 1 and held on Tuesday, August 9.

Persons who failed to pay their poll taxes this year but who were qualified to vote in the last county election will be allowed to vote at the special election, if called.

There will be a special meeting of the recently appointed delegates to the State Democratic convention, which meets in Richmond June 9, this evening at the Arlington County Courthouse. The meeting is being held, it is announced, for the purpose of perfecting an organization in preparation for the convention.

Mrs. Gladys I. Monroe, president of the Arlington County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations, is announced as the principal speaker at the meeting tomorrow evening of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Stonewall Jackson School at Mulhall. Officers will be elected.

The Fidelis Circle of St. George's Episcopal Church will hold its monthly meeting today at 1 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Sara Elizabeth Carl, Garanda Terrace, Lyon Village.

Taxpayers in the vicinity of Ballston will be assisted by Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green and his deputies tomorrow night, from 7 to 9 o'clock, at the Ballston Firemen's Hall, in preparing their personal property and income tax returns. All tax returns must be filed by June 1.

Highways Get $660 In Prince Georges

Sum Is Appropriated for Special Road Repairs and Bridges.

The Prince Georges County commissioners yesterday appropriated $660 for special road repairs and bridge construction in the county. Three culverts on the Branchville-Glenn Dale road will be built at a cost of $360, and a $150 culvert will be placed on the Beaver Dam road near Beltsville. Money from both these projects will come from the bridge fund, while $150 for repairs to the Branchville road will be taken from the dog fund. These repairs will be made on the stretch between the Baltimore boulevard and the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks.

A committee from the county Firemen's Association, headed by President James S. Truitt, appeared to offer $5,000 of the association's funds for the use of the school board. The committee was referred to the superintendent of schools, who said the school board budget had been balanced.

The visit of the firemen followed a meeting of the association last week, when the possibility of taking only $10,000 from the county was discussed.

The commissioners agreed to a proposal to dredge an 8-foot channel in Broad Creek. The Capitol Material Co. had applied to the War Department for permission and the War Department sent the request on to the commissioners.

MONTGOMERY BODY WILL OPEN STREET

Property for Elm Extension to Be Acquired; Price Is Agreed Upon.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

The Montgomery County Commissioners yesterday directed Harry B. Shaw, county engineer, to proceed with preparation of plans for the extension of Elm street, in Leland, to Wisconsin avenue. Bids will be advertised for as soon as the plans are prepared by Engineer Shaw.

The extension is a matter of a short section of street, which has been held up by a disagreement between the county commissioners and the owner of the property, William G. Counselman, on the price to be paid for the strip, which includes about 8,047 square feet.

Condemnation proceedings had been instituted by the county when it was announced yesterday that a price of $10,500 had been agreed upon. This improvement will provide a populous section of Leland exit to Wisconsin avenue instead of the present circuitous route occasioned by the closed street. The civic bodies of the area long have battled for opening of the street.

Two of the three condemnation suits which were found necessary to provide the right of way for the Columbia boulevard, which provides a connection with Sixteenth street and the East-West highway for Georgia avenue at Montgomery Hills and Woodside, have been completed in Circuit Court at Rockville. This leaves but one suit pending, which probably will be heard today.

A jury yesterday awarded David B. Gottwalls the sum of $2,386 for his property and the day before awarded the sum of $885.05 to Fred A. Hessick, both being slightly in excess of the amount which the county had been willing to pay without condemnation.

Alfred L. Geiger, who has been a councilman for the past two years, has been nominated for mayor of Kensington. As he is unopposed, his election is considered virtually certain. Mr. Geiger is a Washington attorney and has been prominent in the county volunteer fire department, having been president of the Montgomery County Volunteer Firemen's Association. The election is June 6.

Howard Bean and Robert Lewis were named candidates for the one year term on the council made vacant by Mr. Geiger's new office. Three nominations were made for the two places on the council of two-year term members. They were: Willard Warthen, Kensington contractor, now a member of the council; Robert J. Eby, attorney for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., and William P. Amos, contracting painter. Ernest Hartshorne, the other incumbent, declined renomination.

A minstrel troupe, led by Jim Mullings, will present "Phunny Phellows" at the parish hall of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Aspen, Md., tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock. Mullings and Herbert Leach are end men, Arthur Curtin, radio artist, is interlocutor. Clog dances by Mahoney and Negro spirituals in solo parts by Earl Simons and Arthur Curtin, also will feature the program.

Sven Duncan, senior at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, has been awarded the four-year scholarship at Oberlin College in the arts and sciences department, according to an announcement yesterday by Thomas W. Pyle, principal of the high school. The scholarship covers full tuition and represents a sum of about $1,200. Young Duncan was selected from a class of 120 candidates.

The delegate to be chosen will accompany the Baltimore archdiocesan pilgrimage, of which Dr. John Keating Cartwright is chaplain. He will sail with the pilgrimage on the S. S. De Grasse on June 13.

Trials of Officers To Be Held in Fall

Deputy Sheriff of Prince Georges Charged With Hijacking.

The trial of a deputy sheriff and the son of the chief deputy on charges of hijacking will be postponed until the fall term of the Prince Georges County Circuit Court, it was announced yesterday. This means that none of the four county officers indicted at this session of the grand jury will be tried before fall.

Newton James, the deputy sheriff, is charged with robbery, conspiracy, bribery and malfeasance in office. Thomas Garrison, son of Chief Deputy Tom Garrison, was indicted only for robbery and conspiracy. The other three officers indicted were constables.

Dry Chief Claims Victory in Ohio

McBride Asserts Curran Spoke Too Soon About State's Wetness.

(Associated Press.)

F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Antisaloon League, said yesterday complete returns from the Ohio primary show that Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, spoke "too soon and too enthusiastically about the wetness of Ohio."

Curran had said, "Ohio used to be as dry as a mummy, but now it is as wet as Lake Erie."

The figures now available, McBride said in a formal satement, "not only show that not one single congressman who voted dry on the Beck-Linthicum resoluion roll call was defeated for renomination, but Representative Cooper, who was especially marked for defeat by the wet organization, won with a majority of almost 18,000."

"Furthermore," he added, "the tabulation of returns by counties show that L. J. Taber, without previous political connections, carried 61 of the 88 counties of Ohio. In the governorship contest, the combined votes cast for the two dry Republican candidates exceeded by almost 100,000 the combined vote of the wet Republican candidates."

Alleged Gaming House Data Shunted About by Officials

Two complaints about the operation of an alleged gambling house on the Bladensburg road were referred to the chief of the county police yesterday by the Prince Georges commissioners, and referred by the chief to the State's attorney, who referred them back to the chief.

Chief J. J. Crowley said yesterday that the matter was in the hands of State's Attorney Alan Bowie, but Mr. Bowie said he had turned it over to Chief Crowley Saturday night, when the place is said to have reopened.

The complaints were in two letters—one from the Women's Christian Temperance Association and the other from a man living in Cottage City. They were referred to Chief Crowley after the county commissioners had gone into executive session. Mr. Bowie said that he was notified of the reopening of the place Saturday night by a woman living in the neighborhood, and that he called Chief Crowley and gave him the information.

The alleged gambling house, which has operated for some years, closed last fall after James La Fontaine had been sentenced to jail for income-tax irregularities. La Fontaine was released in January. Last month the grand jury took notice that the place was closed and called on all persons having authority to keep it closed.

JUST A MATTER OF FORM, NOW.

Helping the Homemaker

Baked Lamb Loaf, a Seldom Used Dish.

DEAR Miss Carey: Would like to get your recipe for corned beef and cabbage. Do you use the jellied corned beef? Also, the recipe for raisin bread. I read the paper and wish you would have it printed.
E. W. A.

By "jellied corn beef" you must mean canned corned beef, do you not, E. W. A.? There is a jelly which forms around the meat in small quantities which is caused by the rich meat essence present when the meat is placed in the can and sealed. Yes, the canned variety can be used, and nicely. We are glad you read the column and delighted to pass along your recipe. Write again when we may be of assistance.

Corned Beef and Cabbage.
(For E. W. A.)

1 medium sized cabbage.
4 pounds corned beef.

Soak beef one-half hour in cold water or place in cold water and bring to a boiling point. Drain. Cover with boiling water and simmer until the meat is tender, from three to five hours. If a brown scum rises to the top, remove. The last hour, add cabbage, cut in eighths. When the cabbage is tender, remove, even though the meat is not yet tender. Heat the cabbage again by adding to the meat just long enough to heat through.

Raisin Bread (With Yeast.)
(Also for E. W. A.)

8 cupfuls flour
1 pint milk or water, hot
5 tablespoonfuls butter or other fat
1 egg, well beaten
½ cupful sugar
1 teaspoonful salt
Yeast cake
1 cupful raisins
½ teaspoonful anise, powdered.

Dissolve yeast in a half cupful of the lukewarm milk or water to which has been added a teaspoonful of the sugar, and set aside in a warm place. Pour the remainder of the milk or water, hot, over the butter, salt and sugar, and, when lukewarm, add the yeast and egg. Mix and knead well on board, add remaining ingredients, using more flour if necessary, until mixture is smooth and elastic. Return to bowl, cover and set in a warm place until double in bulk. Form into loaves and place in pans. Let rise until double in bulk and bake in a moderate oven (about 350 degrees) for 45 minutes, or until well done and brown.

THURSDAY'S DINNER.

Baked Lamb Loaf
Lyonnaise Potatoes
Caramel Tomatoes
Dressed Watercress
Prune and Rice Fluff
Tea or Coffee

Baked Lamb Loaf.

3 cupfuls lamb, ground.
1 cupful stock
1 egg
1 cupful breadcrumbs
2 tablespoonfuls onion, minced
1 green pepper, minced
1½ teaspoonfuls salt
¼ teaspoonful pepper
2 tablespoonfuls parsley, minced.

Beat the egg, add liquid and crumbs and allow to soak for 10 minutes. Mix the meat with the vegetables and seasonings. Combine the two mixtures, pour into greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven for one hour.

Potatoes Lyonnaise.

1 medium onion, sliced thin
2 to 3 tablespoonfuls fat
2 cupfuls cooked potatoes, sliced.
Salt and pepper to taste

Pan fry onion in hot fat for two minutes. Add potatoes and seasonings. Cover and cook slowly from 10 to 15 minutes, or until potatoes are browned.

Prune and Rice Puff.

¼ cupful rice, cooked until very tender
1 cupful prune pulp
1 tablespoonful gelatin
¼ cupful cold water
¼ cupful orange juice
1 tablespoonful lemon juice
2 tablespoonfuls sugar
⅛ teaspoonful salt
1 egg white, beaten stiff and dry

Soak the gelatin in cold water for five minutes and dissolve over boiling water. Combine the rice, orange juice, lemon juice, salt and sugar. Add the dissolved gelatin and blend all together thoroughly. Allow the mixture to cool slightly and add the prune pulp. Allow to cool again and when starting to thicken fold in the egg white. Pour into sherbet glasses and place in refrigerator. Serve garnished with whipped cream or finely chopped nuts.

THE WEIGHT GUIDE.

For individual assistance, write to Nancy Carey, sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and give age, weight, height and habits of life.

Answers to Readers.

Dear Miss Carey—I have been following your reducing suggestions very successfully so far, and now that I am actually watching my calories, find it much easier than I expected. I used to put it off day after day for—I'd be ashamed to tell you how long. I find now that I require less food than the menus indicate in order to lose. Why is that? Thank you kindly. LAURA J.

I am so glad that you have been successful in reducing your weight and glad that you realize it is not so difficult after all. If entered into in the proper spirit, reducing is more in the nature of a game in which we, being sole participants, are both winner and "loser." But just wait until you have come even nearer your goal. The thrill of satisfaction that will be waiting for you then is not given to every man and woman to enjoy. The thrill of knowing that by your own patient efforts you have improved your health and your appearance and prolonged your chances for a happy life. That alone is worth something, isn't it?

As for requiring less food than the tables indicate, are you quite sure that you have been measuring your food very accurately? Try again, following directions carefully, even doing a little weighing, if necessary. When your eye has been trained, then this weighing and measuring will be no longer necessary. Be just a little hard on yourself at the start. It is the only way you can be sure of results. Remember that not just any potato or any piece of bread contains 100 calories. If the potato or piece of bread is large, it may contain two or three times 100.

Nancy Carey

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

IF PEDICURE FAD BECOMES A FASHION WOMEN WILL HAVE LESS FOOT ILLS, EXPERT PREDICTS.

MANY of the country's leading beauty salons are now offering a pedicure as well as a manicure treatment. The open sandal vogue for evening and the predicted toeless beach shoes, revealing the nails, have led to this new foot beauty. If the fad takes, and becomes a fashion, women will have less foot ills in the future.

Elsie Pierce.

For corns, in addition to being painful, are not beautiful. Cramped and misshapen toes tell a story of abuse and at the same time detract from the picture of loveliness. It would be a decided deviation from conventions, but a return to the "barefooted boy" vogue would put foot beauty on a higher plane and put a finish to foot discomfort. History proves the tremendous influence that fashion plays on beauty consciousness. When it was customary for women to wear veils, they accented and enhanced the beauty of their eyes, for the eyes were the only feature revealed to the world. When skirts became abbreviated, revealing the legs, stock was soon taken and the limbs exercised to beauty. Invariably, the bathing suit season turns feminine thoughts to their figures. And so on.

It is too bad that women have to have the open sandal vogue to make them foot conscious, but that's the way of human nature.

The pedicure is given in much the same routine as a manicure. The nails are filed and edges smoothed with an emery board. The cuticle is softened, pushed back and any rough and raw edges trimmed with scissors. Then a liquid nail polish is applied and this runs a riot of color, from a pale pink, which is quite a natural and neutral shade, to cardinal red and orange, to say nothing of the old gold and silver metal tones, greens and other pastels.

Of course, it takes a lovely lady, with a lovely foot and an ultra-smart, sophisticated "something about her" to wear the open sandal, revealing the tinted toe. Nothing makes a dowdy woman look frumpier than the adoption of an extreme fad.

But there's a word to be said for the pedicure. If the fad becomes a fashion women will become foot conscious and there'll be less bunions, corns and callouses. If you are not going in for pedicures, at least do make it a habit to visit the chiropodist whenever your feet seem unfriendly. Considering the short time it takes, the painlessness, the relief that follows, one wonders why women continue to allow corns to sprout and attempt to remove them amateurishly at home, instead of having the chiropodist do it.

When women regard their feet as falling in the same beauty sphere as their hands, the size of the foot won't matter, but retention of its natural shape and freedom from signs of abuse will.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

An ensemble in the best of art and taste. The three-quarter coat of navy blue crepe, and the frock of beige crepe marocain. Both are trimmed simply, yet intricately with fine tucks, and both emphasize the new sleeve effect. (Courtesy of Mirande, Paris.)

NEW YORK, May 17.—Fad must not be mistaken for fashion!

When a woman writes to me that "styles" change so quickly that she can not afford to buy a really good dress, because it will surely go out of style before she has her money out of it, it "geeves me beeeens!"

Because it is all wrong. Fads are fads, momentary things, exaggerated things, and ideas usually found in cheaper things—seldom found in better quality merchandise, except in a slight suggestion or version of the idea which is greatly subdued and scarcely noticeable.

The day of the "latest style" is gone, that is all—simply gone. There just ain't no sech annimule, dahrlings. The latest style is only something that has been tentatively approached for years, or at least for a couple of seasons—giving Miladi due warning, even asking her approval before it dares to come to life! Style trends and tendencies point the way. And none of these style trends or tendencies are the style until they have been generally accepted, generally shown at the Paris couturiers, generally bought and shown in New York.

The only woman who is entitled to indulge in fads instead of fashion is she who is always in the public eye, such as the lovely and justly elegant Queen of Spain, or some famous actress. Why? Because they can afford to indulge in style fads. Can afford to be well gowned, perfectly turned out when they know that it can only be worn once. But for the woman of moderate means to do this is ridiculous, even impossible. She can't do it. She can only follow in "cheap" garments which actually are cheap, look cheap, act cheap—and even these she had to stop wearing long before she has her money's worth out of them.

Styles no longer change. Fads do. Try buying a good dress, paying four or six times for it what you have been paying for faddy ones—and watch it outlast ten of these cheap ones—not to mention the joy you will have in wearing it and knowing you are always right.

• • • •

Who said pajamas were going out of style? Not when we can use them so very well for housework, summer days when the least little bit of underwear is too much, and when stockings are so uncomfortable. House pajamas in a material that is heavy enough not to show through, yet light enough to be cool, are the perfect solution to hot-summer housework problems. But—they have to fit nicely, or who wants to wear 'em? There is no reason why they shouldn't fit smoothly over the hips, neatly to the knees, and flare just enough in each trouser leg to look like skirts. Sleeping pajamas are no longer the horrors they used to be, either—they have to fit, as well as those expensive lounging pajamas—every bit.

So the answer to it all is that you should send a stamped, self addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, for the illustrated leaflet which gives you a basic pajama design and the directions for cutting it out of far less material than you imagine—and that after making an unbleached muslin pattern which you fit to yourself, you have a pajama design that fits—for any and all pajamas you ever want to make.

• • • •

The house of Mirande, in Paris, once the ancient and well known house of Doucet, is noted for its quiet and conservative elegance. The ensemble I sketched for you today is an example of this—a three-quarter coat in navy blue crepe, trimmed simply, but elegantly, with tucks, and a gown of marocain in beige, trimmed also with intricately placed tucks. 'Tis the ensembles like these that are bought and worn, whilst others are only looked at and exclaimed over!

"Mirande" is pronounced "merand," with the "a" as in "father," in English, and the emphasis on the last syllable of the name—Mirande.

FAILING TO LEAD TRUMPS.

THERE is an old saying, handed down from the days of Whist, that scores of people are walking the Thames embankment because they failed to lead trumps. A hand sent me the other day by Dr. H. T. Ellsworth, of Monaca, Pa., suggests that there may be somebody pounding on the pavements of that Pittsburgh suburb for a similar reason. Dr. Ellsworth, in submitting the hand below, remarked that it was very interesting to him as the first hand he had ever seen wherein a game contract was made in a suit, with never a lead of trumps from the first trick to the last.

East—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
			1♣
1♠	3♣	3♠	4♣
4♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

As Dr. Ellsworth pointed out, East and West could have made five clubs if they could have guessed the distribution of the club suit. Such guesses, however, are much more frequently lost than made, and East and West were probably well advised to permit their nonvulnerable opponents to play the hand at four spades, as the cards they held suggested the strong probability of this contract.

As played, according to Dr. Ellsworth, West opened the Ace of clubs, and, seeing the singleton in the Dummy, shifted at once to a diamond. West won the second diamond trick with the King, and then, hoping that his partner could over-ruff Dummy, led another diamond. This was the fatal move, and South then proceeded to cross-ruff the hand. To the fifth trick he laid down the Ace of hearts and then ruffed three losing clubs with Dummy's remaining trumps, and five losing hearts with the trumps in his own hand, thus making 9 trump tricks and the Ace of hearts for game.

Unquestionably, West should have shifted after winning the first trick with the club Ace. His own hand, however, should have given him the clew as to the proper defensive measure, and that, obviously, was trump lead. Had West, at his second turn to play, elected to lead a spade, South would have been defeated 1 trick at least on his contract to take 10, as North did not have sufficient trumps to ruff three losing clubs and a losing diamond.

The hand is interesting as showing the devastating effect of distribution. It is interesting, also, as showing the clearly pointed road to correct defense by the East player.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Each deal at Contract presents to the defending player a new problem in defense. Generally speaking, the solution of this problem is not found by blindly following a rule found good under entirely different conditions.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

BLOOD PRESSURE AND THE ADRENALS.

I AM impressed with the possibility and even the probability, that the key to the blood pressure problems, or most of them, is bound up with the adrenal or suprarenal gland. This is one of the ductless glands, the secretion of which is all absorbed into the blood. We know that the secretion of this gland, epinephrine or adrenaline, raises the blood pressure and that it also has a relation to low blood pressure. Substances have been extracted from this gland secretion, have been purified and made available for use, just as quinine has been extracted from cinchona bark, crystallized and marketed.

We know that emotional outbreaks, such as anger, fear, excitement, and enthusiasm will run up the blood pressure. Men who suffer from high blood pressure are warned against emotional outbreaks. They are told that if they get angry and explode they are liable to break a blood vessel and fall over from an attack of apoplexy. Furthermore, if they would escape the day by day discomforts of high blood pressure, they must keep on an even emotional keel. This is more important than diet, constipation, or any of the other things which the high blood pressure subject's rules on "How to Live With" cover.

We know that if we push a laboratory dog into a fight and then, when he is most excited and angry, kill him, examining him before and after death, we find proof that his blood pressure was raised by his anger and fighting, that his adrenals were superactive, and that his blood was flooded with the adrenal juice.

On the other hand we know that low blood pressure and all the symptoms that accompany it can be produced by a deficiency of this juice in the blood. There is a disorder known as Addison's disease in which the adrenal glands are badly damaged. The symptoms of this disease are those of low blood pressure, magnified to the extreme.

The evidence or logic of this sort seems conclusive. Let us say that until recently the only proof that we have had of vitamins was of just this type. We have had to accept them on faith. However, there is nothing in the art as it is developed up to now that is of practical value except that we inject adrenalin to get a quick "snapout" after fainting.

Where is the trouble? It is in the lack of enduring quality in the adrenal preparations now available.

For high blood pressure of all kinds, including those types we are now discussing, and all that group of symptoms we call low blood pressure, what we need is a slow burning preparation of adrenal extract to use—so many doses or one dose daily for high blood pressure, just as we now use insulin for diabetes; and a slow burning adrenaline to use every day for low blood pressure.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Youth and Marriage.

A READER full of righteous indignation excoriates us for opposing youthful marriages. "Who are you to tell the young when to wed, when nature has settled the question beyond the shadow of a doubt?" To which we, of course, can only reply that we are not anybody—much. But then, nature has made a few well-known mistakes, herself. And as far as present-day marriage is concerned, we or any other intelligent mortal could give nature a few things to think about. Besides, we do not know what nature may be thinking by this time, with all her plans gone haywire.

It is great to talk about nature and the simple life, with families starving, orphanages filled with children who are not orphans, and jails filled with youths who might better never have been born. Our reason for opposing youthful marriages is that nature seems not to have arranged that the emotions and the intelligence shall develop proportionately. We therefore have the spectacle of the "under-privileged" rushing into unions that result in more "under-privileged," who are promptly abandoned while their parents seek new mates—supposedly at nature's behest. Nature may be responsible for most of the atrocities laid at her door, but we question whether she is really responsible for all. In our opinion society has a lot to answer for. But then, as our reader so originally asks—"who are we?" Read his letter:

Dear Madam: Who are you to tell the young when to wed, when nature has settled the question beyond the shadow of a doubt? You and like fanatics seem to consider this some arbitrary matter.

When such people are driven out of their self-appointed place of authority this life may be worth living. Then nature may have a chance to work out her plans, now seriously hampered by you mischief makers. Then youth and maiden may fulfill their destiny and purposes here on earth, people the world, joyously enjoy life, live as it was intended man and woman should live. Hasten the day when such voices as yours will be heard no more. A READER.

Which might read very well if it worked out when "youth and maiden" listen to nature, as they all too often do. But the sad truth is that all they ask after the first year is to be helped out of their misery, and then they come rushing to such "self-appointed" authorities as this much abused oracle, who for that reason if no other must still continue to be much opposed to the marriage of minor children, regardless of how many readers would like our voice to be "heard no more!"

What Today Means

"TAURUS."

IF May 18 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4:15 p. m. and from 7:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to noon and from 5 p. m. to 6:15 p. m.

Astrological influences on May 18 will help to put most people in working form, and the sun will set on well finished jobs and clean slates for the coming day. Gain in social prestige for young people, and perplexities in affairs of the heart. Health precautions indicated against alimentary complaints, and a careful diet should be followed.

The child born on this May 18 will have an orderly mind, be neat about its person, and systematic about its work. It will have a rather fiery temper which will need to be treated with respect. It will not harbor resentment, however, and will generally be the first to "make up" after a quarrel. It will show ability in literary work and the languages.

The May 18 woman is in possession of traits which make her a good friend, comrade or lover. You are always willing to lift the weight demanded, whether it be in your home, at an office, or for your community. You are almost too eager to do your share, or the right thing, to create a comfortable or easy atmosphere. You have a sense of humor which remains undiminished through trying ordeals or domestic crises. You laugh at situations and with people; you are too full of courtesy and have too tender a heart to poke fun at any one. For your complete happiness in marriage you must receive, as you give—a three dimensional love. There must be a sympathetic union of mind, body and soul. Your horoscope, however, does not reveal success through love. A possible marriage is indicated based on homely affection and loyalty.

If a man, born on May 18, you are sound clear through, and very humble about the things of which you have a right to be proud. You are not given to theatrical moods, and people know they can always find you the same. Your mind is a little on the slow side, but you are capable of very straight and sound reasoning.

Successful people born on May 18:
J. Lewis Browne, organist.
Milton Aborn, impresario.
Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy.
Czar Nicholas II.
William Steinitz, chess player.
William T. Bull, physician.

Advice on Gardening

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

WATER LILIES.

DURING the last two years there has been a great interest in the number of garden pools which have been made in even the smallest city yards. People are learning that water lilies are easier to grow than most other plants in their gardens and that they are far less troublesome. They bear flowers in direct proportion to the amount of room you give them and the kind of soil you prepare for their use.

Aquatic plants, as a rule, do best in a rather rich clay loam. One commercial grower suggests that the best soil is that from a pasture. This must be well mixed with one-third well-rotted cow manure. Bonemeal or dried blood are also excellent—about one pound to one and one-half cubic feet of soil. Another authority suggests good garden loam with liberal quantities of well-decomposed manure and bonemeal, and further explains that when the available garden soil is really poor, 50 per cent of leafmold should be used, and if after adding the leafmold the soil still seems poor that 25 per cent of bonemeal should be added. Water lilies are gross feeders and the more plant food you supply the more lilies you will have.

The soil may be placed in wooden boxes or it may be spread over the bottom of the pool. Where wooden boxes are used it is best to make them of cypress, as this wood does not decay in water. It is always easier to care for the plants and to keep the pool clean if they are planted in boxes. If, however, you want to grow the lilies without boxes, spread the soil over the bottom of the pool to the depth of 12 inches. In planting it is safe to allow four to six square feet of pool for each lily. This will also allow plenty of room for other aquatic plants which lend interest to the pool.

Water lilies should be planted with the top root or bulb about even with the surface of the soil. It is well to cover them with sand or gravel to keep the fish from disturbing the soil. Twelve inches of water above the crowns of the plants is all that is necessary. As a rule the plants are started in shallow water and the depth increased as they grow larger and stronger. A pool, to be successful and at all times have a maximum of blooms, must be in the sun.

Tender water lilies are not planted until after the middle of May.

MOTHER protect his baby nose!

KLEENEX
Disposable Tissues

MOTHER, surely you wouldn't use a partly soiled handkerchief for baby. Not since Kleenex has been made so wonderfully inexpensive.

Baby skin is so sensitive. And the nasal passages are so susceptible to infection. A slight infection which a healthy grown-up would hardly notice, may prove fatal to a baby.

So take the simple precaution of using always a fresh Kleenex Tissue for baby's handkerchiefs, bibs and napkins. This sanitary habit not only protects your child, but saves a lot of washing.

Kleenex is simply destroyed after use. You can use several Kleenex Tissues for the price of having one handkerchief laundered!

Kleenex is available at any drug, dry goods or department store.

Commerce Body's National Council Forces Issue; Strawn Hits Waste.

San Francisco, May 17 (A.P.).—The United States Chamber of Commerce will take a public stand on the prohibition issue, its national council in a preconvention meeting decided here today.

Action of the advisory body, coming before the first general session of the twentieth annual meeting of the national chamber, resulted from a "surprise" move by Leland W. Cutler, president of the San Francisco chamber. He presented a resolution that the board of director be instructed to conduct a study of national prohibition and submit its conclusions to a vote of the members.

Vote Before December 7.

The resolution was adopted by the council almost without opposition.

The resolution called for a vote to be held as early as practicable "before December 1." It provided also that at least seven different questions be submitted. They were, in substance:

1. Tightening enforcement.
2. Repeal of eighteenth amendment.
3. Modification of eighteenth amendment as provided in House joint resolution No. 99.
4. Amendment of eighteenth amendment allowing manufacture, transportation, sale and use of light wines and beers or either in States not prohibiting.
5. Repeal of national prohibition act.
6. Amendment of national prohibition act to permit manufacture, sale and use of 4 per cent beer.
7. Similar amendment permitting 11 per cent wines.

Additional questions were provided, should the directors' study make them advisable.

General Sessions Open.

Previous to Mr. Cutlers' unannounced move, which came under the head of "miscellaneous business," the council prepared a slate of candidates for the board of directors.

The first general session started tonight in the exposition auditorium, with Silas H. Strawn, of Chicago, president of the chamber, presiding. His address opening the sessions outlined the work of the convention and the economic difficulties of the Nation.

Extravagant costs of government must be pared down, national credit maintained and governmental interference with legitimate business curtailed, Mr. Strawn declared.

The business and industrial leaders of the Nation were told that they must pay the taxes and debts created through the "extravagance in the past," and were warned to devote attention to present and future economies of government.

Mr. Strawn emphasized the necessity of reducing demands on the Government.

Hits Treasury Raids.

The national president of the chamber pointed out the business man pays the greater portion of taxes. Hence, he said, the business man has the responsibility of impressing on all citizens "this is a Government for all of the people and that any effort on the part of any particular group or locality to obtain an unjust share of the people's money from the public treasury violates that fundamental principle."

Mr. Strawn reviewed the business difficulties of the country and listed as contributory barriers to American foreign trade: First, the burden of enormous costs of armament; second, the uncertainty abroad concerning possible relief from war debts, and, third, high tariffs that virtually dam the flow of goods from nation to nation.

The domestic situation, he said, is complicated by the stagnation of our foreign trade and a healthful state of business at home can scarcely be expected until normal trade is resumed with our neighbor nations. Other factors obstructing domestic business he listed as unemployment, taxes and Government interference with business.

Women's Group Elects Mrs. Smith President

Mrs. Clara Wright Smith was elected president of the Women's Democratic Education Council at a meeting last night.

Other new officers elected were: Mrs. Grattan Kerans, first vice president; Mrs. Lester J. Pollock, second vice president; Mrs. R. Kirkpatrick Noble, treasurer; Mrs. Julie M. Mayer, recording secretary; Mrs. Mary D. Heffernan, corresponding secretary; Miss Lida Mae Francis, field secretary; Mrs. Claude P. Stewart, historian; Mrs. Mabel Jennings Fry and Miss Nina Jones, auditors, and Mrs. Alma B. Partridge, parliamentarian.

Historical Body Hears Third Washington Talk

A description of intimate events in the life of George Washington, illustrated with pictures of places he visited, many of which are still standing, featured the final meeting of the season of the Columbia Historical Society last night at the Cosmos Club.

The lecture was given by Allen C. Clark, president of the society. It comprised the third and final part of a series on the life of Washington. Mr. Clark announced that the society will not meet again until November.

Students to Hear Talk on Television

Dr. J. O. Perrine to Stage Light Rays Feats at McKinley High.

A demonstration of the principles of television will be the feature of an address by Dr. J. O. Perrine, associate editor of Bell System Technical Journal, before the student body of the McKinley High School this morning.

Dr. Perrine has arranged a number of interesting experiments which will be performed during the course of his talk. Sawing a beam of light and many other feats with light rays will be included in the demonstration.

Dr. Perrine will repeat his address in the evening in the McKinley High School Auditorium before a large gathering of employes of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. At this meeting other features of the program will be a short concert by the C. & P. Glee Club and showing of several new sound pictures relating to the telephone.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

SOME of the most interesting commentaries on the more or less private lives of the famous stars of the stage and the cinema are to be found in the income tax appeals which flow in a steady stream into the capacious mail box of your patient Uncle Sam.

Two of the recent ones bore the attested signatures of Lenore Ulric and Sue Carol. The girls are a trifle irked, both of them, by the avariciousness of their Uncle Shylock. Miss Ulric, especially.

She is mumbling not very mild remonstrances over the payment of a $3,899.71 tax deficiency assessed against her 1929 income tax returns by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. I don't blame her. They might at least have added the 29 cents and kept it in even hundreds, thus doing away with all that arithmetic!

Lenore's complaints are that the bureau disallowed deductions of "professional entertainment expenses consisting of theater tickets" and other things. The flinty-hearted bureau also disallowed traveling expenses and transportation for her maid, secretary and motor car.

Going into more detail, Miss Ulric makes known that she was employed during part of 1929 by Fox, at Hollywood, as "star actress in motion picture" and received $100,000 as compensation.

During the year she entertained "newspaper and magazine writers, critics, columnists, theatrical producers, managers, vaudeville agents, authors, directors and other persons connected with the theatrical profession."

Her entertaining was to the tune of $4,069.50 for tickets and $4,815.90 for suppers, luncheons and dinners—probably not in the order named.

"Persons so entertained were in a position to be helpful and useful," she says, "to petitioner in her professional work as an actress, in the enhancement of her professional standing and reputation and in the procurement of professional engagements."

Such entertainment expense is "ordinary and necessary" for theatrical people, says Miss Ulric.

Now you can see for yourself what a swell time we of the Hunt & Peck system really have. Nothing to do but just be entertained by great stars, meet a lot of interesting people and be packed tight with free food morning, noon and night!

Never mind all that business about our having to work all night to make up the lost time afterward, but go right on with your gentle lunacy and believe it's a great life, if you get any bang out of the delusion!

Let's see, Sue Carol started out to be in this thing, too, didn't she? Well, Sue is mildly steamed up over a trivial item of $1,306.52 tax deficiency, which she wants charged off to balance depreciation in her half of the estate left by her father and held in trust for her by her mother, Mrs. Caroline Lederer. Sue signs herself "Sue Carol (Mrs. Nick Stuart)," which no doubt cheers friend husband all up, too!

Having delivered his first lecture in Central High School Auditorium yesterday, when the enrollments of the senior and junior high schools of the Capital were the beneficiaries of an added event presented as a supplementary offering of its regular season by the Community Institute, Dr. Frederick Vining Fisher will be heard by the general public tonight at 8, when the subject will be, "Enchanted America, the Land of the Great White Throne."

Tomorrow night at the same hour in the same auditorium Dr. Fisher will deliver the third of his series of three lectures, "Ultimate America."

Having appeared as an aquatic star at the Crystal Pool out at Glen Echo Park late last summer, without, however, having created any great general stir, Johnny Weissmuller, having since become the "heart" of susceptible young American womanhood by virtue of his devastating screen performance with Maureen O'Sullivan in M-G-M's "Tarzan, the Ape Man," will come to Loew's Fox Theater a week from Friday, May 27, for a week of personal appearances. This was the word passed out by Manager Harry Crull over the week-end.

Weissmuller, who is the holder of practically all the swimming records there are, will be accompanied to the Capital by his charming wife, the former Bobbe Arnst, of musical comedy fame.

And now I suppose the mail carrier will be all bent over with letters advising me caustically that I could have lived to be 90—only a couple of years yet—without ever mentioning that part about a wife!

Up the street a block or so and around the corner to your right, Manager Hardie Meakin, of RKO-Keith's, is sounding off right lustily and socking the tocsin no end to draw attention to the many unusual qualities of "Cain," a comparatively short subject, which is deemed such a whale of a picture that it is to be featured over "The Roadhouse Murder," in which Dorothy Jordan and Eric Linden appear in the principal roles.

"Cain," as I understand it, has nothing to do with the Bible story, but relates the Robinson Crusoe-like adventure of a gentleman of that name who, becoming satiated with the sickening shams of so-called smart society, spills himself off a ship and works out his destiny on the Island of Nossi-Be, off Madagascar—aided a bit, I am led to believe, by a native lady and one or two complicated circumstances by which Mr. Crusoe was not annoyed.

It all sounds pretty devilish to me.

However, speaking of RKO-Keith's, there is something besides good pictures going on around the place. A permit has already been issued for the erection of a new and larger water tower on the roof of the building to render the cooling system more efficient than it was last year. It was adequate then, except when the thermometer registered temperatures of over 100 degrees a week or so at a time. With the new tank in operation, it can burn up all summer long outside and the house will still be cool—or am I too gullible?

While we are at it, some of the summer bookings that are causing Mr. Meakin to burst into song—and it is really Mrs. Meakin who has the voice for it—include Ann Harding, in "Westward Passage;" Dolores Del Rio and Joel McCrea, in "The Bird of Paradise;" Richard Dix, in "The Roar of the Dragon;" Constance Bennett in "Hollywood Merry-Go-Round," and Wheeler and Woolsey in "Hold 'Em, Jail."

"Hold 'em, Jail," by the way, will be the last joint starring vehicle in which Wheeler and Woolsey will be seen.

The team has split and Bert Wheeler is retiring from screen activity, at least for the time being. He is reported to be driving East with the probable intention of entering a musical to be produced by Larry Schwab in the late summer or early fall. There was a proposition on foot for the two clowns to be starred in a new production by Columbia Pictures, but according to Variety this is now "cold."

The impression prevails in Hollywood, or so it is said, that Woolsey has accumulated something over a quarter of a million dollars during his three years in pictures. Wheeler, on the other hand, is reputed to be about where he started financially—wherever that was—due principally to the heavy endowment of an earlier helpmeet who turned out not to be.

Well, that's the way it goes. Up one day and up the next, or something.

It will be a cause for loud huzzas on the part of many Washington theatergoers that Freddie Sherman, the juvenile with the National Theater Players of two seasons ago, is to rejoin the company in a fortnight.

Mr. Sherman will make his reappearance with the Players on Monday, May 30—which is by way of being Memorial Day, in case you had forgotten—in an important role in "Captain Apple Jack."

At the moment there seems to be no way conveniently at hand of ascertaining who she is, but the young woman who plays the trap drums with Adrianne and Her Aristocrats, the distaff syncopationistes who scored such a hit at the National Theater Players' testimonial last Sunday night, is worth the attention of the big-time booking offices.

The girl is clever.

Hoping you are the same——

MORE ROOM SOUGHT AT PAUL JUNIOR HIGH

Home Association Also Asks for Gymnasium; Crowded Conditions Cited.

Members of the Paul Junior High School Home and School Association laid plans last night for an intensive campaign to obtain a ten-room addition and gymnasium to the school and for the erection of a senior high school in the community.

Congestion, resulting in the Brightwood School being used for overflow pupils, was outlined by members of the association. The Paul Junior High School recently acquired a ten-room addition and gymnasium, but they have proved insufficient to care for the children of junior high school age in the community, it was said.

The Board of Education will be asked to complete landscaping grounds around the present addition.

The following new officers were elected: E. R. Albrecht, president; Prof. L. J. Cantrell, principal of the school, first vice president; Mrs. Ralph B. Pratt, second vice president; Mrs. B. A. Chandler, recording secretary, and Lloyd B. Boose, treasurer.

The association was entertained by the glee club of the Chesspeake & Potomac Telephone Co. Glady Snyder, a member of the club, was soloist. Announcement was made that the annual spring luncheon will be held June 8, and that the June graduating class will be entertained in accordance with the customs of past years.

Edwin Leigh, 79, Dies; Chicago Manufacturer

Kerrville, Tex., May 17 (A.P.).—Edwin B. Leigh, 79, Chicago steel manufacturer, died late today at Stoneleigh Ranch, near here, after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Leigh was president of the Chicago Railway Equipment Co. and chief executive of the Marion Malleable Iron Works, Marion, Ind.; Franklin Rolling Mills, Franklin, Pa., and the Grand Rapids Malleable Iron Works, Grand Rapids, Mich.

He also was a director of a national railway association and a director of the United States Chamber of Commerce. The Chicago company, of which he was president, grew out of the National Hollow Brakebeam Co., which he organized in St. Louis in 1895.

Dry Drive to Continue In Conventions City

(Associated Press.)

Reports from Chicago that prohibition enforcement would be relaxed there during the political conventions next month brought a declaration yesterday from Howard T. Jones, acting director of the enforcement bureau, that there was nothing to it.

"Preposterous" was the way he termed one report that 145 agents would be taken out of the convention city for the month. Mr. Jones said the work of the prohibition agents in Chicago would go along as usual, but that there would be no intensive drive to dry up the city.

tello, the veteran Democratic national committeeman here, came out for Gov. Roosevelt. It looked like the District of Columbia would send a rampant Roosevelt delegation to Chicago. Then opposition broke out. Friends of Alfred E. Smith and John J. Raskob demanded a place in the delegation.

In the end, in order to head off the filing of two slates in the primary here and to avoid a possible contest in Chicago, National Committeeman Costello and National Committeewoman Mrs. J. Borden Harriman agreed to a compromise slate. They themselves stepped aside in order to make room for others.

The result is that the delegation being voted on today is far from being a last-ditch, do-or-die Roosevelt group. True, Roosevelt supporters are in the majority, and it is understood that the delegation will start out by voting for the New York governor. However, it is also understod that if Roosevelt does not get the nomination in the early balloting, he can not count on the local delegates to stick by him.

18 Names on Ballot.

The names of 18 persons appear on the District of Columbia ballot. Twelve of these are delegates having a half vote each, and the remaining six are alternates.

The 18 are Col. Arthur P. O'Brien, a "convert" to Democracy this year and a close friend of John J. Raskob; A. Mitchell Palmer, Attorney General in the Wilson administration; Daniel C. Roper, Commissioner of Internal Revenue in that administration; George Garrett, George P. Marshall, Mrs. Henry J. Leonard, John P. Colpoys, Norman B. Landreau, W. D. Denegre, Fred S. Schow, C. C. Carlin, Malcolm S. McConihe, Mrs. Lester J. Pollock, Robert T. Scott, C. B. Allen, James William Bryan, Watson B. Miller and James U. Dyer.

In voting for these delegates and alternates, the Democrats today also will reelect Mr. Costello as national committeeman and Mrs. Harriman as national committeewoman. Neither is opposed.

The polling places, which will be open from 4 to 7, are at 3207½ Georgia avenue northwest, 519 G street northwest, 1387 H street northeast, 712 Seventh street southwest, 1903 Nichols avenue, in Anacostia, and 811 Florida avenue northwest. The latter place is for colored Democrats.

Senator John S. Cohen, of Georgia, a pioneer Roosevelt - for - President man, issued a statement yesterday in which he hailed the addition of Kansas delegates to the Roosevelt column and the announcement of Owen D. Young that he was not a candidate.

"The action of the Kansas Democrats," said Senator Cohen, who is Georgia's Democratic national committeeman, "shows the trend of sentiment in the Western States, a sentiment which prevails largely throughout the country. The action of Mr. Young means that the strongest candidate the 'stop Roosevelt' forces could put at the head of their movement has refused to be a party to their schemes. Mr. Young is an outstanding Democrat and one of the country's greatest men. He is to be congratulated upon his refusal to allow his name and prestige to be used in the effort of certain interests to prevent the nomination of Gov. Roosevelt.

"Nothing will so hearten the people of this country and nothing will contribute so much toward a restoration of public confidence and renewal of prosperity as the nomination and election of Gov. Roosevelt. The country has lost faith in the present Republican administration, which has been characterized by its inaptitude, inefficiency and mismanagement."

Debate on Nominating Rule.

A debate on the Democratic two-thirds rule broke out in the Senate yesterday during consideration of the tax bill.

Senator Henry Ashurst, of Arizona, termed the rule whereby a man must get two-thirds of the delegates to win the nomination as "archaic and un-American," and he expressed the hope that the Chicago convention would abolish it and substitute the majority rule for future conventions.

Senator Clarence C. Dill, of Washington, an ardent Roosevelt man, evidently thought that Ashurst was asking that the two-thirds rule be abolished and the majority rule be applied at the forthcoming convention.

"If we attempt to change a rule when there is a fight on," Dill said, "we are accused of changing the rule while the game is going on."

Ashurst agreed with him, and explained that what he had in mind was a change that would take effect at future conventions. Dill pointed out that each convention made its own rules. Ashurst granted this, but expressed the belief that an expression of opinion at the Chicago convention would have an important effect on future conventions.

Italian Somaliland, on its way back to Marseille from the Far East.

The survivors could not say how many lives were lost in the ship. Up to 100, they said, were trapped in the burning cabins, most of them in the first-class section. It seemed impossible that all could have survived.

They emphasized the extraordinary rapidity with which the flames spread after their discovery early in the morning. The majority of the passengers were awakened from their sleep and hurried on to the deck to find themselves immediately in an inferno of smoke and heat.

Although the captain kept the vessel's head to the wind a number of lifeboats soon were destroyed and it was impossible for the passengers to make their way to the stations allotted them in the boat drill. The supply of rafts and lifeboats appeared, however, to have been ample.

The wireless cabin was put out of commission almost at the beginning of the fire and it was impossible to send out S O S calls. The Contractor, however, sighted the blaze from a spot 35 miles away and dashed to the scene. Stokers of the rescue vessel worked "like fiends," their officers reported, to get every ounce of pressure.

The Contractor found the Soviet tanker Sovietskaia Neft already on the scene. The Russian boat's explosive cargo made it imperative to keep at a safe distance, but some 400 passengers and seamen were carried over to the tanker on a raft picked out of the water.

Transferred to French Liner.

These survivors were later transferred at sea to the French liner Andre Lebon, which is taking them to Jibuti, French Somaliland, where it is due tomorrow.

The Mahsud reached Aden three hours after the Contractor and there were scenes of heartrending poignancy on the pier as her survivors found that relatives whom they had thought lost had reached safety and port before them.

All hopes centered tonight on the Andre Lebon, but the fact that she was making for Jibuti prolonged the anguish of those still left in uncertainty at Aden.

Two Remain in Hospital.

Of those rescued and brought to Aden, only two remained in a hospital tonight. Seven others were discharged after treatment. The masters of the Contractor and Mahsud had reported the death from injuries and burial at sea yesterday of a woman identified as Miss Leroger, and an unidentified French girl.

Survivors aboard the Contractor declared that at no time was there serious panic. Some of the rescued were unable to reach the liferafts, jumped into the shark-infested water and were picked up.

More than 100 of the Georges Philippar's passengers, reported to total about 600, were on the Contractor, and nearly all were dressed in night clothes. They had lost all their belongings. The burned ship had a crew of more than 300.

The ship was reported to be still ablaze today, with a 15-degree list to port. Its position was given as 50 miles north of Cape Guardafui.

Fire Held Not Incendiary.

Paris, May 17 (A.P.).—Officials of the line that owned the French motorship Georges Philippar said today the fire that wrecked the vessel yesterday off the African coast started several days ago in freight holds and apparently was not of incendiary character.

Reports received by police that terrorists set the fire were declared to be unfounded by Adrian Monge, director of the Compagnie des Messageries Maritimes, the ship's owners. The fire was not discovered, he said, until it burst forth with such violence that all normal safety measures were in vain.

London, May 17 (U.P.).—Twenty-three American and British passengers were on board the Georges Philipar. Some of the American and British passengers were accompanied by their children. The Americans included a Mr. and Mrs. Van Pelt. The passenger list also included children of the Van Pelts.

There is a Van Pelt listed in "Who's Who in America." He is John Robert Van Pelt, a clergyman of Atlanta, Ga., who married Miss Ellen R. Warren, of Denver, Colo. They have two children. He was born in Shelby County, Ky.

Dispatches from Aden said no Americans or British were among the survivors landed there.

DISTRICT OFFICIALS FAVOR PRESIDENT'S FURLOUGH PLAN

privates who have been expecting this increase in pay, and thereby be seriously detrimental to the efficiency of the entire force."

Chief Watson said the provision will not only deprive his men of $100 increase, but delay for one year their attainment of the $2,400 maximum salary rate.

Urging necessity of a $9,500,000 Federal contribution toward District needs, Maj. Donovan described declining District revenues. He predicted an actual deficit of $1,100,000 at the close of 1933 if the bill is approved with budget totals and a $9,500,000 Federal lump sum.

New Revenue Need Cited.

"All these matters lead to the conclusive and convincing justification not only for the continuance without abatement in any part of the Federal contribution of $9,500,000, but also the provision of new and additional sources of revenue," he said.

Following Maj. Donovan's opening statement, District officials took the stand one by one, citing "danger spots" in the District bill as result of the $4,173,109 clipped by the House from budget estimates.

Failure of the House to provide funds for a P street bridge over Rock Creek will bring about a "traffic blockade" at that point, the only undeveloped link in the Rock Creek connecting parkway, Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby and Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District highway engineer, told the senators.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer said the House cut of $30,000 in traffic funds will be at the cost of necessary new traffic lights, and much-needed stop signs and route markers. "It is a question of safety to District residents," he added.

Library Fund Cut Hit.

Elimination of funds for a Georgetown branch of the public library was protested by Dr. George F. Bowerman, District librarian, and Dr. George C. Havenner, president of the District Federation of Citizens Associations. The deletion leaves the entire Georgetown area and nearby communities unserved by a library substation, Dr. Bowerman said.

Theodore Cogswell, register of wills, said four employes would have to be dropped from his pay rolls, although revenues through his office make it more than self-sustaining, and the reductions would be at expense of public service.

Recorder of Deeds Jefferson S. Coage recommended an increase in the fees charged for deeds so that his office might be placed on a self-sustaining basis. He said a bill is being prepared to this end and will be put forward shortly by the District Commissioners.

Additional funds for care of parks and shrubbery were asked by Mrs. Theodore W. Noyes.

Maj. Donovan, in summing up the depleted condition of the District treasury, said from present indications there would be an apparent deficit of $1,616,432 in District revenues for 1933, assuming the bill was passed as framed by the Budget Bureau. Allowing for approximately $500,000 left in the District's cash working fund, there would be a net deficit of $1,100,000, he said.

Income Drop Stressed.

"The Commissioners, in framing the budget for 1933, anticipated that approximately the revenues estimated for the fiscal year 1932 would be collected and that there would not be an actual falling off of revenue collections under the estimates of about $1,500,000," the District auditor testified.

"Nor did they anticipate that personal property assessments would materially drop in 1933, as seems now to be the case, and also that the revenue collections for 1933 might drop a further $1,500,000 under the estimates prepared at the time the budget was in course of preparation. This means that in the two fiscal years, 1932 and 1933, the District is confronted with the strong probability of a loss of about $3,000,000 in current revenues."

As a result he said that "the additional revenues proposed by certain of the Mapes bills are really now needed by the District, in addition to the Federal contribution of $9,500,000 by the United States, to permit the District properly to function and to carry on a necessary program of public improvements."

Chairman Hiram Bingham questioned Maj. Donovan for his views on a District pay-cut as opposed to the President's plan of enforced furloughs of one month. He said the prevailing sentiment was for furloughs, provided the furloughs could be spread out over the year, on the basis of two and one-half days a month.

Defends Crime Prevention.

Questioned by Senator Royal S. Copeland on criticism of the new police crime prevention squad as costly and larger than necessary, Gen. Glassford launched into a long defense of the system instituted Monday. He said the criticism "did not consider the scope of the work we want to accomplish."

The police superintendent was asked to cite instances where radio equipped cars had proven of value. When he hesitated, Commissioner Crosby suggested Inspector Edwards knew of some cases worth mention.

Needs Are Cited.

Both Gen. Glassford and Gen. Crosby testified to the need for a more modern police switchboard, and a duplicate transmitter for the radio system. The police chief said failure of the present transmitter might throw the system out of operation for several days.

Gen. Crosby said it sometimes takes four or five minutes to reach police headquarters by phone, with the present outmoded switchboard.

Miss Sybil Baker, director of playgrounds, told the committee the House cut of $5,000 in appropriations for her department may mean closing of some playgrounds or possibly a swimming pool during the summer months.

SUSPECT IS SEIZED IN ILSLEY SLAYING

Police in Orangeburg, S. C., Believe Man Held There Is Middleburg Killer.

Orangeburg, S. C., May 17 (A.P.).—Officers said today they believed Andrew Rowell, Negro, detained for questioning in the slaying last Wednesday of Jerome M. Jackson, filling station operator near here, is in reality George Crawford, wanted at Middleburg, Va., for the murder of two white women there January 18.

Crawford killed Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley, society woman, and her maid, Mrs. Annie Buckner, in the Ilsley home, where he had formerly been a chauffeur. They were slain with a sharp weapon, presumably an ax.

Fingerprints of Rowell will be sent to Middleburg tomorrow. Officers said a preliminary examination revealed a similarity between Rowell and the description they have of Crawford, for whom a $1,000 reward has been offered.

Rowell has been in this county but a few months and was employed by Jackson. The latter was called from his home to his filling station presumably to wait on a customer, then beaten and shot to death.

2 Held in Assault On Taxicab Driver

Hackman, 21 Years Old, Charges Pair Beat Him With Padded Brick.

Two men were being held last night in connection with an assault and attempt to rob a taxicab driver. The assault victim was recovering in Emergency Hospital. Police said the pair admitted attacking Harvey C. Watkins, 21 years old, of 310 E street northwest, early yesterday.

Watkins was first believed to have suffered a fractured skull when he was struck several times over the head with a brick concealed in an old newspaper. His condition was reported as "good" last night, however. The taxi driver told police that two colored men hired his cab at Twelfth street and New York avenue northwest and ordered him to drive to 2145 L street northwest.

There one of the men began beating him over the head with the padded brick. He cried for help, and the men ran. Police arrested Willie Smith, 24, and Sammie Lee Andrews, 22, both colored, of 1033 Twenty-first street northwest, in connection with the case.

Veteran Driver Freed After His First Arrest

Once every 22 years is not too often for a man to break a traffic law, Judge Isaac R. Hitt declared in Police Court yesterday, when he directed the dismissal of a speeding charge against James E. Woodhouse, of 2123 First street northeast.

Woodhouse, who had put up $25 collateral on a charge of driving his machine 35 miles an hour, told Judge Hitt that it was his first arrest, and that he had been driving for 22 years. Upon that statement, Judge Hitt dismissed the charge.

British Flier Pleads Not Guilty in Murder

Miami, Fla., May 17 (A.P.).—Capt. W. N. Lancaster, former British army aviator, pleaded not guilty at his arraignment in Circuit Court today on charges of murdering Haden Clarke, youthful writer and fiance of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, the Australian flier. Judge H. F. Atkinson designated July 5 as the date for trial.

He appeared haggard after weeks of confinement in jail, but he spoke calmly in entering his plea. As the court clerk read the grand jury indictment he displayed no emotional reaction.

Capital Youth, Liquor Victim, Regains Sight

New York, May 17 (A.P.).—William Ware, 19 years old, of Washington, D. C., who was blinded by drinking poisonous alcohol on Monday recovered his sight today and was discharged from Harlem Hospital.

Ware was found wandering in an uptown street, sightless. He said he had attended a party in a Broadway hotel. He had been in New York about three weeks.

Hold Insull Stock, Court Asks Banks

Judge's Plea Is Aimed to Prevent Drop in Value of Securities.

Chicago, May 17 (A.P.).—Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley appealed from his bench today for a group of New York bankers to "be good citizens" and refrain from selling stock held as collateral on loans to two huge Insull investment companies now in receivership.

At best, the judge said, there will be practically no assets left for investors after the bank loans are satisfied. He appealed to the bankers on humanitarian grounds, admonishing them not to "demand a pound of flesh" in payment.

"I do not imply there is a 'Shylock' in this case," Judge Lindley said, "but it does appear to me this is a matter of greater importance to the public than to the bankers." For loans to the companies involved—Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and the Corporation Securities Co.—the banks hold stock worth $10,000,000 at present values. Judge Lindley said the collateral is sound and that the companies on which the stock was issued are paying dividends.

Shouse Criticizes Hoover for Delay

Wellesley, Mass., May 17 (A.P.).—Jouett Shouse, addressing students of Wellesley College tonight, said President Hoover had scolded Congress for delay in enacting economy measures which the executive branch itself should have sponsored at the "beginning of this panic."

"That," said the chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, "would at least have spared the Nation the shock of the stupendous measures required to meet the deficit that has been rolling up."

"Regardless of the magnitude of the emergency," he added, "regardless of where the blame lies for any or all of it, the task nevertheless must be performed."

Shouse said he did not believe the theory that graduates of women's colleges have no time for "serious thinking" because of social activities, sports and beaux.

He asked the Wellesley class to take an interest in politics, and suggested "Democracy must have a greater appeal to your progressive young minds than the reactionism of the Republican party."

SEIYUKAI PROPOSES COALITION CABINET

Japanese Government Party Compromises With Army; Crisis Continues.

Tokyo (Wednesday), May 18 (A.P.).—In the face of an army demand for a nonpartisan Nationalist cabinet, the Seiyukai party indicated today its willingness to compromise and form a coalition government.

The Seiyukai party, nominally in power because the assassinated Premier Tuyoshi Inukai was its president, sought to retain governmental power by permitting the chief opposition, the Minseito party, to place members in the cabinet, and also inviting the House of Peers to take part in forming a new government.

The Seiyukai group hoped such a combination would be acceptable to the military authorities, who are able to block any ministerial formation they may wish, because the minister of war must be a general in the army.

Army Attitude Obscure.

The attitude of the army toward such a coalition remained obscure, although Kaku Mori, one of the principal Seiyukai leaders, held a long conference last night with Gen. Sadao Araiki, resigned minister of war.

Meanwhile, the national crisis probably will be prolonged for at least another day on the face of a decision by Prince Saionji, the elder statesman and adviser of the emperor, to remain at his estate in Okitsu until Thursday. He intends to let the situation crystallize further before advising the emperor on the premiership.

The stop-gap ministry of Korekiyo Takahashi, finance minister in the old Inukai cabinet, remained in office in the interim.

The assassination of Premier Inukai Sunday was linked by police for the first time with the magnetic personality of an imprisoned Buddhist priest and a farmer-schoolmaster expounder of his "blood brotherhood" doctrines.

"Blood Brotherhood" Blamed.

The police disclosed that the seven men arrested as the perpetrators of Sunday's shootings and bombings were connected with the "blood brotherhood" to which also belonged the slayers of Baron Takuma Dan, noted banker, and former Finance Minister Junnosuke Inouye earlier in the year.

The priest, Nissho Inouye, described as an ultra-patriotic fanatic, exerted great influence on impressionable youths. He has sought to revive the traditional spirit of old Japan, exemplified by the famous 47 "ronin" (outcast samurai, or feudal retainers), who killed the man who caused their lord's death and afterward committed suicide by hara-kiri. Their storied action was regarded as the highest type of loyalty and self-sacrifice.

House Unit Hears New Bonus Pleas

Rules Body Fails to Act on Appeal for General Vote on Rejection.

(Associated Press.)

The House rules committee yesterday heard pleas for special consideration of the cash bonus issue this session, but took no action.

For nearly two hours the rules group, surrounded by veterans standing against the walls of the small committee chamber, listened to arguments advanced by Representatives Patman (Democrat), Texas, Rankin (Democrat), Mississippi, and Hastings (Democrat), Oklahoma. They appealed for a House vote on the new-money bonus payment plan rejected by the ways and means committee.

Chairman Pou pointed out it was "unusual and unprecedented" for his committee to grant a rule on legislation adversely reported by another committee which was not even seeking the rule. Mr. Patman replied that his request was justified because the ways and means committee had broken a precedent of 143 years in filing an unfavorable report and thereby blocking use of a discharge petition.

POLITICAL EQUALITY URGED FOR NEGRO

Capper Tells Colored Group Race Should Seek Rights as Citizens.

The twenty-third annual session of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People opened last night at Shiloh Baptist Church with a welcome extended on behalf of the Commissioners by Lieut. Robert E. York. Jefferson S. Coage, recorder of deeds, responded. The session was preceded by a musical program by the Glee Club of the Randall Junior High School. Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, spoke on "The Negro's Political Future," and Joe E. Spingarn, of New York, president of the association, spoke on "Race Equality, the Prime Need of America."

Senator Capper urged the Negro to be politically independent, advocating group action, regardless of party, where interests of the race and his lawful rights are concerned.

"The Negro does not belong to any party," he said, "but will wisely give his support to the party which in fact defends him in his right of equality under the law. Where the Negro is still disfranchised, where he is lynched and discriminated against and denied the fundamental attributes of American citizenship, there can be but one issue for the colored voter. That issue is his emancipation as a full-fledged citizen."

With reference to the budget cut of Howard University by Congress, he said:

"Some of us in the Senate vigorously opposed and voted against the drastic 58 per cent cut in the university budget as requiring from this institution a vastly greater curtailment than is demanded in other items of the Federal budget. This is unjust to the Negro and discreditable to Congress."

Col. Spingarn referred to the present depression as a retribution for pride and folly of the "myth of Nordic superiority." He urged the association more than ever to a battle for racial equality which, he said, "when rightly understood, means the same as the 'social equality.'"

Other speakers were Mrs. Addie W. Hunton, of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, and Harry E. Davis, civil service commissioner, of Cleveland, who paid tribute and made a presentation to Miss Mary White Ovington, one of the founders of the association, and its former president. Secretary Ray Lyman Wilbur will bring a message to the session this afternoon from President Hoover. Sessions of the conference will continue throughout the week.

McSwain Would Extend Scope of Dawes' Group

(Associated Press.)

A bill to make the provisions of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation cover industrial and manufacturing corporations of a nature to relieve unemployment, and States and their subdivisions was introduced yesterday by Representative McSwain (Democrat), of South Carolina.

He specified that it should extend to school districts, to enable public school authorities to cash outstanding and unpaid vouchers issued to teachers as evidence of indebtedness.

Capper Advocates Congress' Pay Cut

Would Be First Step in Real Economy Move, Kansan Says in Radio Talk.

Congress should begin its economy drive by cutting the salaries of members, then reduce expenses "all along the line," Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, chairman of the Senate District committee, said yesterday in an address over WMAL.

"Cutting expenses of Government," he said, "means fewer mail deliveries, less Federal aid, fewer men and women on Government pay rolls and smaller pay checks. I have told the Senate that we should begin this economy program by cutting the salaries of senators and representatives.

"If the country had believed Congress was seriously attacking the job of reducing expenditures and getting the job done, it would not have been necessary for President Hoover to send his recent biting message to Congress. The messages were justified. The President had the country back of him in demanding real economy, real cuts in Government expenses and expenditures from the present Congress."

Auto Mishap Hurts Women; Man Held

Catholic University Student Accused of Forcing Car Off Road.

Two women were in an undetermined condition at Casualty Hospital last night and a Catholic University student was being held by Prince Georges County police after a collision between two automobiles on New Cut road at University Park, Md.

Herman Matisoff, 48 years old, of Baltimore, was driving to Washington with his wife, Bessie, 39, and his mother, Mrs. Bessie Matisoff, 68, of Chicago.

Matisoff said that at University Park, an automobile party of students, going in the direction of Baltimore, passed too close to his car and took the front wheel off, throwing them into the ditch. Francis O. Tigani, of Wilmington, Del., student at Catholic University, was arrested as driver of this car.

Virginian Seized as Boy Is Injured by His Auto

A Virginian was held on a reckless driving charge at the Second Precinct station yesterday after his automobile had knocked down a 12-year-old boy who was playing baseball in the street at Twelfth and R strets northwest. The boy suffered a fractured left leg and other injuries.

Police said the man, Dwight L. Briscoe, 38 years old, of Clarendon, Va., was held for them by orderlies at Freedmen's Hospital. Briscoe brought Clarence Hicks, colored, of 1205 S street northwest, there. It is said, and then attempted to leave. In addition to the broken leg, the boy suffered lacerations of the head and body. His condition is undetermined.

Will Plan Democratic Convention.

Richmond, Va., May 17 (A.P.).—Preparations for the State Democratic convention here June 9 will be discussed at a meeting of the Third District Democratic committee Saturday in the office of Mayor J. Fulmer Bright. The call for the meeting was issued today by Chairman W. D. Caldwell, of Hanover.

Police Hold 2 Boys As Store Is Robbed

Believe Youths Were Acting as Lookouts for Thieves Inside.

If Policemen L. M. Johnson and L. Collins, of the First Precinct, had gone lion hunting last night and their game bag had been examined afterward it might be said that they had shot "sparrows."

Some one called police and said that persons were robbing a cleaning and dyeing establishment at 642 G street northwest. Johnson and Collins were dispatched.

Outside they found two colored boys, one 8 and the other 12, who they believe, were acting as lookouts for the thieves within the building. Search of the premises showed that a side door panel had been smashed and eight suits, worth $120, taken; but there was no trace of the burglars. The two alleged "lookouts" were taken to the Receiving Home on charges of investigation.

BROWNS WIN 3D STRAIGHT FROM NATS IN 11-2 ROUT

Blaeholder Steadies After Gaining Big Lead and Blanks Nats for Last Eight Innings Before 1,000.

Homer Over Wall by Myer and Doubles by West and Cronin Tie Score in First; Browns Bunch 7 Hits in Fourth.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

THOSE St. Louis Browns simply "ain't doing right by our Nell." Yesterday they made it three in a row from the Nationals, after having knocked them off the top perch on the American League ladder on Monday. The Nats scored two runs yesterday, enough to have given them the verdict on Sunday and to have netted a tie on Monday, but Tuesday was another day and this brace of markers did not look very large when compared with the eleven garnered by the Kliefer clan.

Only a small gathering of about a thousand was on hand when early afternoon showers stopped and play started, and it was just as well, for the game put up by the Nats was anything but inspiring. At the very start, Buddy Myer lashed out a homer and Sam West and Joe Cronin came through with successive doubles, tying the score at 2-all, and giving the team's admirers hopes that at last the home talent had recovered its collective batting eyes, but, from then on, the Nats fell back into evil ways and had to be satisfied with a flock of zeros for their efforts.

Burke Pounded Off Hill.

Good pitching has been mostly responsible for the team's good showing to date, and yesterday's game was only the third this season in which the Nats' pitchers have failed. Bobby Burke started on the hill, but proved to be no bargain, while Frank (Rags) Ragland, who went to his relief in the fourth, had trouble stopping the alien advance and was knicked for a run in the sixth. He went out to make way for a pinch-hitter, and Bobby Freidrich hurled the last two rounds.

The former Holy Cross star got by the eighth in fine fettle and had two outs and two strikes on Ferrell in the ninth when he suddenly ran amuck. Another walk, a hit batsman, a wild pitch, and a single gave the Browns two more runs before the third out was turned in.

Blaeholder Steadies After Start.

George Blaeholder went the route for the visitors. In the first, the Nats had him on the verge of a knockout, but he weathered this storm and then had few troubles thereafter, especially after his mates staged their six-run rally in the fourth.

Among all this gloom Manager Johnson saw two slight rays of sunshine. His team, which totaled but seven hits in its previous two engagements, was credited with ten yesterday, while Carl Reynolds finally broke his hunger strike by getting a hit following eighteen previous failures at the tee.

Schulte opened the game with a single, Burns popped to Burke trying to sacrifice, and then a single by Campbell, a double by Goslin and Ferrell's useful out propelled two runs over the plate. When the Nats immediately tied the score, it looked as though they finally had come out of their slump, for Myer propelled the second ball pitched over the right field wall and, after Manush had lofted out, West and Cronin came through with successive doubles.

Appearances proved to be deceitful, however, for Blaeholder held the Nats to but six hits over the remainder of the route, and the only time more than one came in the same round was in the fifth—and both of these were scratchy. In the ninth, the Nats delayed the game long enough to get three men on the sacks with one out, but Blaeholder then put on the brakes and held Manush to an outfield fly and fanned West.

Burke granted a hit in both the second and third, but had his ears

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

THESE St. Louis Browns not only have given the Nats some sound and unexpected wallops, but they have forced Manager Walter Johnson to make a change in his pitching plans.

Figuring on at least two victories in the first three games, Johnson had in mind giving Frank Ragland the starting assignment today. But, in view of three successive setbacks, he feels that he must use his best in order to try to avoid the loss of the whole series, so he will use Lloyd Brown this afternoon. He had intended holding over the southpaw for one of the games in tomorrow's doubleheader in New York against the leading Yanks. Irving Hadley or Walter Stewart, who won Sunday's game, will hurl for the visitors.

Harry Child, athletic director of the Boys Club, pitched to the Washington batters before yesterday's game. He was a member of the Nat staff two seasons back.

Myer went back of second to rob Grimes of a hit in the second. Had

Cubs' Eight-Run Rally Defeats Phillies, 9-4

Chicago, May 17 (A.P.).—The Cubs blasted Ed Holley, a former teammate, from the box during an eight-run uprising in the seventh inning today to defeat Philadelphia, 9 to 4.

The Phillies led by 3 to 1 going into the seventh, but six hits, three walks and three errors, gave Chicago the decision. Lance Richbourg, with four hits, and Charley Grimm, with three, led the winning attack.

Yankees Win 8th in Row By 3 to 2

Brilliant Fielding Aids Allen to Win Duel From Indians.

Averill's Homer in First Spoils Hope of Shutout Record.

NEW YORK, May 17 (A.P.).—The Yankees steamed past their eighth straight stop of a runaway winning streak today, beating Cleveland for the third straight day, 3 to 2, but failed to crack the American League record for scoreless innings.

Needing to hold the opposition without a marker for but one more inning to equal the record of 41 consecutive scoreless innings set up by Cleveland 29 years ago, young Johnny Allen, who started the Yankee string of shutouts, grooved one for Earl Averill in the first inning and the Indian center fielder smashed a home run into the right field bleachers. The consecutive scoreless inning streak thereby stopped at 40.

Allen recovered to hold the Indians to seven hits, but he was outpitched by Mel Harder and needed the finest sort of fielding to pull him through.

Two Double Plays Save Allen.

As Allen weakened in the seventh, Lazzeri's stabbing catch of Morgan's liner snuffed out a threat, and two lightning double plays, the first in the eighth with the bases loaded and the second in the ninth, pulled Allen's game from the fire.

Harder allowed the Yankees only four hits, but one was Ben Chapman's homer into the distant left field bleachers in the fourth with one on. Gehrig tripled in the second and scored on Lazzeri's single. After Chapman's long belt, Harder set the following thirteen men down in order. Not a Yank was left on base.

Lloyd Waner's Homer Defeats Brooklyn, 3-1

Pittsburgh, May 17 (A.P.).—The Pirates clustered their hits off Babe Phelps in the third and fourth innings today and accumulated enough runs to beat Brooklyn, 3 to 1, behind the six-hit pitching of Bill Harris.

Lloyd Waner hit a homer in the third after Harris had doubled, and doubles by Barbee and Suhr brought the other Pittsburgh run in the fourth. Brooklyn could not score against Harris until the eighth, when a bad throw by Vaughn put Day Taylor on base and Frederick's single and a double play brought him home.

Giants Toss Away Game To Reds in Tenth, 2-1

Cincinnati, May 17 (A.P.).—The New York Giants literally tossed away a 2-to-1 decision to the Reds today in a tight pitching duel between Bill Walker and Ray Kolp. With the score tied at 1-1 in the ninth after Bill Terry had hit his eighth homer of the season in the fourth inning, the Giants lost their chance for the winning run when Terry failed in an attempt to make a triple out of a double. Two singles followed.

In the tenth, George Grantham made his fourth hit for Cincinnati, Babe Herman was intentionally passed, and then Walker made a wild throw past first on Clyde Manion's safe bunt, letting the winning run score.

Tigers Bow, 2 to 0, to Macks

Earnshaw Yields But Four Hits; Foxx Is Batting Star.

PHILADELPHIA, May 17 (A.P.).—George Earnshaw's four-hit shutout gave the Athletics their first victory of the season over the Detroit Tigers today, 2 to 0. The game went into the seventh inning before the winning runs were tallied.

Jimmy Foxx Boosts Bat Mark.

Rain Again Halts Bolling Mat Show

Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn clinched his sobriquet of "Rainmaker" Goldie Ahearn last night when he was forced to cancel what would have been Washington's first outdoor wrestling show of the season, at Bolling Field, because of rain. It was the tenth time out of twelve attempts that inclement weather has greeted the efforts of the Bowser clan to invade the local mat precincts.

Five hundred fans made the journey to the field, only to be turned away.

The same card which was scheduled last night will be presented next Thursday night at the same place. It is Ed Don George vs. Danny Winters, Jack Sherry vs. Ivan Podubney, Joe Malcewicz vs. Dr. Fred Myers, Bull Martin vs. Charley Strack and Len Macaluso vs. Charley Hanson.

Pitt Leading Chevy Chase Golf Field

Has Fine Card of 72 in First Day of Medal Play.

Shoots 13 Par Holes; Stars in Second Half of Field.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

IN the first day's qualifying round of the annual spring invitation tournament of the Chevy Chase Club played yesterday, there were 204 starters and a field almost equally large will continue with another round today. Harry G. Pitt, of the Manor Club, held the lead with a low gross score of 37—35—72, a figure which has not been lowered in the last five years. In 1927 George Voigt and John C. Shorey qualified with a tie at 72, and Maurice McCarthy and Joseph DiLeo each had 72's in 1926 and 1929 respectively.

Pitt's card may be threatened today by Roland MacKenzie and Clarke Corkran, both of whom have been medalists in national amateur championships, but Pitt has made his 72 and the others have yet to negotiate the course.

Pitt's Card Boasts 13 Pars.

Pitt played a fine round of golf. He had thirteen pars, was one stroke over par on four holes and had a birdie 3 with a short putt on the sixteenth, his total being three strokes over the par of 69. On the third hole he played his mid-iron too strongly for his second shot and overran the green; on the ninth he did not reach the green with his drive; on the eleventh he pushed his second shot into a trap and on the seventeenth he played into the trap guarding the green. Otherwise, his pars were recorded in constant succession. His card:

Out .....4 4 5 3 4 4 4 5 4—37
In .....3 5 4 3 4 4 3 5 4—35—72

When all the cards had been turned in there were ten contestants under 80, with the probability that the 79's would be compelled this afternoon to play off for a place in the first sixteen. The players who were under 80 were as follows:

Harry G. Pitt (Manor)	37—35—72
Fred Hiltz (Chevy Chase)	38—38—76
Howard Nordlinger (Woodmont)	37—40—77
William E. Shannon (Col.)	40—38—78
D. W. Atherton (G. W.)	40—38—78
Walter Tynan (G. U.)	39—39—78
R. S. Fowler (Washington)	40—38—78
John Slattery (G. U.)	44—35—79
L. T. Newton (G. W.)	42—37—79
Everett Eynon (Columbia)	42—37—79

Only four sixteens, or 64 in all, will qualify and already there are 55 cards with 80 and under. If the same average of good play continues throughout today, and if the handicap of wet weather does not intervene, the outlook is that nothing over 86 or 87 will qualify. In fact, when it became apparent yesterday afternoon that even a card of 90 would

One Inning Enough To Let Cards Win

Rally in Third to Beat Braves, 4-3; Martin Gets Two Hits.

St. Louis, May 17 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Cardinals knocked out two doubles and a single in the third inning today to score all the runs which gave them a 4-to-3 win over Boston in the second game of the series.

Bill Hallahan, Cardinal hurler, allowed nine hits. He struck out the first Brave batter, let Urbanski by with a single and walked Berger. Then Worthington hit a home run which scored Berger ahead of him.

The Braves scored their other run in the sixth inning, this time Worthington's single sending home Berger, who had doubled.

Pepper Martin, back in uniform again after an enforced absence due to a dislocated shoulder, accounted for a double which batted in two runs, a single and a walk, while he grounded out his fourth time at bat.

WITH less than 1 yard separating the first four finishers, the District of Columbia Racing Pigeon Club staged the closest race of its history yesterday over a 300-mile course from Bristol, Tenn., to the local lofts. The winning bird was one from the H. C. Hile pigeon stable.

One hundred and seventy-nine birds from fifteen lofts competed. The remainder of the results, in yards per minute, follow:

Catholic University	51
Maryland University	38
Maryland Freshmen	13½

Tech High	3½
Catholic Freshmen	3

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY'S well-balanced track team emerged from the rain and eerie light of Byrd Stadium last night, carrying chief laurels of the District A. A. U. track and field meet, the first event of its kind ever held in this area.

Coach Dorsey Griffith's proteges, scoring in 11 of the 15 championship events contested, piled up a total of 51 points to win the team trophy. Maryland University, without the services of its strong man, Jesse Krajcovic, captured second place with 38 points while third honors went to the Maryland Freshmen team that accounted for 12½ points.

McGuigan's Victory Features.

Catholic U.'s colors also were borne to victory in the outstanding individual feat of the night, the rousing triumph of Capt. Gayle McGuigan, who fought off Jake Edwards, former Tech High and present Penn University star, to win the 400-meter dash. McGuigan, previously regarded second best in this race, led Edwards the entire trip and thundered across the finish line a full yard in front. His time was 49 4-5 seconds.

Earl Widmyer, Maryland University freshman, closely pressed McGuigan for individual honors by winning the championship 100-yard dash and the special invitation dash, one of three feature events sponsored by the George Washington Bicentennial Commission. Widmyer defeated Red Quinn, Maryland varsity, and McGuigan, in the titular race and beat Ensign G. K. McKenzie, former Navy star, and F. Gleason, Villanova College ace, in the invitation affair. His time in both was 11 seconds.

LADY BROADCAST BEATS SILVERDALE IN KENTUCKY FEATURE

Woolf Horse Displays Old Form

Okapi Wins Nursery Stakes at Belmont; Golden Fate 2d.

CHURCHILL DOWNS, Ky., May 17 (A.P.).—Herbert M. Woolf's Lady Broadcast, two years back one of the ranking handicap horses of America, flashed her old-time form today to stop the winning streak of Mrs. M. B. Price's Silverdale in the Western Parkway Purse, feature attraction. The race marked the second time in her career that the 6-year-old daughter of Messenger had started in a race with a claiming clause attached. She entered for $6,000.

Displaying her usual tractiousness at the post, Lady Broadcast was placed outside of the stall gates. Starter Hamilton caught her in line after but two minutes delay and the small field was away to a perfect start.

Silverdale Subdues Early Pacemaker.

Zone was first to show in front, but was quickly raced into submission by Silverdale. The latter stole into a good lead at the far turn, but Jockey Allen meanwhile had worked his way into contention with Lady Broadcast. In the stretch the Woolf mare assumed command when ready and, continuing with fine speed, was going away at the finish to win by a length and a half. Silverdale, tired badly from his early effort, had to be hard hustled to save the place from the fast-closing Street Singer, representing Jack Howard, by a nose. The latter finished a neck in front of the Ridgeview Farm's Ridgeview. Silverdale was an odds-on favorite in the betting and Lady Broadcast was a stanch second choice. The latter paid her backers $6.38 for each $2 investment and covered the mile in 1:38 2-5.

Okapi Win Feature At Belmont.

Belmont Park Race Track, May 17 (A.P.).—The Brookmeade Stable's colt Okapi, which won the Nursery Stakes at Hialeah Park last winter, showed a fine effort here this afternoon to win the Bouquet, a claiming stake over four and a half furlongs of the Widener straightaway. The son of Eternal, held at five to one, triumphed by a length and a half over the Foxcatcher Farms' Golden Fate, which in turn beat the Dorwood Stable's Bronx Park by a head for secondary honors.

Okapi's victory was worth $5,750 to his owner. He finished his journey in 0:52 1-5, under the light parcel of 105 pounds.

The J. J. Robinson entry of Little Lad and Pulls, with the former held most formidable, proved a great disappointment to the talent. Little Lad swerved from the outside in right after the start and ran a dull last all the way, while Pulls could only beat his stablemate. They were quoted at even money.

WASHBURN THROWS STEINBORN.

New Haven, Conn., May 17 (A.P.).—Jack Washburn, 235, of California, threw Milo Steinborn, 218, of Germany, with a double bar and body lock in 13 minutes 8 seconds in a feature wrestling match here tonight.

DOMINANT MISS moved up fast through the first quarter, drew into a long lead at the turn and, maintaining good speed to the end, won easily. DUSKY LASS also greatly improved her position in the run to the turn, saved ground and weakened slightly near the end, but outstayed CYNARA. The latter, away well, saved ground and closed with good speed, but could not get up. MISS CAMERON was on the inside final three-eighths. BONNIE MARITA lost ground. PATRICIA GREY had speed, but stopped badly after three-eighths. NEST EGG lost her rider before going a quarter. TERRY LASS, placed outside the stalls, wheeled when the start came.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DIS DAT, $4.22, $3.24, $2.78; DYAK, $5.08, $3.52; I PASS, $5.82.

DIS DAT, kept well up from the start, saved much ground in the early stages, responded with determination when urged hard after reaching the last five-sixteenths and, wearing down I PASS, drew clear, but weakened, yet outstayed DYAK. The latter, under steadying restraint until reaching the final quarter, where he came to the outside and closed steadily, I PASS had good speed, was much used in the pacemaking and weakened after five-eighths. CRYSTAL PRINCE began slowly, lost ground and closed some ground the final eighth. THUNDERTONE had no mishaps. ZEAN had speed the first half-mile.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—AROUSE, $9.36, $5.34, $4.16; PALATINE, $5.18, $3.46; DREAMY BELLE, $4.64.

AROUSE, much the best and a good distance back when lacking room the first three-eighths, improved his position on entering the stretch and, coming to the outside, ran the final eighth, closed with a rush, getting up in the final strides. PALATINE, in close quarters shortly after the start, quickly worked his way clear, saved ground at the stretch turn and stood the drive gamely. DREAMY BELLE, taken up with a rush on outside in the first quarter, drew into command approaching the final eighth and held on well, but was not good enough. MEROVECH had no room under hustling ride, but weakened slightly in the drive. CHATWICK had no mishaps. INFINETTE began slowly. JANE BOGGESS quit badly. ZELLEKEN had little chance due to crowding.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:27½. Off at 3:30. Winner, C. V. Whitney's b. g. (5), by Mad Hatter—Fairbrush. Trained by M. Goldblatt. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:47 1-5, 1:13 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SMEAR, $10.06, $4.50, $3.22; BIRTHDAY GIFT, $5.98, $4.18; DORIS JEAN, $2.78.

SMEAR, much the best and up close from the start, sprinted into a long lead immediately after reaching the stretch and won with much in reserve. BIRTHDAY GIFT had speed, raced a trifle wide at the turn, could not withstand the winner, but held on well. DORIS JEAN, taken back repeatedly, might have been closer up under less timid handling. EVERGOLD raced well. TOWN LIMIT dropped out of it at the turn, rallied mildly entering the stretch, then weakened. BEST MAN, crowded back leaving the back stretch, was outrun thereafter.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from chute and gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:54½. Off at 3:56½. Winner, Herbert M. Woolf's ch. m. (6), by Messenger—Couscous. Trained by B. A. Jones. Value to winner, $675; second, $150; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:12 3-5, 1:38 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADY BROADCAST, $6.38, $2.50, $2.46; SILVERDALE, $2.24, $2.18; STREET SINGER, $2.72.

LADY BROADCAST, taken to outside after causing only a short delay at the start, lost ground throughout, was under stout restraint until reaching the stretch, where she responded well and, wearing down SILVERDALE, won drawing out. The latter had good speed, was nicely rated, failed to withstand winner and, quitting, just lasted for second place. STREET SINGER, long around, stood the drive gamely and was going well in the closing stages. RIDGEVIEW showed a good effort and held on gamely. ZONE and SCOTLAND'S GLORY had early speed.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $900; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:21. Off at 4:21½. Winner, O. Viau's b. or br. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WOOD RIVER, $10.06, $3.72, $2.84; CHENE, $2.64, $2.24; REVERBERATE, $4.46.

WOOD RIVER, allowed to drop out of it, began improving his position on outside after reaching the final three-eighths, wore down the leaders in rapid order after entering the last eighth, and came away fast approaching the finish. CHENE, taken into the lead, was shaken up lightly at the far turn, maintained her speed gamely until reaching the last eighth, where she weakened, but outlasted REVERBERATE. The latter, close up after a half mile, took the drive courageously. SON O' SWEEP quit after reaching the final eighth. BATHER had early speed.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:45. Off at 4:51. Winner, C. E. Hamilton's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ELIZABETH FOX, $15.04, $6.58, $4.74; PREFER, $4.70, $3.32; BONNET, $4.00.

ELIZABETH FOX, rated off the pace, but never far back, rallied gamely when strongly shaken up after straightening out in the stretch and, wearing down PREFER, drew out, but had little left. The latter, a strong factor from the start, drew into a short lead at the stretch turn and held on well, but was outmatched. BONNET saved ground and had no mishaps. OLAMAY began slowly, raced wide and closed some ground. ARROWLIKE was hustled back in the run to the first turn. GRECIAN BEAUTY had no mishap. LADY WITT stopped badly after showing speed first three-quarters.

Mrs. Meckley Among Qualifiers Despite Handicap.

Match Play Starts Today on Manor Club Course.

THE second day's qualification in the tournament of the women's District golf championship on the Manor course yesterday did not dislodge Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes from her position of medalist, which she gained on the first day with a card of 40—43—83.

Mrs. Betty P. Meckley, the defending champion, qualified yesterday, but suffered a handicap on account of a severe sprain, and with four 7's on her card could not do better than 92. The first round of match play this morning, with pairings and times of play, will be as follows:

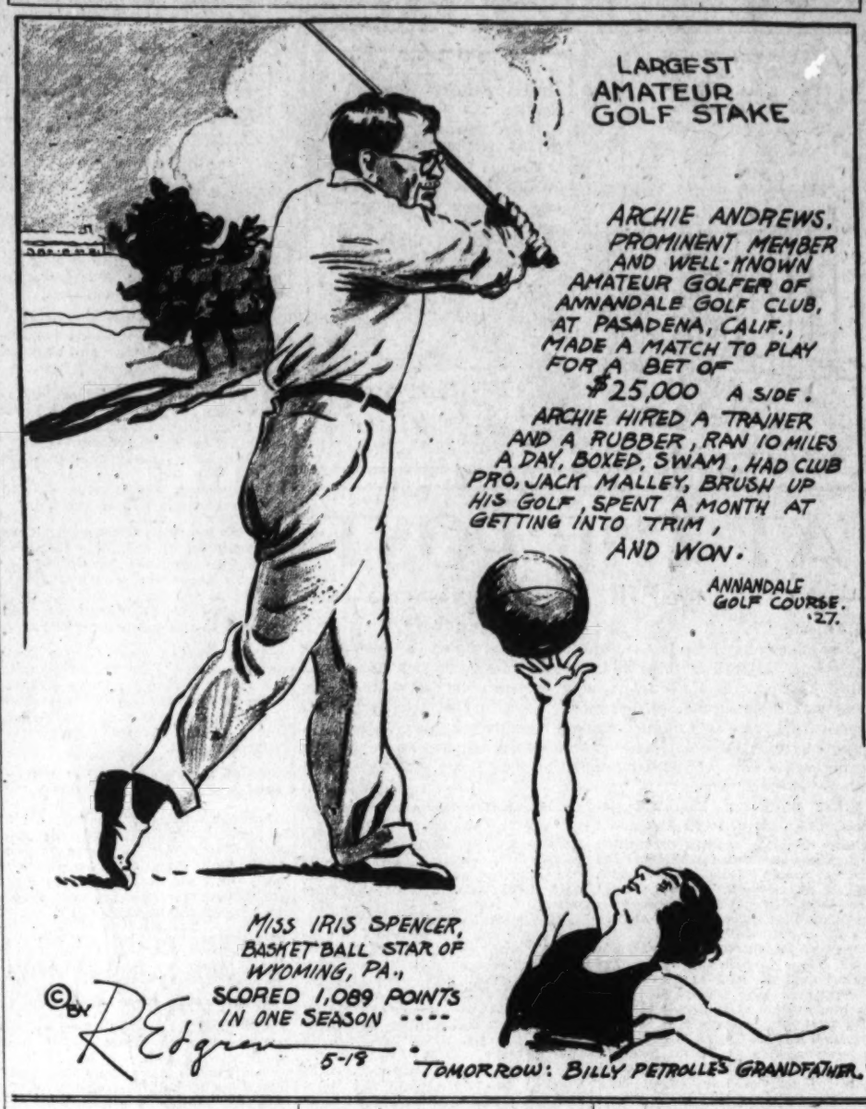
MIRACLES OF SPORTS —By Robert Edgren



STICK TITLE INVOLVED IN GAME

Unbeaten Maryland Lacrossemen Play Johns Hopkins.

JOHNS HOPKINS and the University of Maryland have the only unbeaten lacrosse teams in the country, and they meet next Saturday in the Baltimore Stadium in a game that to all intents and purposes will decide the national championship, although eight twelves later will be picked for an Olympic play-off series that promises to provide a scintillating climactic prelude to the international games at Los Angeles.

Hopkins, as it has been since the outset of the season, is the favorite to come through, but the edge the experts give it over Maryland is so slight that a victory for the Old Liners would not be a distinct upset. Hopkins has greater assets in men who played lacrosse before going to college, but Maryland, with a well-balanced twelve, boasts more veterans as far as collegiate play goes. The Old Liners have won over their old rivals for the last three years, taking a sensational battle last spring, 8 to 6, when the Blue Jays were the favorites.

Hopkins and Maryland each have won seven games, the Blue Jays scoring 77 points against 11 and the Old Liners registering 58 against 7. Their records are as follows:

JOHNS HOPKINS.

Mt. Rainier High Wins To Tie in County Series

Foster Mathias, of Mount Rainier High School's baseball team, bested Babe Anderson, of Hyattsville, and the Mounts were returned victors, 5 to 4, at Hyattsville yesterday. The victory created a tie for the Prince Georges County championship between Mount Rainier and Maryland Park. It will be played off soon.

Mount Rainier came from behind to win, shoving across the tying and winning run. It was the second victory in the title set for Hyattsville over Mount Rainier.

Besides pitching strongly, Mathias led his team's attack. He scored two runs and drove across two others with two-baggers. His brother Bob doubled in the other tally.

BURNS IS OFF TWIN-CITY CARD

Faces Operation on Arm; Whitlock to Substitute.

SCHEDULED to undergo an operation on a ligament in his left arm, Bobby Burns, crowd-pleasing Baltimore lightweight, will be unable to appear against Freddy Havelak, stable mate of Maxie Rosenbloom, in the scheduled eight-round semifinal of the Twin City Arena's boxing show at Laurel, Md., Monday night.

Don Whitlock, crack Southern 135-pounder, has been selected as a substitute.

Claiming a newspaper decision over Manuel Quintero, and having outpointed other top notchers of the Southland, Whitlock will be set for a grueling mixup with the up-and-coming New Yorker.

Rosenbloom-Barry in Feature.

Toplining the show will be a routed 10-period scuffle in which Maxie Rosenbloom, recognized world's light-heavyweight champion, squares off against Reds Barry, Southeast Washington's standout.

Other than a 6-round preliminary which remains to be filled Cornell offers a bout of similar length involving Ray Bowen, Washington's welterweight, vs. Charley Thompson, of Baltimore.

Four period supplementaries list Billy Essinger, Washington lightweight, vs. Pete Zingo, Baltimore, and Billy Hooe, Mohawk Club welterweight vs. K. O. Anderson, United States Marine Corps.

Markey and O'Neil Absent From City Tennis Tourney

THE City of Washington Tennis Tournament, which opens Saturday afternoon and entries for which close Thursday, will be played this year without the presence of either Bud Markey or Maurice O'Neil, both of whom were counted upon to go far in the lists.

Markey is, with the aid of Tom Mangan, the defending doubles champion. O'Neill has long been a figure in City of Washington Tournaments, thrice having been runner-up in doubles and always a single threat. Both of them are too occupied with their professions and school work.

Mitchell Reported Off Game.

With the defending champion, Dooley Mitchell, said to be sadly off his game, the stock of two netmen, one the oldest and the other the youngest of the top-notch players here, has risen notably in the last week. One is Tom Mangan, long a headliner in local tennis, and the other is Gilbert Hunt, 16-year-old local and Middle Atlantic boys' champion. Both have an excellent chance of beating Mitchell, but if they should come together in the final round the experience of Mangan would be expected to prevail. Mangan won the tournament in 1929.

Frank Shore, Anthony Latona, Gene Hermann, Pat Deck, Alan Staubly and several other leading lights will be in the running. Bob Considine, who won the tournament in 1930, also will compete.

Mrs. Stone Defends Crown.

The women's event promises to be the best women's tournament of the year here. Not only will Mrs. Charles P. Stone play in defense of her title, but it will be contested for by Mrs. Ruth Martinez, holder of the District championship; Frances Walker, former public parks champion; Clara Tabler, Wardman champion, and Reba Kirson, one of Baltimore's outstanding players.

The matches will be played at the Reservoir Courts, Sixteenth and Kennedy streets.

Belle Haven Names Its 12-Man Golf Team

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., May 17.—Belle Haven Golf and Country Club's twelve-man team will enter the Tri-State Association golf loop again this season, it was disclosed today by Tom Ryan, popular professional.

The first meet will be staged Saturday afternoon at Purcellville, Va., and the following teams will be entered: Winchester, Martinsburg, Purcellville, and Alexandria. They will play mixed matches.

Sets Sensational Batting Pace

first baseman of the Athletics, who is staging a grand comeback this season after failing to bat .300 last year. Foxx is far in front of the major league sluggers with an average of .469 for his 26 games, which represents 45 hits in 96 times at bat. He is also setting the pace in home runs for both big leagues with his nine circuit clouts.

Hurlers Shifting to Speed Ball, Says Catcher Dickey

By JACK CUDDY.

NEW YORK, May 17 (U.P.).—The fast ball, the pitch which made Walter Johnson's name a legend, has become the chief weapon of American League moundsmen this season, in the opinion of Bill Dickey, star catcher of the New York Yankees.

"In fact," said the 6-foot receiver in an interview today, "fast-ball pitching unquestionably is the feature of American League play this season.

"They're powderin' that ol' ball in fastah and fastah. They're using less brainwork, less curves and moah brute strength than ever befoah."

Don't Even Look to See Who Is Up.

The elongated backstop from Arkansas relaxed in his shirt sleeves on an old rose chaise lounge in his hotel room and explained in his soft Southern drawl that a few smart pitchers remained in his circuit, but that most of the mound notables were speed kings.

"Why, most of these boys don't even look to see who's at the plate," he continued. "They don't care. They just wind up and let drive. They don't care where the ball goes because they know you got mighty little chance of hittin' it effectively when it comes steamin' across."

While most of the fast-ball pitchers make little attempt to curve the ball, Dickey explained, their deliveries usually have a "little hop at the end," because they are thrown overhanded.

"I'm holdin' my chin a little lowah this season," he admitted, "because our own pitchers are burning 'em across, and I'm takin' no chances on getting hit in the throat. Take Gomez, Pipgras, Ruffing and Allen; they're putting plenty of powah on the ol' ball this yeah. So I'm shovin' my mask down and holdin' my chin lowah."

Marberry, Crowder Named Among Speedsters.

He named off a list of formidable fast-ball hurlers in other clubs: Bridges, Wyatt, Whitehill and Sorrell, with Detroit; Crowder and Marberry, with Washington; Frazier and Thomas, at Chicago; Ferrell, Brown and Hudlin, of the Cleveland Indians; Blaeholder, with the St. Louis Browns, and Earnshaw, Grove and Walberg, with the Athletics.

A few hurlers continue to depend on curves and on the individual batter's weakness, he said. Outstanding among these smart pitchers are Sad Sam Jones and Ted Lyons, of Chicago; MacFayden, of Boston; Wells and Pennock, of the Yankees, and Stewart, of St. Louis.

Although he was on the bench at Detroit, and did not bat against Earl Whitehill, Dickey said his teammates found him perhaps the most difficult man to hit in the league.

When questioned about rumors that he was contemplating marriage, Dickey shook his brown head emphatically, but a smile played above his square jaw as his roommate, Sammy Byrd, bounced in from the bathroom, where he had been shaving, and whispered to the reporter, "I could put a bird in your ear."

DIAMOND DUST FROM THE SANDLOTS

WESTERN'S victory over Eastern in yesterday's crucial high school series game may seriously hamper some of the teams entered in the Capital City League in the earlier stages of their pennant campaigns. Waverly, with five Eastern regulars on its roster, has already notified the secretary of the league of its inability to play its first game, scheduled Sunday, unless the series closes this week. The team is in the senior division.

"Buck" Trundle, pilot of the Georgetown A. C., favored to cop the laurels in the junior division, has evil forebodings concerning his team's important game with Fussell-Young because several of his men must steer clear of sandlot ball until the school series has been concluded. Louis and Karl Nau and Cliff Keyser are scholastic players "

TARIFF ADJUSTMENT CALLED 'RIDICULOUS'

Opposition to Proposed Legislation Voiced by Dry Goods Spokesman.

(Associated Press.)

Opposition to legislation for tariff adjustments to compensate for depreciation in the value of foreign currencies was expressed before the House ways and means committee yesterday by Albert D. Hutzler, of Baltimore, on the ground it would make the United States "ridiculous."

Hutzler, representing the National Retail Dry Goods Association, contended the measure would seriously retard payment of debts owed the United States by foreign countries. He was the first opposition witness.

Earlier, Western coal operators urged the legislation to compensate for depreciation in Canadian currency.

"There is no doubt," Hutzler said, "that the Hawley-Smoot tariff act has been responsible for the enactment of retaliatory tariffs by 42 countries with which we trade. They are reflected in a decrease in our American exports and have caused over 2,000 American manufacturers to establish plants in foreign countries.

Held Virtual Embargo.

"This bill would result in a virtual embargo on imports originating in countries which have abandoned the gold standard. It would most certainly cause the nations with which we trade to erect higher tariff barriers in further retaliation."

James W. Bevans, of New York City, representing the National Council of American Importers and Traders, Inc., likewise argued the bill would serve only to raise tariff rates.

Peter Fletcher, also of New York City and a member of this organization, contended the bill was unfair and discriminatory to foreign countries.

C. T. Riotte, another New York City spokesman of the importer group, said the bill "would be so drastic as to put up an embargo."

Shift to Foreign Markets.

H. P. Henderson, president of the Texas Mining & Smelting Co., of Laredo, Tex., indorsed the bill, but asked its amendment to include China, his chief competitor in antimony.

Reuben R. Robertson, of Canton, N. C., president of the Champion Fibre Co., testified that business had dropped 66 per cent and values to a considerable extent since "our competitors went off the gold standard."

"The business now is going to foreign countries," Robertson said. "We could buy foreign pulp and it would be to our advantage, but it would prevent us from giving that business to the American farmer from whom we buy our wood. We consider this bill an unemployment relief problem, not at all a tariff."

Freight Loadings Drop 30,335 Cars in Week

(Associated Press.)

Revenue freight loadings for the week ended May 7, were announced yesterday by the American Railway Association as totaling 553,677 cars.

This was a decrease of 20,335 under the previous week and 212,083 below the corresponding week in 1931.

MARKET COMMENT

Westheimer & Co.—The market at present holds out little incentive for extended operations on either side. Comparatively little pressure appears to be overhanging the market, but demand is likely to be held back pending more constructive news from Washington.

G. M.-P. Murphy & Co.—Regardless of how average prices move over the immediate future, it is most likely that a large number of stocks have already made their lows for this phase of the decline.

Lawrence Stern & Co.—New security offerings in the United States in April, according to the Stern review, consisted of $113,425,545 in bonds and $1,063,800 in stocks—a total of $114,500,345. The April volume shows a fairly substantial decline from March, but is considerably in excess of the minimum volume registered in December and February.

Grain Exports Mount To 1,945,000 Bushels

(Associated Press.)

Grain exports from the United States last week amounted to 1,945,000 bushels, compared with 1,873,000 the previous week and 1,586,000 the corresponding week of last year.

Commerce Department figures yesterday gave the following comparisons between last week's exports and those of the week before: Wheat, 1,797,000 bushels, against 1,730,000; barley, 30,000, against 97,000; corn, 20,000, against 45,000; oats, 8,000, against 1,000; rye, 90,000, against none.

Canadian grains exported last week from United States ports amounted to 645,000 bushels against 609,000. Exports of North American wheat flour were 56,000 barrels, against 53,000.

Goldman Stores File Voluntary Bankruptcy

New York, May 17 (A.P.).—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed today in Federal Court on behalf of the Julian Goldman Stores, Inc.

The petition listed liabilities of $1,112,865 and assets of $890,220.

Failures Slightly Less; Amount Involved Higher

New York, May 17 (A.P.).—Business defaults, as reported to Bradstreet's for the week ended May 12, totaled 545, compared with 553 in the preceding week. Liabilities involved were 20 per cent larger.

With the exception of the week ended March 10, this week's number of failures is the smallest reported this year.

MILNOR SEES WHEAT MARKET IMPROVED

Head of Government Grain Supply Reviews Outlook for Coming Season.

Chicago, May 17 (A.P.).—George S. Milnor, chief marketer of Government-owned grain, finds wheat giving a good account of itself in the market and believes European requirements will be as great this year as last.

Hopeful observations of the president of the Grain Stabilization Corporation and general manager of the Farmers National Grain Corporation were based upon a survey of the domestic grain situation and a four weeks' business tour of Europe.

Exports from this country, Milnor said today, ran well over those of 1931. Glancing at the grain markets, he added that wheat had held a favorable position as compared with the declining security and commodity markets. As outstanding facts about the grain trade at present, he selected the following items:

"Exports of United States wheat and wheat in the form of flour for ten months since July 1, 1931, are approximately 15 per cent larger than during the corresponding period of the previous year."

U. S. Holdings Reduced.

"Unsold holdings of Government wheat show a reduction of more than 50 per cent compared with last July."

"Since the low price on wheat of last October, the market has advanced approximately 20 per cent. Wheat is the only big commodity that has gone up."

This indicated careful handling, Milnor said, and was the "best answer to critics of the Federal Farm Board."

Mr. Milnor found that European countries would need at least as much wheat this year as last, he said, despite their efforts to increase production of their own cereals. He described crop conditions as "not particularly promising" in those countries. The Russian crop was not in favorable condition, he said, and he estimated the yield would not exceed that of 1931.

Attitude of Europe.

Many of the European countries would have been glad to buy at cut prices or on credit, he added, but the United States agencies were not ready for either, having been able to sell their holdings gradually at market prices and for cash.

In America, Milnor said, the depression was having the effect of turning the people back to wheat, which was high in food value and low in cost.

"I believe the domestic per capita consumption in the United States will show a reasonable increase," he said, "on account of the low prices and the bad economic conditions, which call attention to the value of wheat as a food."

Stocks Fluctuate Narrowly As Bonds Continue Losses

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

New York, May 17 (A.P.).—Having little news to go on, stocks seesawed today. Final changes were irregular and generally narrow, although the market was easing at the close, thus duplicating its course during the first half hour or so.

A persistent rumor that favorable happenings could be expected from Washington acted as a sustaining influence and prompted intermittent covering, with the result that at one time leaders had not only erased early losses of 1 to 3 points but were selling a little higher. Once more, however, there was no substantiation of vague reports and prices scaled downward much of the afternoon.

Volume totaled 933,784 shares.

U. S. Steel was notably firm, closing a point higher. General Electric, active, rallied on unofficial estimates of second-quarter operating results which said further economies were likely to bring some improvements in net over the first three months on about the same amount of business. American Telephone sagged rather easily, despite Wall street expectations that tomorrow's meeting would bring another regular dividend declaration. However, the stock got back more than half of an extreme 2⅝-point dip.

Loadings Affect Rails.

Rails were sensitive to the weekly freight-loadings figures, which showed a decrease of 20,335 cars, to a total of 533,677, the smallest for any week this year. Union Pacific, Santa Fe, and Southern Pacific were down a point, although the first two had been somewhat lower on the early decline.

In specialties, International Shoe and Beatrice Creamery were heavy. Such stocks as Bethlehem Steel, American Can Du Pont, General Motors, National Biscuit, Woolworth, Consolidated Gas and Westinghouse were little changed on the day.

The easiness which Federal Reserve open market operations has helped build up in money markets was illustrated by the very favorable terms obtained by the Treasury on its new bill issue. The rate, forty-three one-hundredths of 1 per cent is a record low for this variety of financing, which was inaugurated by our Government late in 1929.

Bank Loans Contract.

Sharp contraction of reporting member bank loans continued over the past week. Such of the $137,000,000 drop in earnings assets took place in security loans. The banks did, however, add $7,000,000 of other than Government securities to their portfolios while selling $19,000,000 of Federal issues. Credit deflation obviously has not been halted by the Reserve's activities to date, but advocates of the present policy point out that it is still too early to expect very tangible results.

Trade news was negative. Copper sold at 5⅜ cents a pond, another record low, while early reports on steel operations for this week said that no change had occurred. The American Metal Market said, however, that increased production within the next two weeks was probable, largely because the Ford Company was expanding output. Prices, added this publication, "are not affected by the 15 per cent wage cut, and each passing week gives the price stabilization movement a more impressive character."

Dollars improved against some foreign currencies, although French francs held steady above the gold point.

The yen rallied with Japanese government bonds.

Corporation bonds put up a modest show of resistance today, but were handicapped somewhat by a softening tendency in United States Government obligations. The result was that the averages for 60 selected securities again recorded a new loan for the year with a loss of two-tenths of a point.

Liquidation of Government loans accompanied the meeting in Washington of the Federal Reserve Board and rumors that the system might relax its purchases of national issues. The Reserve banks have added some $600,000,000 of Governments to their portfolios during recent weeks. While most of the Treasury long-term bonds showed losses of around a point, the Liberties advanced fractionally.

The second-grade railroad list exhibited early strength following the news of the Interstate Commerce Commission's approval of a loan to the Baltimore & Ohio of $25,500,000. On top of this, however, came the report of freight car loadings for the week ended May 7, which disclosed a drop of some 20,000 from the preceding week. After various ups and downs, the average for twenty principal carrier bonds ended the day at exactly the same figure as yesterday.

B. & O. Liens Gain.

Most of the Baltimore & Ohio liens registered gains of as much as 2 points and St. Louis Southwestern Consolidated 4s, due next month, jumped 7½ points. But weakness was shown by some bonds of Great Northern, Erie, Illinois Central, New York Central, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania and Wabash.

The utilities and industrials sagged mildly, bonds of various power and light companies being under pressure. The oils improved somewhat.

Foreign obligations were irregular. Both the French and German government bonds were soft. Japanese government issues rallied, but corporation and municipal Nipponese loans again lowered their prices. British 5½s were firm, as were the Australians.

Sales totaled $9,895,000, par value.

Curb Trend Firmer.

The curb market moved forward moderately today, in a rather uncertain and straggling fashion. The list eased substantially in the early trading, but developed a better tone as trading wore on. The volume for the day of 130,000 shares was about 30,000 less than yesterday's.

The more active issues fluctuated rather erratically. Electric Bond & Share, which was turned over in considerable volume, ranged between a loss of ⅝ and a gain of ⅛, and closed up ¼ net. American Gas & Electric followed a similar wobbly course, and closed ½ point higher. Commonwealth Edison dropped 3 points, then recovered to finish up a fraction.

Standard of Indiana was a firm spot in the oils, rising to 19¼, the best price of the year, and closing at 19, up ⅝ net. The ability of this issue to reach a new 1932 high, with most of the list around the year's lows, was regarded as attributable to its deal to sell the foreign properties of its subsidiary, Pan-American, to Standard of New Jersey. Gulf rose ¾, then reacted to close unchanged. An easier tendency in the Chicago bulk gasoline market was a less favorable development in the petroleum situation.

Industrials and specialties, mostly lightly traded, were highly mixed. Mapes Consolidated, A. O. Smith and Parker Rust Proof pushed up 2 to 4 points and Alumnium Co. and Armstrong Cork gained about a point.

New York, May 17 (A.P.).—Directors of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. today ordered the regular quarterly dividend of 62½ cents on the common stock, payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 8.

Following steps taken by Consolidated Gas Co. to issue $30,000,000 debentures, another local public utility company evidences faith in the bond market by planning a new issue. Brooklyn Union Gas has asked the Public Service Commission for authority to issue $10,000,000 of series "B" first lien and refunding mortgage 5 per cent bonds, the proceeds to be used to pay off bank loans and to reimburse the company for capital expenditures.

April shipments of the Auburn Automobile Co. totaled 1,124 cars, compared with 6,321 in April, 1931.

The Kimberly-Clark Corporation today declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common stock, payable July 1 to stock of record June 11. Formerly the company paid 81¼ cents quarterly.

Exports of cotton from this country to the Orient have fallen to small proportions after running at a heavy rate during most of the season, says the New York Cotton Exchange Service.

Some winter wheat types of flour have been marked up 10 to 15 cents a barrel on the indications of a reduced production of winter wheat this season, according to dealers. Spring wheat qualities have been advanced about 5 cents a barrel.

The New York Hide Exchange reports that although the production of shoes registered a marked decline last month, the output for the first four months of the current year totaled 104,184,000 pairs, an increase of 1 per cent over the corresponding period last year. The April total was 26,500,000 pairs, according to a preliminary estimate, compared with 29,888,000 pairs in April, 1931.

Increased production of steel within the next fortnight is in prospect, chiefly by way of heavier requirements by the Ford Motor Co., says the American Metal Market. Ingot production for this week may be forecast at 22 per cent of capacity. A 1-point rise from the closing rate of April.

J. Leonard Replogle, who headed the former Replogle Steel Co., and is a director of the Wabash Railway and other corporations, has retired as a special partner from the stock exchange firm of Harris, Upham & Co., it was announced today.

GRAIN PRICES MOUNT ON CROP'S DECREASE

Deterioration of New Crop Report Stirs Market; Corn Declines.

Chicago, May 17 (A.P.).—Further evidence that domestic winter wheat had deteriorated since May 1 gave a vigorous upturn to grain values today.

Wheat rose to about 3 cents a bushel over last week's low, influenced especially by an official report that 60 per cent of winter wheat acreage in Nebraska would be abandoned, an amount 20 per cent more than the May 1 Federal forecast. Heavy selling to realize profits, however, led to setbacks from top prices.

Wheat closed unsettled, ½ cent above yesterday's finish; corn at ½ decline to ¼ advance, oats unchanged to ¼ higher, and provisions, unchanged to 15 cents up.

Broadening of the area of crop damage complaints in regard to domestic winter wheat attracted particular notice, and included Missouri and southern Illinois. A feature was that winter-killing effects were reported as becoming more and more apparent, and that injury by Hessian fly was also showing up.

Spring wheat reports were generally favorable, but a smaller acreage than seeded last year was indicated both south and north of the Canadian line.

Dry and windy weather conditions all over the west and southwest gave stress to the fact that crop news from each was extremely bullish, and that apparently there were few sections now where hard winter wheat promised even an ordinary yield. Crop experts said cool, moist weather hereafter until the crop matured was needed if additional curtailment of wheat yields was to be averted. It was emphasized that low estimates of the United States winter wheat crop were now taken with greater seriousness abroad and that the bulk of world shipments of wheat had shifted from south of the Equator to North America.

Corn and oats averaged higher with wheat. Considerable buying of corn against sales of wheat took place at times. Rural offerings of corn were larger.

White Urges Coal Truce of One Year

Ohio Governor Submits 10-Point Program in Bituminous Strike.

Columbus, Ohio, May 17 (A.P.).—Gov. George White today recommended a one-year truce in the bituminous coal strike, which has gripped eastern Ohio since April 1, and submitted a ten-point working program.

Included in the governor's plans is a suggestion for a minimum wage scale of 38 cents an hour for loaders and $3.28 for motormen and other employes. He also recommended that miners be reemployed without prejudice for the part they took in the strike or for their membership in the United Mine Workers.

The operators were advised to hold open "for a reasonable time" the jobs of miners who were employed when the strike, involving several thousand men, began.

Operators were noncommittal on the governor's program, but Herman Thelsen, sr., of Millsfield, chairman of the union wage scale committee of the Hocking and Sunday Creek Valleys, declared that plan "unsatisfactory," claiming there was no protection provided for miners who might be discharged by the operators. He also disagreed with the governor's minimum wage scale proposal.

Leaders in House Act To Keep Pay Roll Public

(Associated Press.)

The Democratic and Republican leadership in the House have united in a movement to publish the pay roll of the House at all times. This was shown yesterday by the introduction of a resolution by Chairman Warren of the House accounts committee to direct South Trimble, House clerk, to "keep open for public inspection the pay roll record of the disbursing office of the House."

It will be brought before the House as soon as possible. The purpose is to end speculation as to the relatives of members of the House on the legislative pay roll.

Passport Fee Increased By Bill Hoover Signs

It increases the fee for an original passport from $5 to $9 exclusive of the $1 application fee; increases the renewal fee from $2 to $5 and provides for one renewal of two years instead of two renewals of two years each.

Harmony Reported On Relief Program

(Associated Press.)

A second secret session yesterday of the special committee set up by Senate Democrats to draft an unemployment relief program produced expressions of harmony, but no legislation.

A member of the committee reported that "difficulties" had been encountered, and said there was still "a lot of work to be done." Another said the tentative $2,400,000,000 program submitted by Chairman Wagner was still intact in its main features, but that discussion of the legal questions involved in drafting the measure was holding up an agreement.

Chairman Wagner's program calls for a bond issue of $1,100,000 for public construction; $1,000,000,000 for self-liquidating construction loans and $300,000,000 for relief loans to States.

$600,000 FOR RELIEF HELD LOST BECAUSE OF AGENCIES' STAND

ASSOCIATION DISCUSSES BLOCK-AID SUGGESTION

Calls Proposed Forced Reduction of Rent Unfair to Certain Group.

The House appropriation's committee rejected the $600,000 appropriation relief measure, recently proposed, because relief agencies failed to cooperate in presenting required information, it was charged by James G. Yaden at the meeting of the Petworth Citizens Association at the Petworth School last night.

In a discussion of unemployment relief in the city, Mr. Yaden asserted that the relief measure was rejected when the House committee received only six or eight satisfactory replies to form requests to agencies to give an accounting of their organization overhead to the committee.

He stated he was shown letters of reply to the queries which could be summarized to mean that it was "none of their business" what the operating overhead of the agencies were. Mr. Yaden, who is the Petworth association's representative to the Federation of Citizens Associations, told members that the action of the agencies to the requests of the congressional committee was a generally known fact to members of Congress, but was not made public.

Chest Overhead Defended.

Mrs. Frank H. Schwartz, a member of the board for Episcopal children, a Chest agency, who is a member of the association and who took part in the controversy, said that to her knowledge the overhead of the Chest was reduced to a minimum and that the operation expenses of the organization were comparatively small.

The discussion followed the proposal to the citizens to put into effect a "Block-Aid Plan" to give work to unemployed. Col. E. G. Bliss, chairman of the work creation committee of the committee on employment, explained the operation of the plan.

The city, he said, has not made any real strides toward reducing unemployment, and at best has been successful in merely checking its growth. The object of the block-aid plan, he pointed out, is to keep up the morale of those who are unemployed through normal or abnormal methods until the situation changes. "It will be unhealthy for the country if a number of persons are scarred by the specter of charity and starvation," he declared.

The block-aid plan, he explained, was in effect in other communities. In Chevy Chase 50 men had found employment through this method, he said. The plan entails the organization of a city block to give employment to someone who is without work. A fixed rate of pay could be arranged, he said, and local management by residents could provide an efficient method of distributing work.

A committee was appointed by the citizens to work out the operation of the block-aid plan.

The association disapproved of any inforced reduction of rent rates in the District, contending that the move would be an invasion of private rights, and legislation passed requiring a reduction would be a discrimination against a certain group of persons.

Maintaining that a degree of control of banking operations was necessary for the security of public interests, the citizens indorsed the Glass-Steagall bill. They made certain reservations on details of the measure. The organization adopted a resolution favoring the increase of qualifications for jurors.

At the suggestion of E. C. Magdeburger, a member of the association, the group commended Joe Dudley, of 4430 New Hampshire avenue, for his action in saving his father's life when he discovered him unconscious in a monoxide gas filled garage.

Mrs. Lillian Wright Smith, director of the Bicentennial Garden contest, addressed the meeting, and Edward C. Potter, of the Arts Club of Washington, asked for the support of the citizens to the Washington Symphony Orchestra.

Detective's Brother Is Object of Search

River Will Be Dragged in Hunt for Youth After Auto Is Found.

Police last night broadcast a lookout for Thomas Lyon Reading, 19 years old, of 610 Irving street northwest, brother of Detective M. K. Reading, of the Eighth Precinct. The lookout was sent out over the police radio after an automobile used by the youth was found near the banks of the Potomac in the vicinity of Chain Bridge.

The youth disappeared Sunday morning. Detective Reading said last night the disappearance was a mystery to him, but headquarters police quoted him as saying, in requesting the lookout, that his brother had mentioned something about "ending it all" before he left the house Sunday morning.

Detectives made a search of the territory around the car last night but found no clews to the youth's disappearance. Preparations were being made to have harbor police drag the river this morning. Reading is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs about 145 pounds.

GROUP URGES PENNY CLUB PLAN FOR IDLE

Columbia Heights Citizens Indorse Atlanta Scheme to Provide Work.

Introduction of the Penny Club plan in Washington to aid unemployed was recommended by the Columbia Heights Citizens Forum last night.

The Penny Club was first launched in Atlanta, Ga., and is reported to be making successful progress in that place. Through it citizens are asked to donate 3 cents a day, each penny representing a contribution to one meal. Boxes for this purpose are placed in theaters, hotels and other public places.

Money Creates Public Work.

The money collected is used to create public work. The suggestion that the plan be introduced here will be presented to the Federation of Citizens Associations for action, it was announced. One feature of the Penny Club plan is that all equipment and personnel is donated anonymously and no advertisement is used.

The forum indorsed the old-age security bills for the District and voted to ask the Federation of Citizens Associations to cooperate in pushing efforts to have this legislation acted on at this session of Congress despite the setbacks it has already received.

Urge Gilligan's Retention.

Motion was carried that the justices of the District Supreme Court be petitioned to retain Henry Gilligan as a member of the Board of Education. Mr. Gilligan, who is chairman of the legislative committee of the board, completes his term at the end of this school year.

A committee was appointed to find a definite meeting place for the forum, since the Wilson Teachers College has been condemned because of defects in the building. Last night's meeting was held at the Powell Junior High School. Burd W. Payne, the president, presided.

Giddings School Plans For Addition Approved

Plans for an addition to the J. R. Giddings School, Fourth and G streets southeast, were approved yesterday by the District Commissioners. Bids will be called for shortly.

The estimated cost of the addition is $160,000, and the District government has $164,584.53 available for the project. It is expected that 240 days will be required to complete the work.

Wally Is Lost Again; May Be Baiting Press

"Wally" is lost again. If you don't remember him, "Wally" is the giant Irish wolfhound belonging to Lieut. Frederick M. Trapnell, of the Naval Air Station at Anacostia. Last February "Traps" joined the caterpillar club up over the Naval Air Station when he jumped in his parachute from a broken airplane. Landing safely he surprised newspapermen by asking only if they had seen his dog. His escape, he said, was of minor importance. The Post took him at his word and published the dog's picture. "Wally" came home.

Now he has gone again. Yesterday he wandered away from the Naval Air Station. He is big and shaggy and weighs 118 pounds. Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ingalls gave Trapnell the dog and he prizes him highly.

While Trapnell looks for his dog the officers at the Naval Air Station are keeping their eyes on all the airplanes. They are afraid that the nonchalant young officer will remember how much publicity his dog's disappearance received when he jumped from an airplane before.

The field day events start at 1:30 p. m., on the Hilltop campus.

Slain Employe's First Wife Awarded District Pension

The District Commissioners assumed the role of Solomon yesterday in the case of a former detective sergeant, killed in race riots here in 1919, and awarded a pension to his first wife and continued a pension which a daughter of a second wife has been receiving for the past thirteen years.

This action was recommended by the Police Retiring and Relief Board after substantiating evidence that Detective Sergt. Harry Wilson was born Wilson Brusie and that he had another wife whom he had married in 1907 in Waterville, N. Y., and deserted in 1914.

This first wife, who just learned of her husband's death and alias last year, had applied for the widow's pension of $60 a month. The second wife, Mrs. Wilson, received the pension until 1921, when she was married in Canada. She had married Wilson in 1915, at Jacksonville, Fla.

The board, while recommending that the pension of $10 a month be continued for the daughter of the detective sergeant by his second wife until June 14, 1933, when she reaches the age of 18, stated:

"However, the board does not desire to establish a precedent by this action and does so only after considering all the facts and circumstances."

FARMERS' MARKET RULES ARE DRAFTED

Opening to Await Approval of Regulations Governing Operation.

Coincident with the completion of sheds for the Farmers' Market in the Southwest section, George M. Roberts, superintendent of weights, measures and markets, yesterday submitted to the District Commissioners proposed regulations to govern the operation of the market. Action was deferred on the proposals.

The market, which is bounded by Tenth and Eleventh and E and G streets, will be ready for occupancy as soon as the regulations are adopted.

The new rules as suggested are more rigid and comprehensive than the regulations under which the former Farmers' Produce Market, at Twelfth and B streets northwest, was conducted. The proposals restrict permits to farmers or their employes and thus exclude "speculators, city hucksters, peddlers, commission dealers and other persons engaged in buying and selling, but who produce nothing."

A charge of 25 cents a day would be collected for each space, and "any permit holder who shall fail to occupy space assigned to him before 5 o'clock in the morning shall forfeit his right to occupy said space for that day."

Mr. Roberts explains that much criticism was directed at the operation of the previous market because "persons who were not farmers established themselves on the market as so-called 'agents' or 'salesmen' for farmers, and, under cover of such occupation, carried on businesses as commission merchants and as dealers buying and selling produce generally."

PATRIOTIC SESSION HEARS CAPPER URGE WAR TO END CRIME

"INDEPENDENT" POLICE ADVOCATED BY KANSAN

Organization Joins Other Groups in Honoring San Martin.

With "the ordinary citizen at the mercy of organized crime," Senator Arthur Capper last night pleaded for "an outraged Nation to launch a war to the finish against crime."

The Kansan was speaking at the banquet of the Congress of the Sons of the American Revolution at the Mayflower Hotel.

His address was a vigorous and bitter denunciation of crime conditions. "We must destroy crime or be destroyed," he said.

"The righteous anger brought by the Lindbergh baby's murder must provide the impetus to sweep the organized racketeers, protected at the top by crooked politicians, from the country," he said.

Wants Independent Police.

Recommendations that police departments be absolutely separated from politics so that they can be the "immediate and exclusive servants of the people," were made by the senator.

"I want to see reverence for law become the practical religion of the Nation," he stated. "The crying need of this day is for every living being to respect the Constitution and obey the laws of his country."

In regard to legislative necessities Capper said, "the country wants action, not political hot air. If beginning at once every Congress should pass in the shortest possible order the tax bill and other necessary measures that it knows it will pass eventually, the country would rejoice and would respond in business recovery at once."

The other principal speaker of the affair was Judge Wallace McCamant, of Oregon, past president general. He spoke upon "Washington, the Man."

Included in the guests were Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, Mrs. Russell William Magna, president general of the D. A. R.; Mrs. Samuel Shaw Arentz, president general of the C. A. R., and Mrs. Harry Grove, State regent of the D. A. R.

The Sons of the Revolution and other patriotic groups combined yesterday afternoon in a service at the statue of Gen. Jose de San Martin in Judiciary Square.

Liberator Honored.

San Martin, the liberator of Argentina, was honored in address by Justice Van Orsdel and Dr. L. S. Rowe, director general of the Pan-American Union.

Dr. Felipe A. Espil, the Argentine Ambassador, also spoke. Wreaths were placed at the foot of the statue while the Navy Band played the national anthems of Argentina and the United States.

At the morning session of the Congress Arthur M. McCrillis, chairman of the committee on correspondence and safety, accused the Federal Congress of playing politics.

He called for business men to awaken, saying "Mr. Business Man, you are partly responsible for the present condition. How much longer are you going to stand for this state of affairs?

"Vote Mr. Demagogue, Mr Socialist and Mr. Radical out of office and replace them with men who have the real welfare of the Nation at heart."

He declared that Socialists and Communists have taken advantage of the depression to extend their activities and to get new followers. He warned against the dangers of communistic growth.

Dealers to Get Warning On Indecent Magazines

The third alleged indecent "comedy" magazine was banned from sale here yesterday when Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keogh, in Police Court, directed policemen to warn and then to arrest, for failure to observe the warning, any news dealers who continued to offer the objectionable publications.

HONOR SOUTH AMERICAN HERO

CREDIT UNION BILL WILL BE REPORTED

House Unit Will Recommend Plan to District Group at Session Today.

A favorable report will be made to the House District committee today on Senator Arthur Capper's bill for the incorporation of credit unions in the District. The bill would facilitate loans within organizations of residents organized for that purpose.

Opposed by the District Bankers Association, which charged the bill sets up independent banking units, the measure nevertheless passed the Senate and recently was publicly espoused by Chairman Mary T. Norton of the House District committee.

Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, chairman of the House District judiciary subcommittee, said last night he will favorably report the bill at a meeting of the District committee at 10 o'clock this morning in the House Office Building.

Senator Capper and Mrs. Norton favor the bill as a depression aid. Pointing out that under present restrictions needy residents are victimized by "loan sharks" operating from nearby States, they argue the desirability of allowing groups of residents to incorporate for the purpose of loaning money to one another at low interest rates.

The committee today plans to clear dockets of all pending local legislation in anticipation of another 'District day" Monday or at night sessions in the near future.

America Is Topic Of Travel Lecture

A travel talk will be presented tonight in the Central High School Auditorium by Dr. Frederick Vining Fisher, noted lecturer. His subject will be "Enchanted America," the second of a series of American travel talks.

The event is under the auspices of the Community Institute and open to the public. Mrs. Lyman B. Swormstedt is in charge of arrangements.

Means Trial on Larceny Charge Set for Monday

Gaston B. Means, former investigator of the Department of Justice, will be placed on trial Monday on charges of embezzling and larceny after trust.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover yesterday made the announcement after he had conferred with Means' attorney, J. William Tomlinson. Means will be tried on two indictments that charge him with embezzling $104,000 from Mrs. Evalyn Lucille Walsh McLean, and with another indictment, drawn up to prevent Means' escape on a technicality of the law, charging him with larceny after trust of $100,000.

District Records Bill Is Approved

Bride's Proposed Changes Accepted by Committee of Realty Board.

The District Commissioners yesterday approved the bill "to provide for recording of deeds of trust and mortgages secured on real estate in the District and for the releasing thereof" with certain amendments proposed by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride.

The two changes proposed by Mr. Bride meet the approval of the legislative committee of the Real Estate Board, which drafted the measure.

An amendment to section 6 provides that the recorder of deeds shall identify the note secured by a deed of trust in which a bank is named. An addition to section 7 provides that when a bank certifies to the recorder that "it holds on deposit the sum required by the deed of trust to be paid for the release in whole or in part, the recorder shall accept for record and record such release."

CLIMAX SEEN TODAY IN GAS FIRM BATTLE FOR BOARD SESSION

COUNSEL FOR BANKERS CALLS ON COMMISSION

Successor to President Wood Still Unchosen; Another Officer Quits.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday stood by its order in the Washington Gas Light Co. case after an almost full day of conferences, but took no further action to prevent the holding of scheduled meetings of the company's directors and stockholders today.

Arthur Dean, of Sullivan & Cromwell, New York attorneys for the Chase, Harris, Forbes Corporation, called on the commission yesterday morning and agian yesterday afternoon presumably in an effort to persuade the body to modify its order to permit the meetings to be held. After his request was denied, he intimated that the session will be held anyway, as was a directors' meeting last week.

Just what action will be taken today is conjectural, although Mr. Dean indicated that the new president of the local gas company may not be elected for several days. George A. G. Wood resigned last week.

Climax in Struggle Near.

The climax in the battle between the commission and the controlling interests of the gas company may be reached today as a meeting at which the majority stockholders vote would be a direct challenge of the utilities body's authority. The directors' session last week appeared to be a violation of the commission's order, but there was room for a technical evasion, it was intimated, though this point has not been settled.

Both Mr. Dean and Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the commission, were noncommittal following their conferences yesterday. When asked whether the scheduled meeting of the Washington Gas Light Co. stockholders would be held today, Mr. Dean replied:

"I can't say until we meet tomorrow."

Yesterday morning he denied that any general reorganization was to follow the naming of a successor to Mr. Wood. He emphatically contradicted the report that Walter M. Russell was to be replaced as chief engineer. As to the new president, he said:

"I won't be able to say anything about that for several days."

Mentioned for Presidency.

Robert D. Weaver, president of the Georgetown Gas Light Co., who was last week reelected a director of the Washington company, has been prominently mentioned as a candidate for this post, though the rumor has been neither confirmed nor denied. Reports that either Wilton J. Lambert, attorney for the gas company, or George B. Fraser, vice president, would be named, have been denied officially.

Either the owners of the gas company or the commission is expected to carry the fight into the District Supreme Court if the majority stockholders today defy the order issued May 7 directing them to surrender their holdings and refrain from voting them.

It was learned yesterday that Anthony Hyde, assistant to Mr. Wood, quit simultaneously with the acceptance of the latter's resignation last week.

Culbertson Gives Trophy For Press Bridge Contest

Ely Culbertson, originator and exponent of the approach-forcing system of bidding in contract bridge, has donated the major trophy for which members of the National Press Club will compete in their forthcoming tournament.

The prize will be awarded to the team making the best score in match points in the four contests to be played Tuesday night.

The tournament will open tomorrow night in the club auditorium. The first event will be a "Mr. and Mrs." pair contest in which club members will have their wives, or lady friends, as partners. The selection pair contests, in which members will be allowed to select any lady or fellow club member as partner, will take place Friday night. Club prizes will be offered for each of these events.

Those who desire will be allowed to play auction bridge, and winners will receive the club's specially designed top score pins. All the main events, however, will be played at contract.

Mrs. Louise Guest, prominent bridge teacher, will have supervision and direction of the play each night, assisted by a corps of competent bridge instructors.
